Truman to Address Congress Tomorrow as Crisis Mounts; Draft Plans Exempt Veterans

Truman Tells U. S. Officials To Withhold Loyalty Files

Orders Rejection Of Congressional, Court Subpenas for Security Reasons

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday ordered Federal officials to reject "any subpena or demand" from Congress or the courts for material in the loyalty program files.

The documents must be kept confidential, he said in an official directive, "in the interest of our National security and welfare." Failure to do so, he implied, would wreck the executive branch loyalty investigation procedure.

Any request for the data in the loyalty files of any department by any outside sources should be referred to the White House, Mr. Truman said. He added that he would determine the action to be taken in each particular case.

Back Up Harriman

His action was seen as being in complete support of Commerce Secretary Harriman. Ten days ago he refused to pass secret material to the House Un-American Activities Committe. That body had subpenaed the loyalty files of Dr. E. U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

The White House said yesterday's order stemmed from the committee's attempt in the Condon case.

On Harriman's refusal, members of the committee threatened to introduce legislation requiring executive agencies to hand over material requested by Congress. Yesterday, Representative McDowell (R., Pa.) said he is writing such a bill, and threw the charge of "politics" against the President.

"The President, in an election year, is pulling down an iron curtain between Congress and information on the Government," McDowell said.

Under his bill, a committee's request would pass through either the Speaker of the House or the President of the Senate. They could compel an agency to hand over the papers desired.

They would then take a look at them and if they felt the data should stay secret, they would return the material. If not, they would pass it along to the committee which requested it.

McDowell said, "There would be protection two ways—against some official who might attempt to suppress for political or personal reasons information Congress should have, and against some weird committee chairman who might go haywire and demand and make public all kinds of secret documents."

But Mr. Truman took the position yesterday that by Constitutional authority, discretion on whether or not to make public executive investigatory data rested with the President.

Gives List of Precedents

Mr. Truman cited a long list of precedents. He recalled how President Washington refused to give the House a copy of instructions to diplomats involved in treaty negotiations. He told how Jefferson blocked the furnishing of Cabinet documents at the trial of Aaron Burr.

The President mentioned similar actions by Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Cleveland, and Taft. As principal grounds, however, he cited a 1941 opinion of the then Attorney General, Robert H. Jackson, who summarized previous practice.

With special reference to FBI reports (the same type of data sought by the House Un-American

Court Rules Union Politics 'Gag' Illegal

Judge Throws Out Murray-CIO Case; U. S. Plans Appeal

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Taft-Hartley ban on union political action was declared unconstitutional yesterday.

Federal Judge Ben Moore said in the District Court that the act abridged the freedoms of speech, press and assembly guaranteed by the Bill of Rights. So he threw out the charges of political action for which the CIO faced a $5000 fine and its president, Philip Murray, a $1000 fine and a year in jail.

The Justice Department said it would appeal Judge Moore's ruling to the Supreme Court at once.

The Taft-Hartley Act made it a crime for a labor organization to give or spend any money in connection with a Federal election, or a primary, convention or caucus to choose candidates for a Federal election.

Last July—a few weeks after this law was passed over President Truman's veto—CIO President Murray wrote an editorial urging Maryland voters to send Judge Ed Garmatz, a Democrat, to Congress. The editorial was printed in the CIO News and "apparently to remove all doubt that the CIO was . . . making expenditures" 1000 extra copies of the paper were sent to Garmatz's district.

Garmatz won.

After several months, an FBI investigation brought indictment of Murray and the CIO. Special Counsel Charles J. Margiotti, Lee Pressman and Frank Donner then attacked the Taft-Hartley Act as a violation of the Constitution.

Special Prosecutors Turner Smith and Jesse Climenko admitted the violation, but they said Congress had power to abridge the Bill of Rights in order to regulate elections.

Judge Moore said in his 10-page opinion yesterday that the act must stand or fall on the Constitution.

Meyers Sent To D. C. Jail In Handcuffs

General Sentenced To Serve 20-Month To Five-Year Term

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Handcuffed and gray-faced, Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, wartime commanding general of the AAF Materiel Command, was led off to District jail late yesterday with 27 other convicted felons.

Justice Alexander Holtzoff sentenced the 52-year-old retired officer to serve 20 months to five years in Federal prison for inducing a witness to lie under oath to a Senate subcommittee.

Hundreds of spectators watched in stony silence as Meyers, handcuffed to a parole violator, led a procession of convicted murderers rapists and thieves out to the big blue prison bus.

Motion picture camermen swarmed to the top of a nearby car to record the scene and possibly shoot a picture of Meyers through the dusty windows of the old prison wagon. News photographers fought for elbow room in the tightly knit, silent crowd.

Some of the spectors started gathering early yesterday morning and stayed all day. Some were women, some were GI's in uniform, and some were men who wore a veterans' ruptured duck in their lapels and wheeled baby carriages. One elderly woman, who had clung to a corner of the court building all day, violently punched a reporter who stepped in front of her to speak to one of the dozen or more United States marshalls lining the path through which the prisoners marched.

Before the former major general reached the jail, 13 more prisoners, these convicted in Common Court of minor offenses, joined the 28 already in the prison bus.

Meyers was denied bail by Justice Holtzoff but bail could be granted by the District Court of Appeals, which has received notice that the sentence will be appealed.

194,000 Quit Mines Over Pension Plan

Half of Nation's Soft Coal Diggers Back Lewis' $100 Demand

Pittsburgh, March 15 (AP). Almost half the Nation's 400,000 soft coal miners quit work today to back up John L. Lewis' demand for miners' pensions.

The United Mine Workers' leader had asked rank-and-file "reaction" to his charge that coal operators had "dishonored" the 1947 contract by failing to grant $100 a month pensions.

Today he got that "reaction" in ever-growing numbers as more than 194,000 miners in 11 States laid down their picks and shovels to support Lewis' stand.

The coal industry's richest area—western Pennsylvania and West Virginia—accounted for more than 93,000 idle.

More than Half Walk Out

Western Pennsylvania strikers were estimated at 33,000 out of the district's 56,000 diggers—about 25,000 from mines shut down and 5000 additional through absenteeism that crippled other pits.

West Virginia coal fields, which produce more coal than any others, reported an estimated 60,000 idle—primarily in the southern district.

The percentage of idle was also high in Kentucky—45,000 staying home out of 54,000 miners.

Illinois counted its entire 23,000 UMW members idle. Still working are some 14,000 independent Illinois Progressive Mine Workers. Other States affected were Alabama, 10,000 idle; Virginia, 8105; Ohio, 6500; Wyoming, 2800; Indiana, 2000; Tennessee, 1500; Utah, 700.

The current mine contract does not expire until June 30, but provides the miners need work only so long as they are "able and willing."

Officials Undecided

At Washington United States Mediation officials began a hasty exploration tonight of ways to stop the walkout. They were undecided just what to do.

While the Taft-Hartley Act provides the machinery for keeping vital industries in operation in a national emergency, the coal stoppages presented a tough problem for the mediation service headed by Cyrus S. Ching.

Even if President Truman should decide to seek another court injunction against John L. Lewis, there is some question whether the Proposal Applies To Present Only; War Mobilization Would Affect All

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Veterans will be exempt from any new draft proposed to meet the current critical world situation, The Washington Post is informed.

Army officials now are convinced that a new selective service law is essential to make up a serious shortage in the ranks resulting from recruiting lags.

They also feel that some expansion of present authorized strength is required to give the Nation a greater striking force than the bare 2 1/3 divisions now available in the United States for emergency action.

Defense chiefs are understood to have discusse the situation at the weekend conference at Key West, Fla., and to be ready to recommend to President Truman that he propose both a new draft and universal military training to Congress.

Both Plans Advocated

Selective service is deemed necessary to meet the current emergency and keep Army forces at strength. UMT, in the opinion of the defense officials, is essential for the long range military situation.

The new draft—if it comes—will apply to men 18 to 25 without prior military service, under current plans. There are more than two million non-veterans in this group—most of them youths who have reached 18 since selective service stopped taking men a year and a half ago.

Under a full war mobilization, more men than this would be required, and veterans of the last war would have to be taken. Officials feel, however, that they should be exempt under present conditions.

Forrestal Returns

Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal returned from the Key West conference late yesterday and deferred until today a statement on what was accomplished there. His meeting with the Nation's top ranking unformed chiefs was primarily to settle points of differences between the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps over "who does what with which weapons."

Forrestal is to go before the House Apropriations Committee this afternoon in executive session for testimony on the 1949 defense budget. Subordinates said they did not know whether he would simply defend the estimates submitted last January or propose new outlays to meet current conditions.

Meanwhile, Air Force officials reported that commanding generals of USAF commands in this country have been ordered to give

Of 16 ERP Nations

Bidault Calls for Permanent West Europe Organization

Paris, March 15 (AP).—French Foreign Minister George Bidault today called on 15 nations to joinn France in writing a charter for a permanent European organization.

He made this proposal to delegates attending the opening session of western Europe's second Marshall Plan conference. The conference also received a joint British-French suggestion that western Germany be included in the plan.

In an obvious reference to Czechoslovakia, where Communists recently seized control, Bidault said Europe has been "reduced to the 16 nations" represented here.

He explained that his proposed charter for a permanent European organization would consist of a multilateral treaty dovetailing the economic and social policies of the 16 Marshall Plan nations.

Such a unified production and commercial policy should be administered by a new international executive body, he said. The first task of that body, Bidault added, would be to cooperate with the United States in administration of the Marshall Plan.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, in a formal statement, said Britain intended to make the necessary sacrifies for European coordination, but did not intend to sacrifice her special ties with her dominions or her long-standing relationships in world trade.

Bevin's statement was regarded as significant. It is believed the conference's efforts to build a a platform for a European customs and monetary union and eventual federation depend on the extent to which Britain is willing to become more of a part of Europe. Up to now imperial preferences have been a stumbling block in the first studies of the customs union project.

Referring to American aid as a breathing space, Bevin said the first aim of the 16 nations "is to make a great success of the European Recovery Program." He expressed the belief that those in the Marshall Plan would continue to cooperate after the period of American help ends.

The British-French proposal on western Germany would associate German experts from the British, French and American occupation zones and military government

Special Message Expected to Ask Action to Offset Communist Drive

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

President Truman surprised and mystified congressional leaders yesterday by announcing that he would go before both Houses at 12:30 tomorrow to deliver a special message.

The White House gave no hint of its contents, but is was expected to call for legislative action as one response to Communist expansion and pressure in Europe.

Soon after the announcement was made, Secretary Marshall made a move which suggested that the message might deal with universal military training. He asked the Senate Armed Services Committee to defer until tomorrow, after the President had spoken, a hearing on universal military training originally scheduled for this morning.

The President "may ask for prompt action on universal military training or even a return to the wartime draft," said one high ranking Democrat, who preferred not to be identified.

Army Still Needs Men

Top Army chiefs have been convinced that both UMT and the drafting of men for actual service are needed for American security in present conditions.

In spite of improved recruiting results in January and February, the Army is still 120,000 men short of its authorized strength of 670,000 set two years ago.

This is believed to have been one of the subjects discussed last weekend at the meeting of Defense Secretary Forrestal with defense chiefs at Key West, Fla.

Hogh officials have said privately that nothing could do so much to strengthen Secretary Marshall's hands, and to remove the fears of small and exposed nations in Europe, as an American decision to begin universal military training.

The announcement of the President's coming message was preceded by a sombre statement by Secretary Marshall, made behind closed doors at a hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday. Later a part of the statement was made public.

'Hour Is Fateful'

"The hour is far more fateful now than it was one year ago," said the Secretary, testifying on a request for 275 million dollars in additional military help to Greece and Turkey.

"By intimidation, fraud and terror, Communist regimes have been imposed upon Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

"Totalitarian control has been tightened in other countries of eastern Europe, and these states have been linked together in a network of alliances. Other European peoples face a similar threat of being drawn against their will into the Communist orbit."

The Secretary described the Greek situation as "serious" but "not without hope."

"The danger remains that the Communist-dominated countries of Europe will increase their pressure on Greece just as they have in other directions in Europe," he said.

"It is the boast of the totalitarian leaders that democracies are incapable of timely an decisive action. Should we fail to continue our efforts, the consequences would be swift and tragic, and they would not be confined to Greece."

Marshall told the Senators that in the present Mediterranean situation the United States "must avoid hasty action which could lead to the dissipation of our resources, or fear which would lead to sterile inaction."

"With calm determination we must pursue the policy confirmed last May by the Congress," he said, referring to the first program of economic and military aid to Greece and Turkey.

While the Secretary was finishing his testimony on Capitol Hill, a State Department official made it

It Happened in Champaign

Whisky Saves Life of Baby Imbiber of Army Rat Poison

Champaign, Ill., March 15 (AP).—A baby who swallowed a rat poison which has no known antidote was out of danger today and suffering only from a hangover.

The child, 14-month-old William Rice, jr., was found Saturday afternoon in a closet with the liquid 1080 poison smeared over his hands and face. The poison was developed by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and used during the war by the Army.

The baby's father said a pest control company had put out 80 cups of the poison in the house before the family moved in and apparently the exterminators had forgotten to remove one.

At Burnham City Hospital, the attending physician could find nothing in her medical books on treatment for the poison. She made several telephone calls to scientists and Army officials throughout the country.

An officer at Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland said there was no known antidote for the poison. For that reason the Army had been opposed to releasing it for civilian use. He said he feared the child's pulse would increase and that he would go into convulsions and die. But he suggested administering whisky as a last resort.

Late Saturday night, the physician reported, the baby's pulse reached a count 150 and he began to show the first signs of convulsions. She administered phenobarbital to slow down heart action, and started giving whisky.

The child suffered a similar attack Sunday morning and the whisky treatment was continued.

This morning Max Hoeglund, hospital administrator, reported the child was completely out of danger and that "the only ill effect is a hangover."

House Debates "Local Option"

Rent Control in Modified Form For Year, Backed in Senate

Measure Would Transfer Powers To Local Boards

By The Associated Press

Debate on the "local option" rent control bill opened in the House yesterday with a Republican praising it as a blow at bureaucrats and a Democrat crying that it would let tenants "be gouged and held up."

The measure would transfer from Federal officials to local rent boards full powers to allow increases or lift rent ceilings completely.

A showdown vote is set for today.

Representative Allen (D., Ill.) led off the debate with a declaration that "too many regulations by bureaucrats are coming out of Washington."

"They have not the local touch," Allen said. "These controls should go to the local boards that understand the local problems with which they deal."

But Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) shouted, "This is a bill to mislead the American people." He called it rent control in name only and told the House it would permit tenants "to be gouged and held up."

He said real estate interests had spent a million dollars to defeat rent control and predicted they would dominate some local rent boards.

Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the Banking Committee conceded

D. C. Committee To Decide on 15% Voluntary Hikes

By Edward F. Ryan

District rent controls would be continued on a modified basis until April 30, 1949 under a measure approved yesterday by a Senate District Subcommittee.

Placed before the full District committee to decide was the question of whether extended rent controls should permit voluntary increases up to 15 per cent.

The measure, approved by a subcommittee headed by District Committee Chairman C. Douglass Buck, (R., Del.), would decontrol transient hotel rooms after March 31, and remove from control housing accommodations which come on the market after January 1 of this year, either as new construction or by conversion of present buildings. For converted housing to be freed from control changes must provide additional housing, the measure specified.

The provision for a 15 per cent voluntary increase in local rents was not included in the subcommittee draft, but Senator Harry P. Cain, (R., Wash.) was given the right to press for its adoption before the full District committee. Senator Buck is against the 15 per cent provision.

District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell said he approves of the decontrol of hotel rooms and new construction, but is "dubious" about the decontrol of converted housing. He also is op-

Sweden Urged To Strengthen Its Defenses

Russian Aggression Threatening War, Army Chief Says

Stockholm, Sweden, March 15 (U.P.).—Gen. Helge Jung, chief of the Swedish general staff, called urgently today for a five-point program to strengthen defenses on the ground that Sweden is not prepared at present to meet a lightning attack.

The military defense staff, approving the program and recommending it to the government, said that increasing Russian aggressiveness "must be considered to mean that the possibilities of war" between east and west had increased.

Jung's statement, and that of the defense staff, came after Sven Aspling, secretary of the Social Democratic Party, announced the opening of an anti-Communist campaign April 1.

Jung called for:

1. More fortifications.
2. Speeding up of construction of airdromes.
3. Complementary military training for certain age groups of conscripts.
4. Improvements in civil defense.
5. Bigger military appropriations to make accomplishment of the program possible.

Jung said that the possibilities of armed conflict had grown so great that Sweden must look to her defenses.

Czechs Send Man to Take Papanek Post

Rebellious Delegate, However, Refuses to Yield U. N. Office

Lake Success, March 15 (AP).—A new Czechoslovak delegate arrived today to replace anti-Communist Jan Papanek, but Papanek said he would not surrender the delegation offices.

The new delegate, Vladimir Houdek, declined to say whether he would try to dislodge Papanek.

At the New York Czechoslovak consulate late in the day, Houdek said he planned to set up headquarters there temporarily.

A reporter asked Papanek in his nearby Broadway offices whether Houdek was a Communist.

Houdek Avoids Question

Houdek said he did not want to discuss his personal politics.

Houdek said he was an underground fighter against the Nazis during the war and had been decorated by President Benes for his war efforts.

The new complication came as the United States and Russia headed toward a major clash here Wednesday over Chile's proposal that the Security Council investigate the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia to determine whether Russia was involved. Informed quarters said the United States would vote to give the question a full airing in the Security Council.

British sources said Britain would join the U. S. in voting for full debates on the Czechoslovak coup.

Chilean delegate Hernan Santa Cruz said he would ask the Council to hear Papanek, either as the Czechoslovak delegate or as an individual. There appeared to be

'Landlord' Weighs Plan

U. S. May Have to Run GSI To End Strike, Fleming Warns

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming told Government Services, Inc., yesterday that the Government may have to take over operation of GSI's 42 cafeterias to end the extended strike there.

Fleming, the Government's "landlord" of the cafeterias, personally notified GSI President U. S. Grant 3d, that he is seriously looking into the feasability of terminating GSI's governmental contract to operate the cafeterias.

Questioned last night, Fleming said that one of the possible alternatives to operation by GSI would be establishment of a Government corporation to run the Federal building cafeterias without profit. GSI, as result of a 10-week strike by cafeteria workers, subject of a congressional investigation has operated the eating places under a basic contract signed for the Government in 1927 by Grant, now GSI president.

Fleming's announcement came during a morning conference with leaders of the striking union, local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO). It followed a report in which Government - appointed Conciliator George E. Strong told Fleming that nearly a month of setlement attempts had failed.

Fleming, under a White House directive to settle the strike, said the only action he could now take would be the termination of that part of GWSI's contract that pro-

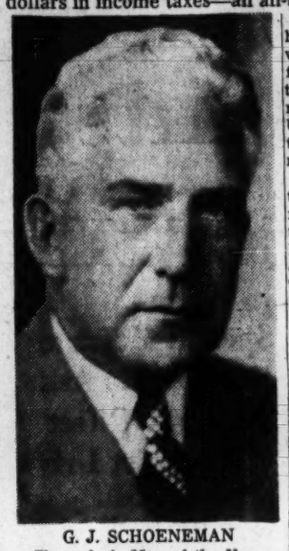
PEOPLE In the News

Schoeneman Is on Receiving End Of All-Time High Income Tax Take

When the clock tolled midnight last night, some 55 million Americans had tossed Uncle Sam an estimated 20 billion dollars in income taxes—an all-time record.



G. J. SCHOENEMAN
Yesterday's Man of the Hour

On the receiving end of that hefty take is a man who admits his work is so "fascinating" he didn't find time to file his own income tax return until last Thursday. Very much in the news on March 15 is United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue George J. Schoeneman.

Commissioner Schoeneman, a tall, well-proportioned, silvery-maned man of 59, sat in his quiet third-floor office at the Bureau of Internal Revenue yesterday pondering the perplexities of his job. Two floors below, nearly 2500 Washingtonians milled about in the yearly last-minute rush to beat the deadline.

Boss of 50,000 BIR employes, he has been so busy since January 1 that, like a lot of people at the bureau, he had to delay filing his return until "practically the last minute."

"Maybe I shouldn't admit that," the country's number one money man said, somewhat sheepishly.

But it's understandable when you realize that from his piled-up desk begins a network of employes that reaches into every city in the country—and into the pocketbook of everyone who makes more than $500 a year.

Schoeneman, the son of a lighthouse keeper, was born (appropriately enough) in March, 1889, in a lighthouse off Newport, R. I. He came to the District in 1911 to take a civil service exam, and he's been here ever since.

A career man, he has put in the better part of 26 years at the bureau. He left the bureau in May, 1945, at President Truman's call to become an administrative assistant. Before returning to BIR in mid-1947, he had worked up to a special executive assistant to the President, friendly, quiet man, says the answer to your income tax problem is to "keep proper records." If you know where you stand, the filing of the return is routine. "Simply a mere filinng-out," he laughed.

Does he practice what he preaches? Yes, "I didn't file until last Thursday, but I didn't have any trouble making it out." Then a big smile and a laughing, "No, indeed!"

Schoeneman is a good example of a man in love with his work, even though he admits it is "demanding." He greets a battery of secretaries about 8:30 every morning, and four days out of five he never gets to bid them good-night—he works that late.

For a man who took in some 20 billion dollars the first three months of this year, Commissioner Schoeneman has a deceptively mild appearance. He looks like somebody's grandfather—the kind of a man you'd ask when the next bus runs. Nothing of the "banker-type to him.

He is a grandfather—four times over. Married to Lorena Rouse, he lives at 1609 Noyes dr., Silver Spring. His children are Mrs. Charles W. Adams and Mrs. John S. Russell.

Schoeneman attended public schools in Newport, R. I. He didn't go to college. After coming here in 1911, he began his government service in the Postoffice Department.

In 1919 he was secretary to a member of the Federal Reserve Board, and the following year joined the Bureau of Internal Revenue as chief of personnel of collectors officers over the United States. He worked his way up over the years from that time, becoming assistant commissioner in 1944.

3 U. S. Warships To Visit Dublin

The Navy announced yesterday three United States warships will make a five-day "courtesy visit" to Dublin, Eire, April 22-27.

It will be the first visit of American warships to that country since before World War II, the Navy said.

The ships, from the northern European Task Force, are the 6000-ton antiaircraft cruiser Fresno and two 2200-ton destroyers, the Johnston and the William R. Rush.

Taft Unhurt In Forced Landing on Ice

Vassalboro, Me., March 15 (AP).—Unhurt in a crash-landing on Kennebec River ice today, Senator Robert A. Taft joked about the airplane mishap and continued—again by air—his Maine campaign for Republican presidential nomination support.

"The hardest part of the whole thing," the Ohio Senator told newsmen, "was climbing the hill in the snow" from the river where a light plane carrying Taft and Senator Brewster (R., Me.) nosed over. They were en route from Augusta to Old Town.

The pilot, John T. Clark, director of the Maine Aeronautics Commission, said a broken crankshaft caused the engine to fail. Realizing he could not reach an airport, he came down on the river ice.

Senators Praise Pilot

"After landing we slid and then nosed over," Taft said. "We had our belts fastened, however, and were not thrown."

Taft and Brewster praised Clark for easing the State-owned plane down from about 1500 feet.

Brewster, who is chairman of the Congressional Aviation Policy Committee, told newsmen with a smile, "You probably remember we recently recommended more safety measures in flying."

With Clark, Taft and Brewster walked 250 feet from the plane to the river bank and then plodded half a mile through fields knee-deep in snow to telephone Gov. Horace Hildreth at the State House.

A State car in which Mrs. Taft was riding to Bangor picked the two Senators up.

One Talk Canceled

The mishap forced cancellation of the Senators' plans to look over Old Town airport, which has been suggested as a field for civilian planes instead of Dow Air Force base, Bangor.

Also canceled was a talk Taft was scheduled to make before students of University of Maine.

The Ohioan appeared as scheduled at a Bangor meeting of Bangor-Brewster service clubs. Afterward he and Brewster flew by commercial airline to Portland for an evening address by Taft.

Taft told the Bangor-Brewster meeting he "was very much annoyed and indignant at the steel companies for raising prices."

"They should have held the line," he said.

"Businessmen" Taft said, "should not increase prices just because they can get higher prices. Labor should not ask higher wages just because it can get them."

Mechanic Halts Pilotless Airplane

Cleveland, March 15 (AP).—A mechanic halted a pilotless plane at Cleveland Airport yesterday after it seriously injured a tool company engineer. He grabbed it by the tail.

Edward Heller, 59, chief engineer of the Ohio Tool Co., suffered cuts in his side when the four-passenger plane moved forward after he swung the propeller.

Witnesses said he forgot to turn off the ignition.

Albert F. Drottar, the mechanic, saw the plane hurtling toward a gasoline truck and parked aircraft. He seized hold of its tail and managed to open the door, then cut off the ignition.

Swedish Union Ousts Communists

Stockholm, March 15 (AP).—Communists were swept out in elections for one of the biggest strongholds of the Swedish Trade Union Federation last night.

In union elections throughout northern Sweden, Communists were ousted from the board of the Uulea section of the federation.

Union Bans Cargoes

Sydney, March 15 (U.P.). — The executive of the Waterside Workers Federation directed dock workers throughout Australia today not to unload cargoes destined for the State of Queensland from any overseas ships, in sympathy with the state-wide Queensland railway strike.

Critics Fire At Tuck Bill On Elections

Reaction to Gov. William M. Tuck's anti-Truman election bill passed by the Virginia General Assembly Saturday continued yesterday throughout the Old Dominion.

The bill would permit Virginia Democrats to throw the State's 11 electoral votes to another Democrats to throw the State's 11 electoral votes to another Democrat if the President receives the party nomination. It needs now only the formality of the Governor's signature before becoming effective.

Among developments were:

1. Dickenson County Democrats gathered at Clintwood, Va., and went on record in opposition to the measure. The Democrats Saturday unanimously pledged their undivided support to the National Party's presidential nominee.

2. In Richmond, Martin A. Hutchinson, leader of the State's Democratic anti-Administratoin forces, termed the bill "bad legislation," and challenged Senator Harry F. Byrd (D. Va.) and Governor Tuck to qualify immediately as presidential candidates.

Hutchinson declared Saturday that Byrd and Tuck should "meet the issue at the ballot box and not in a hand-picked, boss-ridden convention."

He said, "It is bad in principle and will be confusing in practice. It settles no issues and solves no problems. It is undemocratic in that it vests in party convention the power to instruct presidential electors for whom they shall vote, a power which the Legislature does not possess and which it cannot delegate to a party convention."

3. The executive committee of the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia, meeting in Richmond on Saturday, although not mentioning the Tuck bill, announced appointment of a committee to study "controversial subjects." The President's civil rights proposals wa slisted as an example.

Move to Draft Eisenhower Started Anew

New York, March 15 (AP).—A new Eisenhower-for-President movement designed to blitz the Republican national convention with an avalanche of postcards was started today.

Torrey Stearns, 42-year-old New York advertising executive, said his "People for Eisenhower" organization was being launched without the knowledge of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The general recently brought about the dissolution of a national draft-Eisenhower league by announcing flatly "I could not accept the nomination even under the remote circumstances it were tendered me."

However, Stearns told a news conference that "if the wishes of all the people can be made known, the preference for Dwight D. Eisenhower will be so overwhelming that neither the general nor the Republican Party can deny the people's demand."

The advertising executive issued an invitation to all citizens of voting age to mail postcards and letters, stating they want Eisenhower for President, to Postoffice Box 671, New York 8, N. Y.

Leonard V. Finder, the Manchester, N. H., publisher to whom Eisenhower sent his January letter stating he could not accept the nomination, said today the question of the general's "availability remains very much alive."

"The people still retain the power to have the last say," Finder declared in a letter to Look Magazine.

Criticism of MacArthur Bewilders Japanese

Tokyo, March 15 (AP).—Japanese were both bewildered and surprised today over the first criticism of General MacArthur to appear in their newspapers.

Adverse as well as favorable comments on MacArthur's willingness to run for President have appeared in all Tokyo newspapers in dispatches from the United States and Russia. This followed the supreme commander's relaxation of censorship by his staff of all "American political attacks" against him. The press still is not permitted to criticize him as occupation commander, however.

Fenwich Made Biggest Boost In Va. Appropriations Bill

Arlington Senator Added $1,500,000 For State Aid Hospital Construction

Richmond, Va., March 15 (AP).—The biggest single addition to the Governor's original budget recommendations was written in during the recent session of the General Assembly as the result of a bill introduced by Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington.

Some $6,600,000 was tacked onto the appropriations measure by House and Senate committees to bring the final figure to a record 511 million dollars for the 1948-50 biennium. Of the additional appropriations approved, the northern Virginia legislator's action accounted for $1,500,000.

This will go toward financing a plan of State aid for localities to help finance hospital construction under terms of the Federal Hill-Burton Act. Written into the bill, also, was conditional appropriation of one million dollars which, if funds are available, will bring the State program to $2,500,000.

Cigarette Tax Sought

Fenwick's original proposal called for a cent-a-pack tax on cigarettes to finance the State program and bring in an estimated two million dollars a year. He offered this in the belief it represented the best means of setting up an earmarked self-perpetuating fund. However, he was quick to announce he was not wedded to the cigarette tax idea, just so long as the program wasn't endangered.

At a public hearing on the issue—one of the largest of the 60-day legislative session—not a word was spoken in opposition to the hospital-building program. But the opponents, mostly from the cigarette tobacco growing sections, rose up in arms against putting an additional tax on tobacco. The Governor, too, expressed his opposition to the idea of the selective tax.

Governor Approved

Then with the Governor's approval the House Appropriations Committee wrote in the $1,500,000 outright appropriation and the conditional million was also added.

The Arlington Senator and the entire northern Virginia delegation were among the busiest legislators in the Assembly, both in matters of general bills and local measures.

Fenwick offered 17 bills and 11 went through. Senator Andrew W. Clarke of Alexandria-Fairfax sponsored 34 and only nine failed.

Delegate Armistead Boothe of Alexandria was successful on 14 out of 22 and Delegate Robert J. McCandlish's score showed 10 for 19. In many cases the sponsors were not the chief patrons of the bills.

SCC Moves in Probe Of Richmond Papers

Richmond, Va., March 15 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today asked the clerk of the House of Delegates for a copy of the House resolution directing a probe of Richmond Newspapers, Inc.

E. Griffith Dodson, clerk of the House, said it might be several days before his office could supply a certified copy.

In the meantime, neither the SCC nor the attorney general's office had anything to say on the Lower Chamber's order that they look into the "practices and policies" of the Richmond papers.

Walter E. Rogers, acting attorney general, said he did not know "if any action will be taken on it until after Judge Almond takes over." Attorney General elect J. Lindsay Almond, jr., has not yet qualified for the post.

Sponsored by Delegates Samuel W. Swanson, of Pittsylvania; V. C. Smith, of Buchanan; and J. Bradie Allman, of Rocky Mount, the resolution was one of two reactions by the House against editorial criticism in the Richmond News-Leader and Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The other resolution came from Delegate Edward T. Haynes, of Richmond, in the form of a request that the editors of the two Richmond papers become candidates for the House.

Both resolutions were adopted by the House Saturday night without a recorded vote.

Labor Law Results Praised in Report

Reject Truman Plea

Meat Packer Strike Set For Today

New York, March 15 (AP).—An official for CIO packing house workers here said tonight that a strike scheduled for 12:01 a.m. tomorrow would be called despite the intervention of President Truman.

Don Smith, field representative and New York sub-district director of the United Packinghouse Workers, said he telephoned union officials in Chicago shortly after 9:30 p.m. (EST) tonight and was informed they had rejected the President's request and would strike as scheduled.

Fact-Finding Board Ordered by Truman

Chicago, March 15 (AP).—President Truman today ordered a fact-finding board set up to investigate the threatened strike of 100,000 CIO packinghouse workers set for 12:01 a. m. Tuesday. He asked a report by April 1.

Mr. Truman asked that work in the meat packing industry continue in the meantime.

Telegrams from the President asked the packers and the union to continue negotiations in the wage dispute until April 1. The President's board of inquiry, as yet unnamed publicly, is to report to him then.

The major targets of the strike are Swift & Co., the Cudahy Packing Co., Wilson & Co., and Armour & Co. These firms, the largest in the country, usually set the pattern for wages in the industry.

court could find anything to restrain.

Indication were that the Government might try to mediate the dispute as long as there was a possibility of finding a solution.

Meanwhile, Ezra Van Horn, the operators' representative on the board of trustees for the welfare and retirement fund created by last year's contract, arrived in Washington and said he would make a statement today.

No Reports o Violence

Although many of the diggers were reported "bitter" over the pension issue, the walkout was a quiet one. There were no reports of violence.

At the Frick Co.'s mine near Brownsville, Pa., between 300 and 400 day shift miners showed up at the lamp houses, but made no attempt to obtain their working lights.

Then as one of the miners "threw away his water"—the traditional signal of a work stoppage in which the miner pours his day's supply of drinking water on the ground—men warlked away toward their homes.

It was a scene repeated many times at other mines throughout the country.

"The miners haven't been ordered out by any official," said Hugh White, Illinois UMW president. "It's a protest on the part of the individual miner against the action of the coal operators in refusing to comply with contract provisions for pensions."

In eastern Pennsylvania, the 75,000 UMW anthracite miners went to work as usual. A union spokesman there said "it doesn't look like there will be any reaction" to the spreading stoppage of soft coal diggers.

Lewis is demanding $100 monthly pensions for miners 60 years of age or more who have 20 years' service in the pits. He wants the money paid out of a welfare fund made up of a 10-cent-a-ton royalty on coal paid by the operators. The operators contend the pensions are "too expensive." The fund now contains 30 million dollars.

The shutdown threatened the Nation's steel output if they continue any length of time since many of the closed mines are "captives" whose entire output goes to the steel companies.

There was a possibility that United States Steel Corp. would curtail steel production within ten days. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. reported no immediate plans. Republic Steel said it can continue operations "for several weeks." Youngstown Sheet & Tube has sufficient coal on hand "for a week or two," a spokesman said.

'Watchdog' Group Says Objectives Largely Attained

The majority of a congressional group which wrote the Taft-Hartley Act reported yesterday that it was working well. It added that the dire results forecast by its opponents had not materialized.

The findings were made in the report of the Joint Congressional Committee on Labor-Management Relations. It was set up to serve in a "watch-dog" role to see how the new law was working out.

Its chairman, Senator Ball (R., Minn.), declared the law is achieving most of the objectives sought by its sponsors, and so far no serious problem has arisen for which the law does not provide an adequate remedy.

Minority Disagrees

But a committee minority took sharp exception. Four Democrats, Senators Murray (Mont.) and Pepper (Fla.) and Representatives Lesinski (Mich.) and Kelley (Pa.), claimed the majority report was "political in its approach and misleading in its findings."

They inferred that the report was only a device to justify Congress' action in passing the law. They added:

"The sweeping character of the claims they made, unsupported by the limited experience under Taft-Hartley, and the failure to present many of the facts concerning the operations of the act, can only result in misleading the public and retard the making of necessary legislative changes."

Accomplishments Listed

The majority, however, said they had not yet found any situations making any amendments desirable. Among the accomplishments of the law which they listed were these:

1. The law has had "pronounced and significant" effect in eliminating many Communist partisans from union leadership positions.

2. Secondary boycotts are steadily decreasing in number.

3. The prevalence of jurisdictional disputes is declining. Many are being settled without needing formal action. The AFL building trades unions have reached agreement with employers on a promising plan to solve the majority of such conflicts in their industry.

Craft Groups Organizing

4. Craft groups are organizing into their own unions, thus creating a "more satisfactory condition" of labor-management relations.

5. The number of strikes and time lost through strikes has declined steadily each month since the passage of the law.

6. Wages have not suffered through the operation of the law. Many unions have made substantial membership gains. Rights of workers have not been damaged.

7. The settlement of disputes has been facilitated and, "after a slow start," unions are coming to accept their responsibility under the law regarding restrictions on the closed shop.

Minority Attacks Report

The minority report claimed that factors other than the law were at the root of the generally improved strike picture in the last four months of 1947.

It attacked the majority report on four points:

1. It failed to refer to the special problems created by banning the closed shop.

2. It did not adequately investigate the problem of "bootleg" contracts (those containing provisions violating the law) and its "summary dismissal" of that situation was "inexcusable."

3. It failed to discuss adequately the "serious administrative problem" created by the requirement for union-shop elections.

4. It failed to mention the "tremendous cost and waste" of such elections.

ITU Case Debated

The minority also slapped at that passage of the official report discussing the current controversy and strikes by the AFL International Typographical Union.

The report had called the ITU's action, in fighting the restriction against the closed shop, "most unfortunate." The minority said that was an "abuse of legislative power" because it indicated a prejudgment of issues now pending before the National Labor Relations Board and the courts.

In an address to the Senate, delivered when he submitted the committee report, Ball noted that many charges against the law, made when it was being debated, were still being repeated. He said they were not supported.

He cited data for his contentions that the law had not increased strikes, did not militate against unions as a "Slave Labor Act," did not reduce wages, subject unions to harassing law suits or inject the Government unduly into collective bargaining situations.

Frees Murray In Labor Case

JUSTICE BEN MOORE, who yesterday held the Taft-Hartley Act's ban on union political expenditure unconstitutional, and dismissed an indictment against the CIO and its president, Philip Murray that he felt it must fall, because it abridged freedom of speech, press and assembly.

Murray Case Thrown Out

"At no time are these rights so vital as when they are exercised during, preceding or following an election," Judge Moore said, adding, "If they were permitted only at times when they could have no effect in influencing public opinion, and denied at the very time in relation to the very matters that are calculated to give the rights value, they would lose that precious character with which they have been clothed from the beginning of our National life."

The judge said the record in Congress showed that the law was aimed at the very political action taken by Murray and the CIO. And this action, he said, was protected by the First Amendment.

Cites Right of People

Not only did the amendment protect the rights of publishers, the court said, but also, and perhaps over and above that right, was the right of the people to hear the views of all side of public questions. How, asked the judge, are the people to know the views of laboring men and women if their organizations are forbidden to publish anything whatever?

The Government claim that Congress has power to regulate elections might prevail, Judge Moore commented, if the law did anything to stop corruption. But it seemed to him that the Taft-Hartleyt Act struck down the freedoms that did much to keep elections honest.

Nor did Judge Moore find merit in the view that the law was meant to keep labor unions from spending money against the wishes of a minority of their members. All groups are run by their majorities, he said, the Taft-Hartley Act itself bows to that principle, in other clauses. Besides that, he added, the act does more than protect such minorities, it stops all union political activity, whether or not there are minorities who object to it. The judge added that he saw no reason to take it for granted that union members would split up over the political course that would advance their common welfare.

Women Voters Name Convention Delegates

Lynchburg, Va., March 15 (AP).—Mrs. Landon Simmons, Albemarle County, and Mrs. Festus Foster, Loudon County, have been named delegates of the League of Women Voters of Virginia to the biennial national league convention, April 28-30, at Grand Rapids, Mich.

The appointments were made Saturday by the State executive board in Alexandria. Alternates named were Mrs. William Arkin of Arlington, and Mrs. Richard R. Fletcher of Charlottesville.

Under the present contract, Fleming could end the entire arrangement on six months' notice. He could also terminate on 60 "days" notice "any specified activities including recreation and welfare. One FWA official said he thought Fleming could terminate the contract immediately if GSI were failing in its obligations to provide satisfactory service.

The present impasse in the labor dispute came late last week when GSI refused to accept in its entirety the settlement proposal made by Strong. The union agreed to it.

Fleming said he thought Strong's proposal was a "reasonable" one. He tried, he added, to persuade the GSI board of trustees to accept it, but that the board had refused.

Court Orders Meyers to Jail

Bushnell, who told Judge Holtzoff it would be "ferocity" to deny bail to his client, failed, however, to file a motion for bail with the Appellate Court. The Appeals Court clerk's office closed last night without the request for bail having been filed.

District Attorney George Morris Fay said the Government "probably would oppose bail" if the defense asks it.

Judge Holtzoff informed the defense it was the rule in this jurisdiction to deny bail, and the exception to grant it.

To Bushnell's repeated urgings, he said there was no substantial point of law involved, and that defense claims that the subcommittee was illegal were almost "frivolous."

Court 'Amazed'

Holtzoff sternly told Bushnell that the court felt the defense had not acted in "good faith." No one, he said, was more "amazed" than the court when the defense closed without bringing on a witness because for two weeks the defense had made "insinuations and intimations" that Meyers was being blackmailed by Eleriot H. Lamarre, key Government witnesses.

That is a serious charge, Holtzoff declared, and the court would expect proof and yet none was offered.

Lamarre was the self-confessed "dummy" president of the Aviation Electric Co., which Meyers established during the war, and from which the Government says he received $150,000 in profits.

Meyers was convicted of persuading Lamarre to lie under oath to a Senate War Investigating Subcommittee about Meyers' wartime profits, ownership of a blue Cadillac car, and payment for a lavish $10,000 decorating job on the general's fashionable wartime Hotel 2400 apartment.

Until his trial and conviction yesterday the dapper, balding general was living in a $100,000 mansion in Halesite, N. Y.

"His glamorous third wife, Ila Hae Curnutt, a former Hollywood bit player, was not in court yesterday to hear him sentenced. She was there when he was convicted. They were married in 1943 and have three children.

Before passing sentence, Holtzoff stated Meyers was guilty of "a very grave and serious offense." The judge explained that although the District of Columbia has a special law which would permit a maximum of 10 years on each of three counts, he would not impose more than the Federal maximum of five years because if the subcommittee had held hearing, for example, in Dayton, Ohio, where the plane parts plant was located, only five years could have been imposed. He said he was imposing only one sentence because all three counts of the in ment were bound up in the sam offense.

Stalin Told Finns Want No Conflicts

Helsinki, March 15 (AP).—Finnish President Kuho K. Paasikivi has informed Prime Minister Stalin that while the Finns are willing to negotiate a treaty with Russia, they hope to stay out of international conflicts.

Groups in the Finnish Parliament have expressed doubt concerning the conclusion of an agreement of a military character, the President said. Paasikivi, in a letter to Stalin, emphasized that any Finnish-Russian treaty requires the approval of Parliament.

The letter was in answer to Stalin's proposal that the two countries negotiate a treaty of cooperation. The text of the letter was published here today, a day after excerpts from it had been printed in the Moscow press.

Negotiations on the projected pact will open in Moscow Monday.

A government committee met today with a parliamentary committee to inform it of the progress made so far in working out directives to guide Finland's seven-man negotiating group.

Houdek showed up at U. N. headquarters about the same time the U. N. announced he had been named by the Prague Communist regime to be permanent representative here, succeeding Papanek.

Houdek has recently been a member of the Czechoslovak embassy staff in Washington.

Reserve Plans Stepped Up

At the moment, only 123,000 USAF reserve officers and men have M-day billets. The other 304,000 reservists are simply names on a roster, it was said. USAF Commands have been directed to appoint as many of the latter as is practicable to be "understudies" for Air Force officers and men now in uniform at USAF bases.

This step, and expansion of reserve training in the other services, are believed by Defense chiefs to be partially responsible for the recent widespread rumors that a general call-up of reservists is planned.

Top ranking officials declare flatly that such is not contemplated. They say talk of reviving selective service, the current international situation and some misinterpreted Army and Navy circulars probably gave rise to the rumors.

Cow Gets Operation To Remove 4-Inch Wire

Frederick, Md., March 15 (Spl.).—In an unusual operation performed yesterday at the farm of George Flickinger, near Walkersville, a four-inch wire was removed from the stomach of a valuable Holstein cow in the Flickinger herd. The cow is expected to recover. The wire had lodged near the cow's heart and started to penetrate it.

Dr. Donald Lynch, Walkersville veterinarian, performed the operation while the cow stood in her stanchion. An incision of about 12 inches was made in the animal's side, where the surgeon entered the stomach and removed the wire. The operation lasted two hours, and 50 stitches were required to close the cut.

Montgomery Hygiene Group Officers Named

Committee chairmen of the Montgomery County Hygiene Society for the coming year were named yesterday by Mrs. Dexter Bullard, president of the Community Chest agency.

They are Mrs. Frances Bartram, membership; Dr. Rex E. Buxton, technical committee; Mrs. Olcott Deming, finance; Mrs. Barbara Greenfield, by-laws; Judge Alfred D. Noyes, personnel; William Morris, legal and legislative; Byron Sedgwick, publicity, and Mrs. Minnie Hostetler, planning.

Lowell Bowen Named

Leonardtown, Md., March 15 (Spl.).—Lowell Reed Bowen has been elected president of the Calvert County Chapter of the National Honor Society. Other officers are Mary Stevens, Margaret Stevens and Lancaster Knot.

Truman to Address Congress clear that Italy could expect no American help if she went Communist.

"The Communists in Italy have said they don't want the European Recovery Program," said Press Officers Michael J. McDermott, answering reporters' questions on the subject.

Assurances Underlined

"If the Communists should win—which we can't believe will be the case, knowing the spirit and feeling of the Italians—there would be no further question of assistance from the United States."

This underlined assurances given during the recent Senate debate on ERP that American aid could be cut off from any country falling under Communist control. The bill passed by the Senate provides that the Administrator can stop helping any country if he determined that, "because of changed conditions, assistance is no longer consistent with the national interest of the United States."

Senate Passes Bill On Arming Ships

The Senate passed without dissent yesterday a bill saying the Government may arm merchant ships in time of national emergency. The measure now goes to the House.

The old Neutrality Act forbade arming them. At the start of the war, Congress approved arming ships during the emergency but that law is now out of date.

Under the new bill the President could order arming of ships any time he thought it advisable. He would not have to wait for Congress to act.

There was little question last night that the President would deal in his message with the inroads of Communism in Europe, although Congressional leaders professed to have not the slightest idea of what he would say.

Timed With Western Pact

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, President Pro Tem of the Senate, said he had been told nothing about the message except the White House request for a joint meeting tomorrow. Speaker Joseph W. Martin also said he had no advance knowledge of the President's plans, but understood that the President "has some new information on the foreign situation which he wants to give to Congress."

The timing of the President's message coincided with the date fixed for publishing the so-called "western union" agreement, under which Britain, France and the Low Countries agreed at Brussels last week to band together against aggression.

The President was expected to refer to this western European response to Communist pressure, especially if the Brussels agreement contained a request to the United States for military support.

Tight Union Indicated

Undersecretary of State Lovett said two weeks ago that American policy on this subject would have to await the result of the Brussels meeting. At that time he added, significantly, that you can't put a roof on a house until the house is built.

Preliminary reports from Europe have indicated that the "house" has, indeed, been built, and will amount to a union much tighter tha nthe conventional military alliance.

By going to Congress tomorrow, the President will also have an opportunity to say something to influence the crucial Italian elections on April 18. It would be no surprise on Capitol Hill if he appealed again for speed in passing ERP and other pending legislations, t oassure Italy and other European democracies that the United States will help them survive.

With the ERP bill already passed by the Senate, the House Foreign Affairs Committee held three long meetings yesterday—one of them at night—to get its version of the bill ready.

Urgency Is Recognized

At the morning meeting the committee rejected, by 12 to 7, a Democratic plea to report out a European Recovery Bill exactly as passed by the Senate. House leaders previously decided to bring out an omnibus bill combining economic aid to Europe and military aid to Greece, Turkey and China.

The House committee, however, took the Senate E.R.P. bill as the basis of its own "marking-up" process. Chairman Charles A. Eaton said his committee might have a bill ready by Friday, and was "profoundly impressed by the necessity for getting this legislation through at the earliest possible moment."

The message to Congress tomorrow will cause a change in President Truman's timetable for reviewing the St. Patrick's Day parade in New York and delivering a speech there. The President now plans to fly to New York immediately after his speech at the Capitol, but intends to return by train.

Senate Votes Chesapeake Bay Crossing Approval

The Senate yesterday passed the Tydings-O'Conor bill authorizing bridging of Chesapeake Bay with toll structures from Sandy Point to the Eastern Shore opposite Kent Island.

The measure also authorizes construction of a bridge or tunnel across the Patapsco river in the Fairfield area of Baltimore.

The bill now goes to the House.

Sponsored by Senators Millard E. Tydings and Herbert R. O'Conor, (Dems., Md.), the measure permits the State to lump two present toll bridges (Havre de Grace and Morgantown) in financing arrangements for the new construction. Costs would be underwritten in large part by bond issues, and amortized by tolls over a 40-year period.

Craft Work Displayed

A display of Camp Fire Girl equipment and craft work has been placed in the window of the Sherwin-Williams paint store, Wisconsin ave. and Leland st., Bethesda, by Camp Fire Girls from Lynnbrook School. The exhibit is in connection with the thirty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the organization, which is being celebrated this week.

U. S. Opposes Elimination Of U. N. Veto

Lake Success, March 15 (AP).—The United States declared today it is opposed to complete elimination of the veto in the United Nations Security Council.

The United States position was outlined by Philip C. Jessup, American representative in the U. N. Little Assembly. Jessup said this country wants use of the veto drastically restricted by agreement among the big powers, but does not want to abolish it.

He told the Little Assembly the United States feels unanimity of the big powers "is a necessity" in decisions involving enforcement of U. N. decisions. He said the veto also "corressponds to the political realities of the international situation."

He pointed out that abolition of the veto would be virtually impossible anyway, since the U. N. Charter cannot be amended without the unanimous consent of all the big powers.

Russia has insisted she never would agree to elimination of the veto.

The only way to liberalize the votnig procedure, Jessup said, is by consultation among the big powers. He said the United States program, laid before the Little Assembly last week, is designed to initiate a careful study of the whole question in the next General Assembly.

delegates in the work of the conference technical committees.

If adopted this would mark the first time since the war that German politicians would be invited to sit with the victors.

Reflects Softened Policy

The proposal reflected a softening of French foreign policy toward France's traditional enemy. Bidault said:

"If justice and good sense demand that this country (Germany) atone for its immense faults and be guided in a way to prevent its again falling into them, this same justice and this same good sense also demand that the resources of this industrious and persevering nation be associated in the great effort of reconstruction. . . ."

There were reports that Portugal might propose that Spain be included under the Marshall Plan. But there was no word from Portuguese Foreign Minister Jose Caeiro Da Mata.

Conference circles believed the Portuguese first considered bringing the question up but had now all but decided to drop it in view of probable widespread opposition.

The inclusion of western Germany and Spain would spread the European Recovery Program over all of western Europe—right to the demarcation line of the Russian sphere of influence. Russia and her satellites have spurned participation in the Marshall Plan.

Italian Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza held the conference floor while the State Department in Washington served notice that Marshall Plan aid would be withdrawn from Italy if she turns Communist in next month's election.

Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg concluded a 50-year-military, economic and political alliance in Brussels last week. The delegates here looked forward to publication of the Brussels pact scheduled for Wednesday.

Greek Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris said the five-power "Brussels agreement is only a point of departure for a greater organization."

Danish Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen said the Scandinavian countries had decided on greater economic collaboration among themselves "within the framework of the European Recovery Program."

State Secretary Asks Truce on Grievances

Paris, March 15 (NYHT.).—Secretary Pierre Abelin, in a broadcast tonight, pleaded for a four-months truce on grievances against the government. After that, he said, France would be strong enough for any economic and electoral test, but he suggested the country by then would be so far on the road to recovery that many grievances would exist no longer.

The address was a reply to the DeGaullists, who have been demanding new elections and a constitutional referendum.

Britain to Oust Communists, Sympathizers From All Vital Posts to Prevent Treachery

London, March 15 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced in Commons today that all known Communists and Communist sympathizers will be purged from vital government jobs to prevent secrets from leaking out to "another power."

Attlee said he had not forgotten the British Communist Party's attitude during the war years before Germany attacked Russia. There is no way of knowing today, he added, which members are loyal to Britain and which, "if the opportunity were offered would be prepared to endanger the security of the state in the interest of another power."

His speech was interrupted several times by Communist members of Parliament and Laborites who oppose such action. Communist William Gallacher leaped suddenly to his feet in the middle of Attlee's announcement and sang the "Red Flag" anthem. He was shouted down by other legislators and Attlee continued his speech.

[British newspapers estimated unofficially that about 11,000 civil servants would be questioned in an inquiry to begin "immediately," the Associated Press reported.—Editor's Note.]

Observers said they believed the purge might lead to disciplinary action against Labor members of Parliament who have echoed many points of the Communist "line," including opposition to the European Recovery Program. The Labor executive meets March 24, at which time it may caution a few party members, these observers said.

Attlee said the drive would be conducted for security reasons only. Politics will play no part in it, he asserted.

"The same rule will govern the employment of those who are known to be actively associated with Fascist organizations," he explained. "As far as is possible, alternative employment in non-secret government work will be found for persons thus displaced."

Brazilian President Urges Loyalty Law

Rio De Janeiro, March 15 (AP).—President Eurico Gaspar Dutra asked the Brazilian congress today to enact a loyalty law covering all public officeholders. He said his administration would continue to repress Communist activity in Brazil.

Loyalty File Edict Issued

Activities Committee in the Condon case), Jackson wrote:

Prejudice to Usefulness

"Moreover, disclosure of the reports would be of serious prejudice to the future usefulness of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As you probably know, much of this information is given in confidence and can only be obtained upon pledge not to disclose its sources. A disclosure of the sources would embarrass informants—sometimes in their employment, sometimes in their social relations, and in extreme cases might even endanger their lives. We regard the keeping of faith with confidential informants as an indispensable condition of future efficiency.

"Disclosure of information contained in the reports might also be the grossest kind of injustice to innocent individuals. Investigative reports include leads and suspicious, and sometimes even the statements of malicious or misinformed people. Even though later and more complete reports exonerate the individuals, the use of particular or selected report might constitute the grossest injustice, and we all know that a correction never catches up with an accusation."

Costa Rica Fights to Cap Revolution

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 15 (AP).—Government forces marshaled all their strength today in an attempt to stamp out a revolution sweeping through this Central American republic.

The capital was virtually isolated, with three fourths of its power plants blown up. Business came to a standstill. Two plane loads of rural troops arrived at dawn to help defend the city.

The leader of the revolutionary forces is Jose Figueres, who occupies a hidden mountain stronghold, about 45 miles from San Jose.

He broadcast over a secret radio that his forces wiped out half of a government mobile unit sent to oust him. Government sources said their unit, which was trained by the U. S. Army, had captured 11 of Figueres' men.

The radio said government troops sent by water from Puntarenas to flank the revolutionaries met with disaster yesterday. The force was cut to pieces and 20 killed, the radio said.

Broadcasts said revolutionaries were in control of San Isidiro airport, 75 miles southeast of San Jose. The antigovernment forces are reported to have three Taca Airlines DC-3 planes in their possession.

A power plant at Alajuela, 20 miles west of San Jose, was blown up.

Antigovernment sources charged that the government sent an appeal to Gen. Anastasio Samoza, strong man of Nicaragua, for help.

Fall of Key Manchuria City to Communists Reported

Peiping, March 15 (AP).—Fall of Szepingkai to the Communists was acknowledged today by progovernment Chinese press dispatches.

They said the important Manchurian communications hub was taken Saturday after 11 days of heavy fighting in which the garrison of less than 10,000 men sold every inch of ground to the 60,000 attacking Communists.

Government airmen said Szepingkai, battered by repeated warfare for nearly two years, was largely in flames when it fell.

Truman's Subpena Order

The text of President Truman's memorandum ordering Executive Branch officials to reject subpenas for loyalty reports follows:

THE efficient and just administration of the employe loyalty program, under Executive Order No. 9835 of March 21, 1947, requires that reports, records, and files relative to the program be preserved in strict confidence. This is necessary in the interest of our national security and welfare, to preserve the confidential character and sources of information furnished, and to protect Government personnel against the dissemination of unfounded or disproved allegations. It is necessary also in order to insure the fair and just disposition of loyalty cases.

For these reasons, and in accordance with the long-established policy that reports rendered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other investigative agencies of the Executive Branch are to be regarded as confidential, all reports, records, and files relative to the loyalty of employes or prospective gemployes (including reports of such investigative agencies), shall be maintained in confidence, and shall not be transmitted or disclosed except as required in the efficient conduct of business.

ANY subpena or demand or request for information, reports, or files of the nature described, received from sources other than those persons in the Executive Branch of the Government who are entitled thereto by reason of their official duties, shall be respectfully declined, on the basis of this directive, and the subpena or demand or other request shall be referred to the Office of the President for such response as the President may determine to be in the public interest in the particular case. There shall be no relaxation of the provisions of this directive except with my express authority.

This directive shall be published in the Federal Register.

Blast Kills 4, Injures 45 in Louisville Plant

Louisville, Ky., March 15 (AP).—An unexplained explosion at the Internatoinal Harvester Co. farm equipment manufacturing plant here today killed 4 men, injured 45 and did extensive damage.

The blast came just as the day shift was replacing the night shift in a 150-by-75-foot brick and steel building used for testing engines made in the main plant nearby.

The explosion virtually demolished the testing building, damaged the main plant and other structures, hurled men and machines through the air and shook large sections of Louisville.

Battle Dead In Palestine Placed at 36

Jerusalem, March 15 (AP).—Jews and Arabs battled fiercely today in arid southern Palestine with 36 already reported killed.

The battle in southern Palestine was in its third day, with Haganah informants reporting 28 Arabs and eight Jews killed. Other scattered violence brought to 1780 the unofficial death toll since the United Nations decision on partition last November 29.

Haganah, the militia of the Jewish Agency, said its forces had driven a wedge to the aid of the beleaguered settlement of Gath.

In the drive, Jewish fighters blasted 10 buildings in the Arab village of Falujah, including the municipal and postoffice buildings, Jewish sources said.

Meantime, the British announced they were moving troops out of the country fast enough to complete withdrawal on August 1.

Already moved out were 145,000 tons of stores, including 2000 tons of ammunition and 1800 vehicles. The army destroyed 1500 tons of ammunition.

The foreign consuls in Jerusalem issued a statement saying they had again called the attention of their governments to the "serious situation which is now preventing normal discharge of their duties" in the Holy Land.

Arabs, Jews Queried on Truce Plan

New York, March 15 (AP).—The big powers asked Arabs and Jews today if they would accept a truce in Palestine.

The Arabs Higher Committee, spokesman for Palestine Arabs, again categorically rejected the United Nations plan to partition the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab nations.

The direct appeal for the truce then was made to the Arab Higher Committee and to the Jewish Agency, the official organization for a Jewish national homeland, which supports partition.

Effort At Salvage

The big powers decided to seek the cease-fire agreement in last-minute efforts to salvage something out of 10 days of parleys. The Security Council meanwhile postponed a scheduled meeting on the Palestine question at Lake Success from today until tomorrow to give the parties time to answer.

Delegates of the United States, Russia, China and France will meet again tomorrow and then report to the council at Lake Success. Britain has boycotted the big powers' meetings on the grounds that she can't support partition.

Gromyko Doesn't Object

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrie A. Gromyko, who opposes mediation efforts at this stage, took no part in the truce discussion. However, he did not oppose the move.

The big powers acted after hearing Isa Nakhleh, representative of the Arab Higher Committee. His appearance marked the first time since the U. N. Assembly's decision on partition last November 29 that the Arabs have taken part in U. N. discussions on the plan.

$11,000 Bail Set For Defendant ni Vicious Rape Case

In "one of the most vicious rape cases of the District," a 22-year-old man was yesterday placed under $11,000 bail for his alleged crimes.

The defendant, Aaron F. Rogers, of 247 W st. nw., was arrested Saturday on complaint of a 26-year-old housewife. She said she was raped by Rogers and each of his four companions after he forced her into a truck Saturday afternoon at 4th and I sts. nw.

Prosecutor J. Warren Wilson, Assistant District Attorney, who characterized the case as one of the worst in District history, said the attacks occurred during a continuous ride over District streets. The housewife, her parents, and a sister also gave police a pistol which they said Rogers had.

Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn set high bond at preliminary hearing on charges of rape and carrying a deadly weapon. Rogers will be arraigned today with two of his alleged companions, police said. The other two are still being sought.

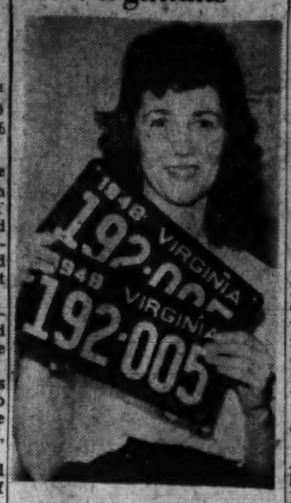
New Auto Tags For Virginians



The Washington Post

Va. Motorists Form Tag Lines

Long lines of motorists formed in nearby Virginia yesterday as 1948 auto license tags went on sale.

Daniel R. Stansbury, license agent for Alexandria, reported 549 licenses sold during the first seven hours the agency was open. He said the agency in the court house sold between 500 and 750 tags each day during the one-month period of sales last year and said he expected the rate to be about the same this year.

In Fairfax, Walter T. Oliver, Mr., local agent for the State Division of Motor Vehicles, said motorists were lined up in his office across from the courthouse all day. He estimated the total sold on the first day would reach 300. Oliver, who handled the rush alone, said he expected to sell 6000 licenses during the month.

Heaviest sales were expected at Arlington, where licensing was handled at the new Division of Motor Vehicles branch office at South 5th st. and Glebe rd., and at auxiliary agencies at Greenwood Sales and Service, 4505 Lee hghwy., and Crockett's Service, Wilson blvd. and Barton st.

J. J. Shelton, manager of the Potomac branch office of DMV, said he had five extra people handling the Arlington rush. He said there had been as many as 250 motorists waiting for tags inside and outside of the office all day. Shelton said he expected sales this year to set a record.

Present license tags expire April 15. Hours at the three Virginia licensing agencies are Alexandria, 9-4 daily, 9-12 Saturday; Arlington, 9-5 daily, 9-1 Saturday, Fairfax, 9-5 daily, 9-1 Saturday.

Music Club to Meet

The Alexandria Music Club will meet at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the music room of George Washington High School, Alexandria. Mrs. W. E. Franklin, State president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, will install newly elected officers.

Elderly Man Shoots Down N. Y. Youths

New York, March 15 (U.P.).—An elderly and demented man, a pistol in each hand, opened fire on a crowd of high school students on a busy street corner today. Before he was captured after a wild mob chase, he killed one student and wounded five.

The berserk gunman, identified as Marco L. Markovitch, 56, ran after shooting at 'teen-aged boys outside an armory where they had been watching their band and 400 other fellow-students practice for the St. Patrick's Day parade. The dead boy, Thomas Brady, 16, was about to grapple with the gunman when he was hit.

A shouting crowd, quickly augmented by dozens of policemen, took up the chase. Markovitch dashed into an apartment building. After exchanging several shots, police overpowered him outside the fifth-floor apartment of a 96-year-old woman who was standing terrified behind the door.

Court of Appeals Rules War Ended When U. S. Foes Quit

World War II—in the "grim sense of reality"—ended for this country with the unconditional surrender of all enemy forces, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

In so deciding, the Court of Appeals ruled against the New York Life Insurance Co. in favor of Mrs. Betty A. Stinson of 4069 Minnesota ave. ne., reversed a decision of District Court Justice James W. Morris, and remanded the case to District Court for further proceedings.

The suit was based on a war exclusion clause contained in a $10,000 insurance policy issued November 24, 1942, to Mrs. Stinson's late husband, Maj. Jack L. Stinson.

Killed in Fall

Major Stinson, who was attached to the Army Quartermaster Corps, died November 2, 1945, after accidentally falling from a window of the Hotel du Nord in Reims, France.

When Mrs. Stinson, as beneficiary, filed claim for the $10,000 the insurance company replied it was liable only for a "restricted amount" of $880.59, representing premiums paid plus interest.

The company argued that the policy contained a clause that only the restricted amount would be paid if the person insured met death overseas while "in the military or naval forces of any country engaged in war."

Fighting at End

At the time of Maj. Stinson's death, hostilities had ceased, but there had been no proclamation by the United States officially terminating the war.

District Court Justice Morris ruled in the fall of 1946 that even though a shooting war did not exist at the time of the major's death, the country was still officially at war, so the clause held good.

The Court of Appeals, in an opinion written by Justice Bennett Champ Clark and concurred in by Justices Henry W. Edgerton and Wilbur K. Miller, declared a "state of war" differs from the common understanding of the time when the country ceases to be "engaged in war."

"In the 'grim sense of reality' and in common understanding, this country was no longer engaged in war on October 2, 1945, a date subsequent to the unconditional surrender of all the enemy forces opposing this country and its allies in World War II," the Court ruled.

Budget Surplus Tops 5 Billions For New Record

The Government's budget surplus climbed to $5,076,475,494.60 yesterday.

It was the first time in history that Government income has exceeded its spending by five billion dollars, even for a temporary period.

But the surplus is yet only two-thirds as large as President Truman predicts it will be when this fiscal year ends June 30.

Chief reason for the big surplus is the record flow of tax collections.

These reached a climax at midnight last night, the deadline for 55 million tax payers to file final 1947 income tax returns.

Also responsible is a decrease in Government spending from last fiscal year, which ended with an excess of 754 million dollars.

The record surplus figure for a full fiscal year is about $1,155,000,000. It was set 21 years ago in the Coolidge administration.

LOWLY JALOPY—Judge George D. Neilson said yesterday it ought to be against the law to sell a thing like this. Park Policeman James J. Lyons examines the chain which is supposed to bind the gas tank to this 1929 Essex

Auto Dealer Hit for Sale Of Unsafe Car

Used car dealers who sell unsafe jalopies should lose their trading licenses, declared Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson here yesterday.

Obviously angered by testimony of the condition of a 1929 coupe so freshly sold it still ran on dealers' tags Judge Neilson yesterday excused its buyers, two Howard University premedical students, as victims of "an unscrupulous fleecing."

Prosecutor Philip Brophy, assistant Corporation Counsel, later summoned the car dealer to a hearing next Monday in Corporation Counsel offices "to determine ownership responsibility."

The car, according to motor vehicle inspecors' testimony, had faulty hand and foot brakes, improper lights, no bumpers. Furthermore, said the inspectors, the gas tank was attached to the car's frame only by a chain and the motor supports were weak.

Park Policeman James J. Lyons halted the vehicle March 1 on Constitution ave. at 23d st. He charged Cornell Newton, 21, of 5546 Bass pl. se., with operating an unsafe vehicle. Newton's roommate, Forrest W. Thomas, 25, was charged with permitting operation of an unsafe vehicle.

Thomas told the court yesterday he bought the coupe on February 27 from the Atlantic Motor Co., 4447 Benning rd. ne., for $95. He said he paid $50 down in borrowed cash, and was unaware of the faults found by the inspectors.

Prosecutor Brophy later told reporters he had summoned a representative of the Atlantic Motor Co. for the special hearing next Monday.

French Coal Miners Return to Work

Paris, March 15 (NYHT).—All but a few of the 30,000 coal miners who engaged in a two-day "warning strike" in northern France returned to their jobs today. Their purpose, according to union leaders, was to warn the government that more pay was needed to offset inflationary prices and to protest against the removal of Communists from important positions in the state-owned coal mining industry.

'Local Option' Rent Control Debate Underway in House

that "in some cases the local boards are stacked," but he said that is the fault of State Governors who dominate them.

Wolcott said the local boards should include tenants, landlords and the public generally.

Representative Monroney (D., Okla.) announced he will offer an amendment today to strike out the "local option" provision and retain some authority in the hands of the Federal Rent Administration.

Provision "Amazing"

Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) told the House the local board provision "is the most amazing piece of legislation I have ever seen. The local boards can do anything they want to do, under this bill, without supervision by any Federal officer or any State officials.

"It's a complete abdication by Congress."

With the "local option" provision, the House bill would extend rent controls to April 1, 1949. The Senate has voted to prolong controls to May 1, 1949. It defeated the "local option" provision.

Congress was asked, meanwhile, for a two-billion-dollar increase in the Government's authority to insure mortgages on new home construction.

Raymond M. Foley, Federal Housing finance administrator, told the House Banking Committee the big boost in insurance is needed to battle the housing shortage.

Momentum Held Key

Wolcott told the House "if we keep the momentum of home construction going for the next 10 months we will have solved the housing problem in all areas outside of the big metropolitan cities."

The Banking Committee, which approved the bill 13 to 3 last week, split in three directions yesterday. While a majority still supported the committee bill, blocs of Republicans and Democrats—for different reasons—assailed the form of the legislation.

Six committee Democrats filed a minority report saying the measure would weaken rent control and might mean rent hikes up to 50 per cent in some localities. Besides, they said, constitutionality of the "local option" provision is doubtful.

Four Banking Committee Republicans protested what they called "political control over rents." They said removal of controls would make available immediately upward of two million or more living quarters, where tenants now are occupying too much space under rent-control protection.

posed to the "voluntary" 15 per cent increase plan.

Senate District Committee Counsel James R. Kirkland explained that the bill is still subject to change to fit it closer to whatever national rent control extension bill finally is passed by Congress. Termination dates for national and District rent control are to be made the same, he said.

Kirkland stated decontrol may be applied also to rooms for transients to tourist homes.

To allow ample time for action on the main District rent control extension bill, Senator Buck's subcommittee also approved a 30-day stopgap extension of the present act. The present act expires March 31.

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) introduced a similar stop-gap rent bill for the District in the House.

In earlier hearings, Cogswell cited requests for large rents on "converted" apartments obtained by minor remodeling of houses. He said owners of some "makeshift" apartments had asked higher rents than a regular apartment building would get for the same number of rooms.

Cogswell declared that if converted housing were decontrolled "in six months you might just as well throw your act out of the window as far as comparability is concerned."

Cogswell emphasized yesterday that the local rent law is based on the idea of comparability—the same rent for the same general type of housing accommodations in the same area. He added that he is now willing to "hope for the best" on the decontrol of converted housing, rather than lose all control for the District.

Senator Cain explained his plan for the voluntary 15 per cent provision would call for taking housing out of control if landlords and tenants agree on a lease carrying up to 15 per cent rental increases, and extending at least to the end of 1949.

Senator Hoey to Speak

Senator Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.) will address the banquet of the Annandale Businessmen's Association tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the Annandale Methodist Chruch. He will be introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

Toothless

Virtually the only remaining resemblance between genuine rent control and what is provided in the "extension" bill brought forth by the House Banking and Currency Committee is in the name. The House committee seems to have seized upon the weaknesses in the bill passed by the Senate and set out to enlarge them. The most serious is the proviso whereby local boards would be given almost complete authority to raise or decontrol rents irrespective of recommendations of the Housing Expediter. This is only a subtle way of saying that the rent control "extension" is no control at all. We agree with the protest of Representative Monroney: "It is the most sweeping and radical change ever made in rent controls . . . In effect it grants Federal powers to local boards without any real standards. It could lead to evictions for hundreds of thousands of tenants and raise rents of millions."

In nullifying the authority of the Housing Expediter to approve or reject local rent increases, the bill would remove the last vestige of a unified approach to the housing emergency. For even the most conscientious of local rent control boards would be left to flounder in a sea of contentions without any guideposts for its action. Moreover, such a condition is almost tailor-made for domination by property interests. Indeed, this is precisely what has happened already in some areas, and the only saving grace is the veto now held by the Housing Expediter. Not only would the House bill knock out this veto, but it also would make a complete farce of rent control enforcement.

This is a case in which the theoretical desirability of local autonomy is outweighed by a host of practical objections, the principal of which is the field day it would provide for the organized campaigns of the real estate boards. For there is no more logic in opening the door to discrimination against all tenants than there is in regarding all landlords as a group of money-grabbers. In point of fact, the purpose of rent control is to strike a mean and protect the essential interests of both sides in an emergency situation which Congress, in its failure to enact positive housing legislation, has done precious little to alleviate. We hope that members of the House anxious to represent all their constituents will reject the one-sided effort of their committee and establish a balance. They could do this by accepting the Senate rent control bill as a basis and concentrating on broadening appeal procedures on behalf of landlords and strengthening enforcement provisions on behalf of tenants.

Southern Challenge

With six Southern Governors joining in a concerted move to swing the electoral votes of their States away from President Truman, the seriousness of the revolt of the South against the present leadership of the Democratic Party can no longer be doubted. The Virginia Legislature appears to have shown the way by which Southern votes can be legally diverted from the President. If the temperament of the people in the South is comparable to that of their leaders, the revolt may be very costly to President Truman in November.

We greatly deplore this splintering tendency in the face of the world crisis. It is a time, as we have said in another connection, for pulling together and not for splitting apart. Every good American ought to be cultivating unity to give our institutions further strength in this time of challenge. Yet it cannot be said that the fault lies wholly with the Southern Democratic leaders. The President had come to take their support for granted. He had put them down as ciphers in the formulation of policy in the important field of civil rights while counting on their full support on election day. That sort of treatment was bound to produce a sharp reaction at the first opportunity, and apparently that opportunity is at hand.

The Southern Governors have now gone so far as to favor "a caucus of the presidential and vice presidential electors of the Southern States so that they can take concerted action in the electoral college if necessary." Here is an open bid to take the election of the President out of the hands of the people and lodge that power, so far as the South is concerned, in its leading politicians. This is a threat of deep concern to citizens everywhere. And it is a threat that cannot be countered merely by pleading for unity and harmony within the Democratic Party. We think, as we have previously observed, that it points to the imperative necessity of amending the Constitution so as to give the people a direct voice in the selection of the President and to restore competition among the rival candidates, even in the Solid South.

Loyalty Reports

There was urgent need for just the sort of simple, straightforward directive President Truman issued yesterday to executive branch employes, forbidding them to surrender files relative to the loyalty program without his express authority. Lacking this directive executive officials were in danger of being bullied or overawed into permitting a most dangerous usurpation of power by arrogant congressional committees. No doubt there will still be blustering demands from the Thomases, Rankins, Hoffmans and Busbeys on Capitol Hill. But the more sober and responsible members of the legislature will know very well that there is an abundance of precedent and of constitutional authorization to back up the President's position.

Every consideration of common sense backs it up as well, of course. The loyalty program would be meaningless if suspect employes were to be tried in newspapers and before congressional committees—stigmatized publicly in advance of any hearing. Confidential information and valuable sources would be disclosed to the serious impairment of essential security. The operations of the FBI would be gravely embarrassed and impeded. Information genuinely necessary to the proper functioning of congressional committees should, to be sure, be furnished willingly and expeditiously by the executive branch of the Government. But in view of some of the recent outrageous demands by legislative groups, the President is altogether right in insisting that he be the judge of what is to be submitted to them in this delicate and important realm.

Russian Bread Lines

Dislocation of retail distribution is said to be responsible for the long bread lines before food stores in Moscow and elsewhere in Russia. We strongly suspect, however, that the real explanation of those bread lines is to be found in recent currency and price changes and the abolition of ration cards for food. True, the government called in old ruble issues last December, giving each holder of 10 of the old notes only a single new ruble note in exchange; hence the amount of money in circulation has been greatly reduced. However, the government introduced at the same time a new price system described as a compromise between the prices formerly charged in ration stores and in nonration stores.

In case of bread and flour the new prices are about 12 per cent below previous ration prices, while the prices of meats, sugar and some other foods are kept at the level of ration prices. Since current wages and salaries are being paid in new rubles at the same rate as old rubles, most of the city workers are really better off than they were before the currency reform became effective. That is, their current wages and salaries will enable them to buy more foodstuffs of certain kinds; and their outlays for clothing and footwear will also be reduced, since most of these articles had to be bought formerly in nonrationed stores at prices about three times as high as those recently established. The people who stand to lose under this new system are the peasants, who will receive much less money from food sold in the open market.

Despite conversion of cash holdings into new money at the 10 to 1 rate, large amounts of cash remain in the possession of the public as well as savings deposits (converted into the new currency at varying rates). Paul A. Baran, whose study of Currency Reform in the USSR appears in the March issue of the Harvard Business Review, estimates that there are about 25 billions of these new ruble holdings or hoards (in addition, of course, to the money received currently in the form of wages and salaries) "chasing after goods." Under the circumstances, it is not at all surprising to hear that Russians are queuing up before food stores.

Unless Russia has an abundance of food ready for distribution, the almost inevitable result of suddenly abandoning rationing restrictions and simultaneously announcing official price schedules that actually encourage increased buying, will be sell-outs; or, as the Russians prefer to put it, dislocation of retail distribution. Whether that dislocation is merely the result of a passing pressure of demand that causes immediately accessible stocks to vanish or a clean-out of reserves as well is not indicated. That is the really important question. For if the Russians are eating up their reserve food stocks faster than they can be replenished, they will have to take back some of the benefits they have bestowed on the city workers under the new system of pricing without rationing.

Retrograde Step

For good and sufficient reasons Congress recently empowered the Government to use price criteria in granting export licenses. That has made it possible for the Office of International Trade to prepare the way for wider competition in the export trade, and abandon the policy of reserving the bulk of export quotas for established exporting firms. Not only does the change of policy afford protection against the profiteering in scarce commodities that in some instances had resulted in the mulcting of foreign buyers, it affords new and efficient exporting firms an opportunity to compete for foreign business.

Nevertheless, protests from various groups affected by the new procedure have resulted in approval by the House Banking and Currency Committee of a bill that would repeal the authority to use price criteria in the licensing of exports. If that bill were to become law, the OIT gives warning that it will have to return to the former so-called historical method of allocating export quotas—a system that has been rightly regarded as preventing new firms from competing on an equal basis with established exporting concerns. Francis McIntyre, Assistant Director of OIT, also warns that abandonment of price criteria might necessitate resort to Government procurement of goods for export (in connection, presumably, with foreign aid programs) as a means of protecting the taxpayers' money. In other words, elimination of price criteria would open the doors to a form of export profiteering that might seriously jeopardize the success of the Marshall Plan, or at best reduce its efficacy, by boosting the prices of scarce goods bought for export with funds provided by the American people.

Security Council

What specific action the Security Council can take in regard to the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia is by no means clear. The overturn of the government at Prague was not a case of open aggression. Moscow moved secretly and brought about the desired result through Czech citizens who already held powerful positions in the government. The Czechs offered no armed resistance. Admittedly this "Trojan horse" technique is difficult for the United Nations to deal with, and in any event effective action could be blocked by the Russian veto.

We think that the United States is following the right course, nevertheless, in supporting the Chilean demand for an airing of the coup at Prague. Charges that Moscow engineered the overturn first came from Dr. Jan Papanek, the Czech Ambassador, now disavowed by the Communist regime in his country. Those charges are buttressed by world-wide knowledge of the Stalinists' operations in countries outside Russia. The Security Council could not remain silent and inactive in the face of such a challenge without defeating the purpose it was created to serve. Indeed, Article 34 of the Charter seems tailor-made to fit this situation. It provides:

> The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

What the Security Council can do is to turn the light on the events leading up to the coup in Czechoslovakia in the interest of giving citizens and officials everywhere a clearer understanding of the Moscow menace. Whether or not concealed aggression can be proved cannot be known until more factual information is at hand. But it is of first importance to have the Security Council take up the challenge in an active way. By doing so it may set a precedent for inquiry into Communist machinations in Italy and other European countries—machinations which seem to be leading ever closer to the brink of war—and perhaps frustrate their success.

French Manpower

Official figures of French manpower losses in World War II in dead, wounded and missing are estimated to total between 700,000 and 800,000 persons, as compared with more than six million World War I casualties. A spokesman for the Veterans' Affairs Ministry, M. Mallan, moreover, states that 598,000 of the 820,000 persons removed from France by the Germans have returned home. All but 40,000 of the 600,000 Frenchmen drafted into labor battalions are back, and about 35,000 of the 100,000 political deportees. However, only a pitiful handful of the 120,000 racial deportees, mostly non-French Jewish refugees, have returned.

These figures are cited by M. Mallan in refutation of charges that France's manpower losses have seriously retarded recovery. He asserts that these losses are a minor factor, the major causes of the post-war crisis being attributable to the moral effect of defeat and occupation, economic stagnation during the occupation period, and physical damage to the nation's resources.

The gratifyingly low casualty figures give weight to this opinion, and also brighten the outlook for rapid economic recovery. For it appears that France has not, as is sometimes mistakenly assumed, been permanently or even seriously weakened by decimation of her labor force. Material losses given the will to work, can be made good, with some outside assistance. But the French know from bitter experience in the first world war that the loss of millions of men in the prime of life weakens a nation, not for years, but for decades.

TAXES

In Washington men pay their taxes,
On motor cars and battleaxes,
On stately homes with all their splendors,
On furniture and pink suspenders.
The burden ever greater waxes;
There's no variety of taxes
That doesn't hit the stricken city
And make it look around for pity.
And Washington would dig the money
And wear a smile serene and sunny,
And show a host of cheerful faces
If she could vote like other places.
But Uncle Sam, he says: "No never!
Let digging up be your endeavor;
And do not knock with busy mallet
Because you cannot have the ballot.
"You should be glad to dig the boodle,
And whoop around for Yankee Doodle,
Sound loyalty to me denoting
Without a bughouse wish for voting."
From Washington men go to battle,
Where mortars pop and sabres rattle;
They go from shanty and from manor
And wave aloft our spangled banner,
And offer all they have for Freedom,
And when they go we cry, "God speed 'em!"
When they come back, their laurels toting,
And ask to do their share of voting,
We say, Gee whiz! Such talk is treason!
Now boys, ask anything in reason,
And you will not be rendered goatless—
But Washington is always voteless."

'Intellectual Imperialism'

The apparent intent of your March 10 editorial, "Intellectual Imperialism," on Mr. William T. Couch's criticisms of the recent resolution of the American Textbook Publishers Institute is soundly humanitarian. It carries, however, certain very erroneous and damaging implications which should be corrected.

Mr. Couch does an injustice to the American Textbook Publishers Institute in implying that their resolution urging that scientific, technical and educational books be included in our Government's plans for economic aid to the devastated countries is motivated by commercial considerations or reflects "intellectual imperialism." I know of many outright gifts by leading American publishers of books marketable in the United States in response to urgent requests from abroad, contributed through reputable American organizations cooperating with our commission (the CIER) to aid in educational reconstruction.

These gifts were made without any thought of publicity and with no expectation of gain. The dollar shortage has virtually eliminated a foreign market which has never been profitable to the publishers of textbooks.

I agree entirely with Mr. Couch and the author of your editorial that "American culture and learning cannot be extended through power politics." But it is hard to see what this has to do with the textbook publishers' resolution. This resolution merely urges that books have a place in the Marshall Plan. A realistic Marshall Plan must include books and other training assistance to permit these countries to help themselves.

Visiting recently a dozen European countries on missions to or on behalf of UNESCO, I found that technical and professional books in the English language, literature, and even modern textbooks are literally worth their weight in gold. Students, teachers and other professional and technical people deprived of contact with their fields during the war years read, reread, review, excerpt and quote them to an extent undreamed of in this country. Several million contributed books and periodicals have already been sent through the American Book Center, Library of Congress, by American organizations, institutions and individuals for forwarding to the devastated countries.

To provide books and other materials which the devastated countries request to aid them in reconstruction is not intellectual imperialism, but is simply enlightened self-interest and good common sense.

Truman's Place

In your issue of March 4, Mr. Walter Lippmann, under the caption "Truman as Roosevelt Successor," states, among other things:

"The rhyme and reason of the fourth term was that President Roosevelt was indispensable in his role of Commander in Chief and peacemaker. The Democratic managers believed that Mr. Roosevelt could not be replaced. They did not feel called upon to decide whether their own candidate for Vice President was qualified to replace him. . . . After one unhappy and uncomfortable attempt at the Potsdam Conference in July, 1945, to do what Roosevelt had been reelected to do, Mr. Truman gave up the effort to be his replacement. He gave up the steering wheel and settled down to do the rest of his driving from the back seat."

Any man, like Mr. Lippmann, who feels under compulsion to fill a column every day, must get caught occasionally in a web of contradictions. Mr. Lippmann can hardly be expected to remember an article he wrote on April 17, 1945, in which he said:

"Harry S. Truman was nominated at Chicago last July by a convention which was fully aware that it was almost certainly choosing a President of the United States. There was no secret about this during the campaign . . . He is where he is today because of all the men available he was deemed best fitted to be Roosevelt's successor."

Mr. Lippmann evidently forgets all this. If the convention which nominated Mr. Truman for Vice President was "fully aware that it was almost certainly choosing a President of the United States," then the death of Mr. Roosevelt some six months after his election cannot be regarded as unexpected. Moreover, how are we to reconcile Mr. Lippmann's statement of April 17, 1945, that Mr. Truman was chosen "because of all the men available he was deemed best fitted to be Roosevelt's successor," with his statement of March 4, 1948, that "Mr. Truman is President because Mr. Wallace was regarded as a liability in a campaign for a fourth term—as a candidate who would hold no voters that Roosevelt would not hold and would alienate many whom Roosevelt could otherwise attract"?

Maryland Fare Case

On March 5, The Washington Post reported that on the previous night I had addressed a meeting of the Prince Georges County Civic Federation with reference to the proposed fare increase of the Capital Transit Co. This is erroneous, since I was not even present at the meeting.

The paragraph concerning my alleged statement to the meeting follows another paragraph which gives the impression that my fee for services in the Maryland fare case was to be measured by a "door-to-door solicitation" of funds and that I was participating in such solicitation. This is also erroneous. Although it was evident that the transportation committee would have to raise funds from those who stood to benefit by my services, it was clearly understood, from the very beginning, that I would not directly or indirectly participate in the solicitation of funds.

GREGORY HANKIN.

Editor's Note: Mr. Hankin was not present at the meeting and The Washington Post did not mean to give the impression he was soliciting funds for work he has done. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Church Alteration

Thank you for the column and pictures of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church concerning its rebuilding in The Washington Post of March 5. However, unless you have already corrected the figure, Robert Tate Allan made an error that should be called to your attention. The membership of the church is 1800. Our present sanctuary seats 1100, though when it was built in Abraham Lincoln's time, there was no balcony and the seating capacity was much smaller. The new church will not hold our entire membership, but only 1500.

Palestine Policy

In his letter of March 10, Alfred M. Lilienthal rubs salt into the agonizing wounds of American Zionists, who have labored for years toward the realization of a Jewish homeland in Palestine.

It is a bitter experience to the reversal of policy on Palestine within the State Department, as evidenced in the back-tracking speech that was handed to Senator Austin to be delivered before the Security Council. But it is far more bitter to see someone who in all sincerity uses a series of half-truths and lame syllogisms to justify his benighted prejudices.

Partition, as Mr. Lilienthal himself points out, is a United Nations plan. It is a compromise solution in the best traditions of international diplomacy, following the recommendation of successive committees of experts appointed to study the problems of the strife-torn Holy Land. Since it is neither a Jewish solution nor an Arab solution, none but the most naive premised its creation by peaceful means and the coexistence of a Jewish state and an Arab state "bound together in economic unity by a customs union."

The latter, to be sure, is a goal toward the consummation of which all men of good will should strive together, but it is of the very essence of a compromise that all parties to it must make some adjustment in their original bargaining position for the sake of the common good. When compromise is applied to a power conflict, it should be obvious to all concerned that power may be necessary to make it stick.

Mr. Lilienthal certainly must know that it takes more than a plan to make a program, that the implementation of a compromise plan generally calls for police sanctions, and that only confusion results from labeling an objective of a program as its premise. Nor does it clarify matters to charge that the plan to partition Palestine "has proved unworkable" when it has yet to be tested, and when no one can say for certain what the ultimate policy of the United States Government will be.

Reduced to its simplest terms, the basic premise of the United Nations partition plan is that there are in Palestine two groups of persons with inconsistent aspirations. Since there is no solution that will leave both groups happy, a solution must be found that will yield to each group the maximum in terms of its own aspirations and at the same time leave a minimal area of conflict. Obviously, such a compromise must be enforced from without, for it involves mutual sacrifices on the part of persons passionately devoted to their inconsistent aspirations.

When it comes to Zionist strategy, Mr. Lilienthal makes his own interpretations and thereupon calls them "evident"; but it might not be amiss to remind that Zionism is no secret philosophy. Its doctrines and its history are readily available for consultation in any fairly decent library.

Finally, I should like to point out that many men of unquestionable patriotism, including Messrs. Taft, Barkley, Dewey, and Welles, believe that partition is fully compatible with the military security of our Nation. No school of thought on that subject has a monopoly on patriotism. I have no particular objection to a continuing survey of the relationship between partition and the military security of the United States because I am one of those who believes—Messrs. Forrestal and Loy Henderson to the contrary notwithstanding—that a secure belt of Jewry in Palestine would provide an important defense (much more important than Arabian oil) against further incursions from the East. The case against partition on the ground of military security has yet to be proved.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Italian Communists

NOW THAT the Senate has approved the European Recovery Program by an overwhelming majority, quick action in the House is imperative. If the Republican leadership really wanted speed, the recovery bill for Europe could pass the House without difficulty this week.

Unfortunately, China, Greece, Turkey and other explosive matters have been tied up with the vital issue of European aid. April 10 is discussed as a target date for final agreement. That may be too optimistic in view of the fact that the House measure, with the new and irrelevant features added, will have to go back to the Senate for ratification there.

Whether action by April 10 can affect the outcome of the Italian elections on April 18 is highly debatable. This is literally the eleventh hour. James A. Farley, who knows quite a lot about elections, has said that nothing that happens in the last two or three weeks of a campaign can change any substantial number of votes.

It is time to look candidly at the Communist strategy in Italy and to recognize that the approach by outwardly legal means through the ballot box is the most difficult of all to combat. The large and highly organized Communist Party in Italy is a powerful instrument of Russian foreign policy. The party is immediately responsive to Soviet desires but the wires are pulled and the aid is furnished in secret behind the cloak of legality.

When I was in Italy last fall, the strategy of the ballot box seemed to me clearly marked out. There were irresponsible predictions, made in the United States, of a Communist revolution to come before Christmas. But all the signs pointed to the opposite.

AT THAT time Communist leaders were predicting that they would get more than half the votes in the spring elections. They were hoping that American aid through the winter would be less than it has been and that cold and hunger would make converts.

While they have had some checks, we can be certain of one thing—ceaseless effort pointing to that election date. How much help has come from Russia no one can say. One diplomatic source puts the Communist election fund at two billion lire, a large part of it in gold from Moscow.

Consider Soviet timing. A month ago the Russians declared in favor of Italian trusteeship for the colonies in Africa that Italy lost through her defeat.

That declaration happened to violate an agreement that the Soviet Union had entered into with Great Britain, France and the United States. A United Nations commission was appointed to survey the problem of Italian colonies and the four powers had agreed to wait on the findings of the commission.

In the United States State Department there was indignation at Russia's action. But the Soviets knew perfectly well the value of this announcement two months before Italians would go to the polls. Since the United Nations agreement did not serve their purposes, they did not live up to it.

There is no sign of any action from the State Department on the Italian colonies even though this country two years ago officially favored the position now taken by Russia. We are apparently waiting on the decision of the U. N. commission.

WHAT HAPPENS if the Communists, together with their Socialist allies, get a majority of the votes in a more or less honest election? If the right-wing parties represented in the present government refuse to recognize this fact, then their position before the world is certainly not a strong one. And the grounds for any kind of United States intervention would be doubtful.

Italy illustrates very well the American handicap. The task in the nearly three years since VE-Day was to win the Socialists away from the Communists. The United States foreign service was not geared to that task. Here at home Socialists and Communists are too often lumped together, and the Socialists, who should be our friends, forced into the camp of the enemy.

Too often in recent weeks the European Recovery Program has been talked about as though it were a kind of bribe through which the United States would buy the votes of Europeans. That was not the concept of Secretary of State George C. Marshall last June. It was put forward as a dynamic program for the reconstruction of Europe—a working partnership for rebuilding a free world.

That is the concept which must be kept before us. As a bribe, the program is bound to fail; a failure which some people seem not only to anticipate but desire.

Realistic military power is essential to show that the United States means to back up the stand it has taken. But in the long pull military power cannot win the contest with the Soviet Union. This is the theme of a remarkably useful little book which has just appeared—How to Stop the Russians Without War, by Fritz Sternberg. With great conciseness and clarity, the author shows how the attraction of the United States must be that of a dynamic democracy supporting the forces of progress throughout the world and demonstrating how the Soviet Union actually stands for reaction everywhere. The truth of this needs to be driven home now.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

A National Emergency

THE RUSSIANS always know well in advance what we think we might have to do, whether we are going to do it, how and when and if we shall in fact do it. It is a great advantage to have your opponent telegraph all his punches.

Lippmann

The Russians have had nearly a full year's notice to prepare their reaction to the Marshall Plan. They have had plenty of time to realize that as the plan took shape, it would not only tend to unite western Europe but that it would exercise a powerful attraction upon eastern Europe — particularly upon Czechoslovakia, in considerable measure upon Poland, and to some degree also on Yugoslavia.

ALTHOUGH the Soviet government has expressed the utmost hostility to the European Recovery Program, its own plan of action against it is only now being disclosed. We have assumed that it was relying on strikes and political disorder to frustrate the recovery which the Marshall Plan was designed to promote. But it is now reasonably clear that Russia made a more serious estimate of the power of the Marshall Plan, that it realized it would be adopted, that as it was being adopted it would tend to consolidate a large part of Europe against Russia, and that she would in the end be confronted with disaffection in eastern Europe and an ever-increasing pressure to withdraw from Europe.

Some time last summer the Russians appear to have reached the decision that they could forestall their impending defeat in Europe by resorting to military measures—of which the seizure of Czechoslovakia and the military absorption of Finland are the first two installments.

THIS MAY explain what has hitherto been so difficult to understand—namely Vishinsky's unbridled speech at the United Nations Assembly attacking this country, and also Britain and France, as aggressive warmongering nations. If we assume that the decision had already been reached in Moscow that the conflict was to enter a military phase, then Vishinsky's speech is intelligible. It created the climate in eastern Europe for the military measures which have since been taken, first in Romania and Hungary, and then in Czechoslovakia and Finland. For non-Communists could then be treated as traitors and enemies, as agents of the western powers.

If this interpretation is correct, Vishinsky's speech was not mere propaganda—though incidentally it was that also—addressed to the masses of the people of Europe, but a carefully considered step to prepare the ground for the military developments which are now taking place.

IT IS almost certainly necessary then to revise the assumption—which has been widely held by the military authorities here and in western Europe—that because the Soviet Union does not yet have the atomic bomb and the more modern engines of war, the Russians would take no military action until they had made up their tactical inferiority. It is now rather plain that, on the contrary, they decided to take military action in order to neutralize our tactical superiority in weapons and to make full use of their own tactical superiority in ground forces.

They are doing this by seizing the positions—like Czechoslovakia and Finland and later on, if they can, Turkey, the Balkans and Italy—which enable them to dominate with their troops the areas which we should need in order to use our superior weapons to gain a military decision. Their answer, then, to the atomic bomb and our strategical air and sea power is to take possession of the places from which we can employ them effectively—and from these places to use their army to divide and paralyze the coalition of western Europe.

THIS IS a modern version of the classic Russian military policy—which is to defeat the superior striking power of an opponent by compelling him to operate over impossibly long, costly, and insecure lines of supply. Their method is to counterset tactics by logistics. Against the French in 1912 and the Germans in 1941 they did this by retreating into the depths of Russia.

As against the western powers today they hope to achieve a similar result by pushing their military frontiers so far forward that Russia is invulnerable and all of Europe is at its mercy.

THIS well-conceived and carefully prepared military plan cannot be thwarted if this country remains on a peace footing—with an immense potential military power but with comparatively small actual military power. The time the country would need to train, equip, mobilize, deploy and establish effective fighting power will be used by the Russians to take possession of the military positions which are essential to the effective use of our fighting power.

The situation calls for an immediate American mobilization—the restoration of Selective Service, the reestablishment of the war powers over industry, the restoration of lend-lease, and the declaration of a state of national emergency. For the critical fact is that by actions at strategic points with Czechoslovakia and Finland, Russian military power is increasing rapidly as compared with that of the United States and the western countries. These military actions are possible because the Russians are in effect already mobilized. A totalitarian state possesses all the war powers all the time. The Russians do not have to argue about universal military training and conscription: they already have them. Or whether they will take control of industry: they have the control. Or whether they shall reimpose the discipline of war conditions on the civilian population: they never relax the essential war discipline.

Thus, having taken the decision to wage the struggle by military measures, they can act while we ponder and debate.

AN ELECTION year, a weak President, a disintegrating administration, and an as yet uncollected Republican Party make it inordinately difficult for this country to do the things which the situation demands. But they can be done. The American people will understand that the struggle is no longer between two ideologies each bidding for the votes of the masses of the people of Europe; but that it is now a struggle between two military systems for the possession of the points which would be decisive in the event of war.

In such a struggle an unmobilized country across the oceans cannot oppose successfully a country already mobilized and already deployed close to the theater of the conflict.

High Court Won't Free Man It Held Was Jailed Illegally

Tony Marino was still in jail last night—10 weeks after the Supreme Court said he ought to go free—and the court washed its hands of his fate.

The Attorney General of Illinois—where Marino has been locked up for 22 years—urged the justices to do something to get the man out of jail. Yesterday, without a word, they refused, leaving Marino to try again in the Illinois courts, which once refused to follow the Supreme Court mandate which said his long confinement was plainly against the Constitution.

Marino was 17 years old when he came to this country from Sicily in 1924. The next year he was picked up in Beloit, Wis., and taken to Rockford, Ill. George F. Barrett, the Illinois attorney general, says this was unlawful. And so, says Barrett, was it unlawful to hold Marino incommunicado for several weeks, to arraign him when he could not speak English, with a detective to tell him what was going on, to take his plea of guilty to murder when he had no lawyer and to sentence him to life in prison.

Last December 22 the Supreme Court said Barrett was right, that Marino plainly had been denied due process of law. A few weeks later Barrett asked Circuit Judge William R. Dusher, at Rockford, to enter a judgment in accordance with the Supreme Court mandate.

The judge refused. He said he would hold a full hearing and make up his own mind whether to let Marino out of jail. He told the Supreme Court Marino did have a lawyer, and appeared to be guilty. He filed a sworn statement in which the lawyer told about talking with Marino before getting out of the case.

Barrett—saying he was fighting for the prisoner instead of prosecuting him because the rights of all citizens were at stake—came back with a biting reproach of a lawyer who would violate the confidence of a client. The Supreme Court, said Barrett, ought to order Judge Dusher to set Marino free.

Supreme Court action of some kind was widely looked for, but it seemed that—having declared the law—the justices regard Marino's problem as one for Illinois to settle.

As the matter stands now, the next move is up to Attorney General Barrett and Judge Dusher.

The justices, in other rulings yesterday:

Voted 5-to-3 to uphold a court order issued several years ago against bakery drivers who were picketing Wagshal's Delicatessen, 4855 Massachusetts ave. nw., at the time;

Ordered release of nine Negro laundry strikers, who claimed Negroes were kept off the juries that jailed them for disorders in Winston-Salem, N. C.;

Voted 5-to-2 against reviewing rules set up by the Federal Reserve Board for the People's Bank of Lakewood Village, Calif.;

Voted 8-to-1 to uphold the Housing Expediter's claim for $810 trebble damages against an Indiana landlord who filed no ceiling and overcharged a tenant;

Bogota Conference

By Sumner Welles

Mending Economic Fences

WE ARE all so preoccupied with the European crisis and with Near Eastern or Far Eastern developments that we are paying little attention to the inter-American conference that meets at Bogota on March 30.

At this crucial moment the safety of every American republic demands that that inter-American unity that was born at Buenos Aires in 1936, that was perfected during the Second World War, and that has, unfortunately, recently been rapidly disintegrating, be restored before it is too late.

Antagonism against the United States is increasing in Latin America. It is due in part to the success with which Soviet agents have been able to reawaken old jealousies and suspicions. It has been partly caused by such flagrant mistakes as our handling of the defense site question in Panama. But it is due far more to the economic depression now prevailing in a majority of the American countries and to our failure to continue the cooperation that we gave during the war years.

The inter-American defense treaty signed last September at Rio de Janeiro, which we promptly ratified upon the initiative of Senator Vandenberg, requires implementation. That will be given by the resolution providing for an inter-American Defense Council as the permanent military agency of the inter-American system. With the world crisis what it is, the conference will undoubtedly establish this agency.

WHAT WILL prove far more difficult will be to find an acceptable basis for economic cooperation.

The Latin-American republics are faced with an increasingly serious dilemma. They must sell that part of their surplus production which cannot be marketed within this continent and for which an impoverished Europe cannot presently pay in currencies with which they can buy the goods they need. They must, in turn, have credits in order to get the equipment that is necessary to commence industrialization. Local industries are essential to check inflation and relieve immediate distress as well as to procure a gradual rise in living standards.

The initial mistake was made when we failed to seize the opportunity to make of the European recovery plan a hemispheric, rather than a purely United States, program. Such a broad-gauge project would have eliminated much of the present difficulty. It would have enabled all of the American republics to know where and how they could profitably sell their surpluses during the next four years. It would at the same time have tended to restore these normal channels of trade between Europe and Latin America upon which much of the prosperity of both has for so long depended. Such a program would have encouraged the eventual development of a hemispheric economy. It would have discouraged the present tendency toward self-sufficient nationalism, which, if persisted in, must retard economic recovery in the new world.

THERE IS no indication that the highest policy-making officials in Washington have any perception of the opportunity thus lost nor of the effect upon Latin-American psychology of the speech made by Secretary Marshall at Rio de Janeiro last autumn when he told the other American governments that the United States was too much involved in plans to help Europe to consider economic cooperation with Latin America.

Now, as a patent attempt to whet Latin-American appetites before the Bogota conference, it is announced in Washington that the Congress will soon be asked to increase the Export-Import Bank's lending authority for loans to Latin America. There is no Latin-American government so ill-informed as not to know the obstacles that lie in the way of this suggestion or that such a measure would at best be only a stopgap.

WHAT IS needed is a courageous and far-sighted initiative by the United States that would result in an agreement by all of the American republics upon a master plan providing for hemispheric cooperation over a period of many years. The resources of the World Bank and of the Export-Import Bank, as well as the services of the ablest technicians of the hemisphere, should be brought into play. The execution of such a plan could break down artificial barriers to commerce and development, expedite the efficient exploitation of natural resources and the construction of communications, facilitate the growth of sound local industries, and by the adoption of effective controls prevent much of the graft and waste of which taxpayers throughout the Americas have hitherto had to bear the burden.

There are many other objectives to be sought at Bogota. The adoption of an organic charter of the Americas, wisely proposed by Mexico, support for democratic institutions, and a declaration of solidarity in this new world contest between freedom and tyranny are outstanding among them. But granted the emergency that the peoples of the new world face, the need for a unanimous agreement upon defense and upon long-range economic cooperation is urgent if inter-American unity is to be preserved.

Tells How to Secure A Mastery of English Quickly

An interesting new booklet offered free to men and women who want to secure a real mastery of "fool-proof" method for studying the English language tells of a English usage without attending classes. The plan, as described in this little book, has been worked out by Grenville Kleiser who has helped thousands of students to a better command of English.

According to the publishers, this world authority uses no involved rules of grammar or rhetoric, but presents a simple, straightforward, inspiring method that secures real results in very short time. Thousands of users of this method, they say, have gained increased power to express themselves in fluent, convincing, clear-cut English and so have improved their possibilities of social and business advantages.

To acquaint more men and women with the advantages of improving their understanding of English, the publishers, Funk and Wagnalls Company, have printed full details of this speedy, pleasant method in a booklet which they will send to anyone who requests it. The address is Funk and Wagnalls Company, Dept. 248, 153 East 24th Street, New York 10, New York. A penny postcard will do. There is no charge for the booklet.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Profit Made On Aid Wheat, Senators Told

By The Associated Press

The Commodity Credit Corp. makes a profit on the relief wheat it sells to foreign countries, Roger C. Slaughter, former Representative, said yesterday. His testimony drew an immediate request for proof from Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which heard the testimony.

Slaughter, former Missouri House member, said the practice caused funds voted to feed Missouri European countries to be used up faster than they should be.

Lucas asked him to back up this testimony. Slaughter said he could not, but based the statement on "general conversation in the trade."

Charges Profit Made

Slaughter stated he is confident an inquiry will show that the CCC has been making a profit for months.

Selling to foreign governments at more than the prevailing price in this country goes back farther than the recent price break, he told the committee.

Lucas said he wanted Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to bring in the facts.

Slaughter urged that the CCC's powers be tied down in a new charter which Congress must write for the agency before June 30.

He testified as counsel for grain exchanges in Chicago, Kansas City and Minneapolis, and for the North American Export Grain Association.

Slaughter opposed the Department of Agriculture's recommendation for a perpetual charter. He favored two years.

CCC Wraps Urged

He urged also that the CCC be barred from buying or leasing warehouses, elevators, mills or other transportation or storage facilities. That would guarantee that it did not compete with private business, he said.

The National Grain Trade Council urged an end to the CCC monopoly in exporting wheat.

"The CCC should be required to carry on its export program through private export channels," H. E. Sanford, chairman of the council, said in a statement.

With a few minor exceptions, Sanford told the committee, private trade sources have not been permitted to handle wheat exports for about seven years."

Post Writer Starts Series Of Lectures

Metcalfe

James J. Metcalfe, 41-year-old former G-man, former reporter, and former Government executive who now writes "Portraits" each day for The Washington Post, started a three-day speaking tour here yesterday with a lecture at Chevy Chase Junior College.

Metcalfe, who looks anything but the dreamy-eyed type, told his listeners there how, as an FBI agent, he had participated in the capture and shooting of John Dillinger and how Melvin Purvis, who was to give the signal for Dillinger's arrest by lighting a cigar, used up ten matches in his nervousness and still didn't get his cigar lit.

Metcalfe, who lives with his wife and three children in Dallas, Tex., has a degree in law from Loyola University in Chicago.

After his graduation there, he went to the FBI, where he spent four years. He then spent two years as assistant chief investigator for the Resettlement Administration, and left there to take a job on the Chicago Times. There, Metcalfe with his brother, John, made an undercover investigation of the German-American Bund which won them the 1937 National Headliners Club award.

While in Washington, Metcalfe will speak today at the Bethesda Woman's Club at 11:30, in the South Agriculture Department-ment building at 6:15, and at the Business and Professional Women's Club at 8:30. Tomorrow he will address the McKinley Tech High School assembly at 9 a.m., will speak at the Chevy Chase Women's Club luncheon at noon and at the Montgomery Blair High School assembly at 12:45.

Export Quota on Crude Oil Upped by U. S. to Aid Shippers

The Commerce Department yesterday increased the crude oil export quota for the first quarter of 1948 to 1,100,000 barrels.

That allows 300,000 more barrels to be shipped abroad than the limit first set by the department when it imposed on February 20, the first license controls on crude oil in peacetime history.

The department said its February order caused "hardship" to many exporters, and that developments showed the original quota of 800,000 barrels was "inadequate."

The February 20 order did not give exporters a grace period as new controls usually do, so that exporters can ship temporarily without the required licenses.

The control order "caught a number of shippers with supply contracts concluded and shipping arrangements completed," the department said.

Meanwhile, President Truman approved legislation to carry on the Nation's program for development of synthetic fuels—mainly from coal and oil shale—another three years.

He signed a bill authorizing another 30 million dollars. Of the total, one million may go for research in squeezing more petroleum from depleted or "stripper" oil fields.

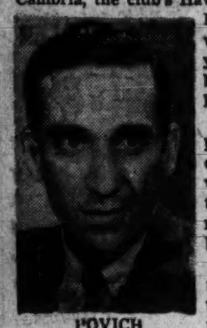
This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., March 15.—The Washington training camp is always interesting because you never know what the next tide from Cuba will wash up. There is no truth to the report that Joe Cambria, the club's Havana operative, affixes shipping tags to the likely looking native youths, studies the winds, and then dumps them off shore beyond Morro Castle at the smart moment, but the flow of Cubans into the Nats camp has been pretty regular the last 10 years.



POVICH

Cambria's Cuban culls have not been very productive as yet, and Clark Griffith a couple of years ago announced that he was weary of the whole business. Cambria continued to sneak off to Havana, and right now he is breaking down Griffith's resistance because of his latest importation.

The newest emigrant from the Pearl of the Antilles is a 22-year-old pitcher with the excellent name of Ramon Garcia, and the other day in West Palm Beach he worked five innings against the Athletics, gave up no runs, and only one scratch hit that should have been scored as an error. The kid looked not only as if he knew how to pitch, but could pitch, especially a fast ball that was all over the plate and very sneaky.

THERE WAS ONE other thing this Garcia exhibited—the only cross-handed batting stance in baseball, aside from the sandlot variety. The Nats don't care how he hits as long as he can pitch the way he did against the Athletics, and it's all right with Manager Joe Kuhel if he wants to stand on his head at the plate and swing a bat between his legs. They're interested in him only as a pitcher, and at this time they are mighty interested in him.

Ramon does not talk English, but he talks "El Basbol," a language that will get him by all right if the stuff he showed the other day is no flash in the pan. In fact, he pitched with so much savvy, that it was astounding to learn from Cambria that the kid was not one of the stars of the Havana winter league.

"Oh, no," said Cambria, "he pitched for the telephone company in Havana."

Cambria must have been high on the kid, because he signed him to a Washington contract. That could get Cambria fired if Garcia does not make good, because he is supposed to sign green-pea kids to a farm team contract, which would permit the Washington club to farm him out one more season, if necessary. But Cambria didn't bother with that precaution.

GARCIA ISN'T with the club right now. He took a boat for Havana right after his first performance. Had to have some dental work finished, he said, and when they advised him that there might be dentists in America who could do the job, he squawked that he already had made a big down payment and wanted his money's worth out of it. He's homesick already, like most of Cambria's Cubans.

Connie Mack, who has property rights to the Cuban Catcher Mike Guerra, is also having trouble with his Cuban's devotion to his homeland. Guerra has signed his 1948 contract, but thus far hasn't reported. He has complained that he needs special visas, etc., but he hasn't fooled Connie: That usually temperate soul yesteday dispatched Guerra a two-word cable that read: "Quit stalling."

Griffith had the same home-sickness trouble with Gil Torres and Bobby Estalella, the two Cubans who came closest to being big league fixtures. The Washington managers never knew on any given day whether Torres was on his way to the ball park or on his way to Cuba. Estalella used a dozen different excuses to get home to the wife and kiddies in Havanna.

CAMBRIA HIMSELF has taken a short course in Spanish to help him in his negotiations with the Cubans. It is very short, in fact. Despite his half dozen years in Havana, Cambria's Spanish vocabulary consists of "PEETCH, CATCH, and EL BATTO," accompanied by a whirlwind of gestures.

Bucky Harris had a bit of trouble with Roberto Ortiz, a strapping young Cuban whom Cambria brought into the Washington camp in the late 30s. Harris had Ortiz in his room trying to learn what position the fellow played, and narrowed it down by painful gesticulating to the information that Ortiz liked both to pitch or play the outfield.

He summoned Cambria and said, "Ask this guy what he does best, pitch or play the outfield."

Cambria took over, and it was no dice, either, whereupon Harris got mad at Cambria.

Get the hell out of here," Harris said, "You don't know any more Spanish than I do. All you're doing is asking him the same questions in English that I did, only you're louder. That doesn't help."

New Yorkers Invade . . .

Hoyas Ready for Surprises In Last Hockey Game Tonight

Georgetown's hockey team closes its season tonight against the New York Athletic Club at Uline Arena—and the Hoyas are ready for anything.

Why should they be prepared for surprises? Well, ever since last month's game against the St. Nicholas Hockey Club in Norwalk, Conn., the Hoya rinkmen have been on the alert for the unusual.

It seems that when the Hoyas took the ice against St. Nicholas, a greying 45-year-old gentleman skated out with the St. Nick's team.

When the contest started, the white-haired fellow was in the St. Nicholas nets. The Hoyas were non-plussed. Was this a gag?

They soon found out that it wasn't. The St. Nick goalie was S. Kip Farrington, coach of the team and its regular net-tender. Farrington played only one period against the Hoyas, making 12 saves. He retired after the opening session to "give some of my youngsters a chance to play."

Changes Costume

A dapper Park Ave. advertising executive, Farrington has hockey in his veins. When St. Nick's practices, he arives in his big Cadilacc and sheds his derby and chesterfield coat for a goal-keeper's pads.

He's been coaching St. Nicholas for the past two years and his team is made up of former Harvard, Yale and Princeton hockey stars who like to play for the fun of it. Average age of the team is 28, but though his charges have a few years on him, they have nothing over their coach when it comes to enthusiasm.

On many an afternoon, Farrington can be seen on a pond in some New York suburb, playing goalie for a bunch of kids. He whoops and hollers and has the best time of all. Advertising may be his livelihood, but ice hockey is "Skip" Farrington's No. 1 love, and he'll be tending goal tonight.

Colonials Still Seeking Coach

The coachless George Washington University grid squad remained that way yesterday as the scheduled opening of spring drills was postponed indefinitely.

Max Farrington, graduate manager of athletics, was unable to say when a coach would be signed to replace Skip Stahley or when the Colonials would start practice.

'After a talk with Johnny Fenlon (G. W.'s first choice) over the weekend," Farrington said, "we're farther away from having a coach than a week ago. We could agree on neither Fenlon's reporting date nor his salary."

Farrington indicated something will develop in the "next few days."

"If a suitable alumnus isn't signed," he said, "we'll be forced to check one of the numerous 'outside' applications we've received."

New Ski Record Is Ruled Out

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 15 (AP).—Janez Pelda, Yugoslavian Olympic ski jumper, sailed 393 feet 8½ inches today but was denied a world record because he dragged his right hand in the snow on landing.

The listed world record for jumping is 387 feet 1¾ inches by Joseph Bradl of Austria. He set the mark in 1938.

Christman Expected to Steady Nats

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 15.—Bulking big in the background of the Nats' infield situation is the steady figure of the veteran Mark Christman who is about to be dealt into the club's starting lineup.

Manager Joe Kuhel has not yet shelved Shortstop Johnny Sullivan, but the reliable Christman, who bettered the American League fielding record for shortstops last season, is beginning to have a winsome appeal for Kuhel.

Owner Clark Griffith is insisting that Sullivan get his shot at the regular job, and Kuhel has lent himself to the experiment. He will be happy about the whole idea if Sullivan rids himself of his erratic tendencies, because the young fellow promises to outhit Christman.

He Would Help Kozar

However, Kuhel envisions the Washington infield as a very efficient quartet if Christman gets in there. He will have a stady hand along-side his rookie second baseman, Al Kozar, who thus far has been making all the plays, but would be helped no little by the veteran Christman.

To Kuhel, the most interesting development of the past few days was his first look at Eddie Yost on third base. His coaches have been telling the Nats' new manager since the start of training that he has no defensive worries at third with Yost at the job, and in the three games at West Palm Beach against the Athletics, Kuhel saw for himself.

"I didn't dream thatthe kid was that clever around the bag," said Kuhel. "Now I know why Sammy West and Clyde Milan and Rick Ferrell rave about him. Yost looks as if he was born to the position instead of being a rookie with only one year's experience.

Could Have Beaten A's

Kuhel wasn't upset by the two defeats at the hands of the A's in those three games. "We could have won two of them, if I wanted to work my first team, like Connie Mack did, but I wasn't interested in that," Kuhel said.

"What I liked was the way some of our kids hit and ran the bases. And that young Cuban pitcher, Garcia, will be a big help to us, if he can pitch like he did against the A's."

Kuhel wasn't panicked at all by the prospects of blowing the games. In each instance he withdrew his starting team midway of the game and entrusted the rest of the contest to rookies. He didn't use a regular pitcher in any of the games, in contrast to the Athletics who worked Phil Marchildon twice and Russ Christopher.

In fact, Kuhel told his athletes in a clubhouse meeting at Tinker Field this morning that he liked the way they performed at West Palm Beach . . . The clubhouse session was pretty much RAH-RAH, and the squad came whooping out to the field for a two-hour practice . . . The Nats move on to Tampa tomorrow for a game with the Cincinnati Reds, and Kuhel will have his better pitchers on display for the first time . . . Early Wynn, Ray Scarborough and Micky Haefner will face the Reds . . . The Nats will double up on Wednesday, splitting the squad and playing two games . . . The regulars will take on the Phillies at Orlando and the rookies will move to nearby Sanford to play Minneapolis . . . Babe Ruth will be up from Miami to watch the Sanford game, and Sid Hudson who graduated direct from Sanford to the majors will pitch for the Nats . . . Johnny Sullivan is being given a rest because of a bruised left wrist while sliding, but may play Wednesday . . . Rookie Outfielder Larry Drake will be retained by the Nats, if only as a pinch hitter, and he may yet oust Leon Culberson from the centerfield job.

Bogley Beaten By McGrath

New York, March 15—Gilbert Bogley, 16-year old senior at Landon school in Washington, D. C., was eliminated by third-seeded Ed McGrath of Brooklyn in the third round of the national men's indoor tennis tournament here today. Scores were, 6-4, 6-1.

Top-seeded Billy Talbert of New York and the French champion, Marcel Bernard, who heads the foreign lists, led the field today into the quarter-finals.

Talbert eliminated Henri Rochon of Montreal, 6-1, 6-4. Bernard dropped a set to Frank Bowden of Madison, N. J., but prevailed, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Other favorites also survived the day's stepped up competition although Sidney Schwartz of Brooklyn, N. Y., No. 5 in the rankings, barely escaped elimination at the hands of Andy Paton, University of Michigan netman.

Paton held match point four times before Schwartz finally came through, 1-6, 11-9, 6-2.

Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., top-seeded in the women's division, led the way into the third round with a 6-0, 6-0 triumph over Mrs. Eunice Evers of New York.

Jean Borotra and Marcel Bernard of France scored a second-round victory in the men's doubles by defeating Arthur Parsons and Larry Martinez of New York, 6—1, 6—4.

The Billy Talbert-Frank Shields and Ed McGrath-Frank Bowden doubles team also advanced as they won by default.

Herbie Jones Stops Parlin With Right to Chin in 2d

Middleweight Roy (Cyclone) Williams, 162, of St. Petersburg, Fla., won a gruelling 10-round decision over Al Wright, 164, of Washington, in the co-featured Uline Arena attraction last night.

In the other 10-rounder, Lightweight Sonny Boy West, of Washington met Charley "Cabey" Lewis, of New York.

Williams, making his second fight in five days, had Wright on the verge of a knock out almost every minute of the action-packed bout, but couldn't produce the chiller.

He floored the Washington boy for a seven-count in the first round and dropped him again in the seventh. Wright, however, managed to last the distance and even had the better of a brief exchange in the ninth round.

In the opening four, Julian Keene, Baltimore, decisioned middleweight big Sid Gerald, Washington. Lightweight Elkins Brothers, Washington, was awarded a first-round TKO over Baby Kid Nichols, Philadelphia, in a bout so suspicious that the boxing commission ordered Nichols' purse upheld pending an investigation today.

Flyweight Johnny Arduini, former District AAU champ, won a five-round decision over Joe Bell, of Philadelphia, in the other preliminary.

The largest crowd of its season, 1559 customers, jammed Turner's Arena last night for an all-star fight show featuring local hopefuls in four eight-rounders.

Sunny Boy Bunn, 147½, Washington, suffered a cut over the left eye in the third round of one eight-rounder, losing a TKO decision to veteran McCoy Jones, 145½, Philadelphia; as Referee, Eddie La Fond stepped in before the start of the fourth.

The first of the eight-rounders ended in short order and surprisingly. Philadelphia Jim Parlin, 130, was ahead on points when Herbie "Biff" Jones, 136½, local lightweight, connected with a short right to the chin at 2:31 of the second round. That was all.

Red Gaddis, 120, Washington, needed all eight rounds to take a close decision over Dave Seabrook, 120½, Hartford, Conn.

In an opening four-rounder, Garland Edwards, 151, knocked out King David, 156, in 59 seconds of the third round.

Navy Blues Win In AAU Basketball

Denver, March 15.—The Annapolis (Md.) Navy Blues, who drew a first-round bye, defeated Colorado College, 66-40, in the second round of the National AAU Basketball Tournament here tonight.

Earlier, Langley Field, Va., national Air Force champion, was eliminated, 71-68, by Lincoln, Nebr., in the first round.

Snider Searchers Find New Prints

Everglades City, Fla., March 15 (AP).—New footprints were discovered today on Cape Sable in the southwest corner of Florida by searchers for Jockey Al Snider and two companions.

The prints were found after one set, found near Lostman's river, proved to be those of a seven-year-old boy.

Led by Indian guides familiar with the swamplands and dense mangrove growths, searchers pushed ahead in their hunt for Snider, Calumet Farm rider, C. H. Trotter, horse trainer, and Don Frazier, Canadian businessman, missing since March 5.

Bobo Offers Himself for Job on Radio

"OLD BOBO, Baseball's Hobo," is advertising for a job in radio.

According to an advertisement in the current issue of Broadcasting, the radio trade journal, Bobo Newsom the self-styled "hobo" is seeking an outlet via the airwaves.

And all for $15.

The ad reads:

"The sports show you've been looking for. 3 quarter-hour transcribed shows a week. The man who has pitched for more major league clubs than anyone in history.

"A fast moving sports show packed with 'Old Bobo's rich humor, baseball anecdotes, interviews with big leaguers comments on the pennant parades. This show will sell for you. 'Old Bobo' holds his audience with the same showmanship before the mike as he has on the pitching rubber. Available now! Rates as low as $15."

His plans for the coming season, in baseball anyway, were not discussed.

NYU Upsets DePaul, 72-59; Enters Finals

New York, March 15 (AP).—New York University upset De Paul, 72-59 tonight to advance into the final round of the National Invitational Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The violets Wednesday night will meet the winner of the Western-Kentucky-St. Louis game, second of tonight's double-header played before a capacity crowd of nearly 18,500. The victor will qualitfy for a spot in the Olympic basketball tryouts.

Paced by the magnificent Ray Lumpp, who scored 29 points in a dazzling exhibition of basketmaking, NYU dominated play practically the entire way.

Depaul, its marksmanship poor, turned loose two scoring bursts to pull level with the Violets at 17-17 shortly after the 10-minute mark and at 47-47 with six minutes of the second half gone.

But most of the time the Chicago cagers were scrapping desperately from a deficit that ranged anywhere from five points to a dozen.

Lumpp, a hook shot artist, tossed in 11 field goals and seven fouls. John Derderian, who played a smart and effective defensive game for the Violets tallied 10 points.

Ed Mikan was the leader for Depaul with 20 points, representing seven field goals and six free throws. He ran his string of successful free tosses to 16 straight in the tournament before he finally missed on number 17.

Allen Questions Kansas State Stars' Eligibility

Lawrence, Kans., March 15 (AP).—Eligibility of "some Kansas State players" was questioned today by Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, University of Kansas basketball coach.

Allen said he did not plan to attend the Kansas State-Oklahoma A. and M. NCAA playoff in Kansas City tonight, but he added:

"I think it would be a good idea for sometone to check rather early on the playing eligibility of some of the Kansas State players as already announced eligible for next year.

"Some of these fellows have already used up their allotted collegiate playing time." Allen did not mention any names.

Berra Hurt; Lindell Socks Two Homers

Clearwater, Fla., March 15 (AP).—Catcher Yogi Berra suffered a leg injury today as the New York Yankees won their eighth straight exhibition game without a loss by beating the Philadelphia Phillies, 10 to 5.

Berra, one of the few Yankee regulars brought here for the game, sprained his left foot when his spikes caught in the third base bag while he was trying to advance on Jerry Coleman's grounder in the seventh inning.

There was no immediate report on the extent of the injury.

At the same time it was disclosed that Rightfield Tom Henrich may be out a week with the strained right wrist he developed after a shoestring catch in Sunday's game with the Boston Red Sox.

Lindell Bangs Pair

Two homers by Johnny Lindell and one by Rookie First Baseman Joe Collins, who also got a pair of singles, featured the ten hit attack by the Yanks on a pitching trio composed of Lefty Oscar Judd, Emory Church and Charley Schanz.

First Baseman Al Flair of the Phillies hit his third homer of the spring, off Frank Hiller of the Yankees.

Cards Blank Tigers

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 15 (AP).—Shutout pitching by Rookie Clarence Beers and little Murry Dickson helped the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers in an exhibition contest today. About 2500 saw the game.

Hal Newhouser faced only nine Cardinals in three innings, double plays nullifying one hit and a walk off him, but the Redbirds bunched three hits off Hal White in the fourth inning for three runs. Dick Sisler, playing the last half of the game at first base for the Cards, hit a homer over the right field wall in the eighth.

Braves Win Again

Bradenton, Fla., March 15 (AP).—The Boston Braves today beat Cincinnati for the second time in grapefruit league competition, 4-3, before 390 fans at Ninth Street Park.

The Reds outhit the Tribe, 10-9. The winning marker came in the Boston seventh when Pitcher Johnny Hetki hit Shoun with a pitched ball, Bob Adams' error sent Shoun to third and Earl Torgenson's long fly brought Shoun home with the fourth run.

Leo Knifed Him in Back, Says Stanky

Miami, Fla., March 15 (AP).—Second Baseman Eddie Stanky arrived here today from Ciudad Trujillo and promptly declared he had been "sold out" by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The veteran keystone packer was sold suddenly to the Boston Braves 10 days ago. He is en route to join the Braves' spring training camp at Bradenton, Fla.

Stanky said he would not don a Braves' uniform for a week or more. He is recovering from an attack of lobar pneumonia.

"I realize that I'm with a good club now, and I'll see you at the World Series," he told reporters.

Commenting on a recent statement attributed to Dodger Manager Leo Durocher that he (Stanky) wasn't worth the raise he asked, Stanky said:

Phelan Signs To Coach Dons For 3 Years

Los Angeles, March 15 (AP).—Jimmy Phelan, head football coach at St. Mary's University, today was named head coach of the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Grid Conference. He was signed to a three-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

General Manager Harry Thayer said Phelan will tender his resignation to St. Mary's officials today and assume duties here later this week. He succeeds Dud De Groot, former Washington Redskin coach, at the Dons' helm.

A native of Sacramento, Phelan played under Jess Harper at Notre Dame and has a record of never having been anything less than a head coach at a college.

Purdue Came Back

His teams include a 1922 Purdue outfit which had not won a conference game in the preceding seven years and was whipped into championship caliber. In 1929 the Boilermakers won the Big Ten crown on an undefeated eight-game conference schedule.

He produced seven All-Americans with the University of Washington, which won 64, lost 17 and tied eight for him from 1930 through 1941. His 1937 squad won the Pacific Coast Conference title and a Rose Bowl bid.

Thayer said Phelan will retain Mel Hein and Ted Shipkey as coaches and will hire two other assistants.

In joining forces with the Dons, Phelan will continue coaching his ace halfback, Herman Wedemeyer, who recently signed with the professional club at a reported fancy figure.

Funk Fights Thomas in Top Match

A quarterfinals senior featherweight match between Eddie Funk and Pat Thomas highlights tonight's District A. A. U. boxing card at Turner's Arena. First bout on the 20 bout card begins at 8:15.

Funk, representing the Southwest Barney House, is a former A. A. U. champ. Thomas, an Appollo Club entry, was a big amateur favorite before he temporarily hung up his gloves two years ago.

Other top-notch quarterfinals bouts pit Harry Dillender of Navy Receiving Station against Bill Nichols of the National Guard in the 135-pound senior class and Ed Neverson of the Howard A. C. against Carl Promio of Fort McNair in the light-heavyweight class.

NOVICE CLASS—QUARTERFINAL

135 lbs.—Ray Courtney (Olympic A. C.) vs. Willie Davis (Apollo A. C.) 160 lbs.—Fred McNew (Fort McNair) vs. Herbert Stowe (12 st. Y.)

Caps Open Drive Against Celtics

Coach Red Auerbach's Washington Capitols will make a desperate stretch bid for a place in the Basketball Association of America's championship playoffs tonight when they open a series of four games in five nights against the Celtics in Boston.

The Caps return to Uline Arena against the Providence Steamrollers tomorrow night; meet the Bullets in Baltimore Thursday and close their regular season against the New York Knickerbockers here Saturday night.

Bromwich's Refusal to Fly Costs Him Aussie Cup Berth

Melbourne, March 15 (AP).—John Bromwich's refusal to fly cost him a place on the Australian Davis Cup tennis team for 1948 today.

The veteran, famous for his two-handed attack, was dropped at his own request when the Australian Lawn Tennis Association insisted that the team likely would fly home from its campaign for the international trophy.

Others on the 1948 team are Geoff Brown, a spare last year; Colin Long, Bromwich's doubles partner a year ago; and Billy Sidwell, a newcomer who is an outstanding doubles player.

The Australians, who held the cup during the war years and reached the challenge round against the United States at Forest Hills last year, also lost Dinny Pails from their 1947 team. Pails turned professional and now is a member of the Kramer-Riggs troupe.

Bromwich said he might compete at Wimbledon, provided he could arrange passage by ship.

Hoyas Open Football Drills; Margarita Will Handle Backs

Georgetown got a backfield coach yesterday and the first look at some 20 promising freshmen football players who hope to wear varsity spangles this fall.

Twenty-seven-year-old Bob Margarita, late of the Chicago Bears and later still of Harvard where he served under Dick Harlow, made his debut as backfield aide to Head Coach Jack Hagerty as the Hilltoppers launched a month of spring practice.

With Margarita handling the backs, Hagerty is now free to supervise the football situation, something he has been unable to do for years because he had to devote most of his time to his backs.

Over 50 gridmen, including about 22 beefy linemen who brought a gleam to the eyes of Line Coach Mush Dubofsky, were out for the first's day drills, which consisted primarily calisthenics and fundamentals.

The Hoyas, who experienced a not-so-hot season last year, lose only four letterman from last year's sophomore studded squad. Two of the best freshman backs coming up are Billy Conn, a fancy-stepping speedster from Bloomfield, N. J., and Dick Barba, a Maplewood, N. J., importation.

Two Loyola Players On A. U. All-Foe Team

The American University basketball team yesterday selected its all-opponent quintet. At the forwards are Jim Lacy of Loyola and Harry Donovan of Muhlenberg; at center is Pete Clark of Mount St. Mary's, and at the guards are Mike Zedalis of Loyola and Buddy Jameson of City College of New York.

Mid-Atlantic Golf Pros Set Tourney Dates

The Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers' Association of America held its annual spring meeting yesterday at the Kenwood Club and released its schedule of tournaments for the 1948 season.

No dates were set for the District Open championship at Indian Spring, and no date or course was agreed upon as yet for the Middle Atlantic PGA championship.

Professionals from more than 25 Middle Atlantic member clubs attended the closed meetings in the morning and afternoon.

The 36-hole qualifying trials for the National PGA championship to be held in St. Louis in May were set for Friday, April 23, at the Manor Club.

April 16—Pro-Amateur at Hillendale; 22—36-hole qualifying round for PGA championship at Manor; 29, 30 and May 1—National Capital Open at Prince Georges.

August 6—Pro-Amateur at Columbia; 13—Pro-Amateur (host club members only) at Woodholme; 23—Assistant Pro championship at Burning Tree; 30—Pro-Amateur at Kenwood.

September 13—Pro-Senior at Columbia; 20—Pro-Amateur (host club members only) at Norfolk; 27—Pro-Amateur at Country Club of Maryland.

High Squad Gets Two Bodyguards

Fall River, Mass., March 15 (AP).—Two Fall River policemen were assigned today as bodyguards for the Durfee High School basketball team while it is in Boston this week for the New England interscholastic tourney.

Stadium, Seating 80,000, Planned For Brooklyn

Brooklyn, March 15 (AP).—Norman Bel Geddes, theatrical designer, has drawn plans for a stadium of concrete and stainless steel that will seat 80,000 spectators, Walter F. O'Malley, Brooklyn Dodgers' vice president said today.

O'Malley added they were drawn to fit the present acreage of Ebbets Field "but that the cost is six million dollars."

The present stands at Ebbets Field can hold 35,000.

Phils Have Another Waddell in Simmons

By Red Smith

Clearwater, Fla., March 15.—There's a golden boy in every baseball camp this spring, and the 18-carat, diamond-studded apprentice millionaire here in the Phillies' sweatshop is a left-handed pitcher named Curt Simmons who won't be 19 years old until May 17. When Simmons finished high school in Egypt, Pa., (population 700), last June, the Phillies conferred two distinctions upon him.

They handed him a commencement gift which made him the most expensive infant ever snatched from the cradle, tucking into his swaddling clothes a bonus estimated at $60,000. (The club never has announced the exact figure but admits it was bigger than the $52,000 paid to Dick Wakefield by the Tigers.) Then they handed him a homegrown title—"The New Waddell."

Considering the buildup the kid has had, you expect to find a guy 16 feet tall, but he turns out to be a mere 5-foot-11 and 175 pounds, rather good-looking with dark, wavy hair, level eyes and extraordinarily white teeth.

He's Only So Big

"I thought you'd be bigger," a visitor said.

He shrugged. "This is all the bigger I am."

"Tell me about yourself."

"Not much to tell. I'm from Egypt, near Allentown. I played in high school and American Legion ball and Cy Morgan, the Phillies scout, came to see me. I was picked as the outstanding player in an all-star game in the Polo Grounds in 1946. After I graduated, I went down to Philadelphia and talked to Herb Pennock and Connie Mack, and the Phillies' offer was best so I signed and they sent me to Wilmington last year. I came up at the end of the season and pitched against the Giants and that's all there is."

A 10-Game Winner?

"Ben Chapman says you'll be a major leaguer this year, young as you are," the kid was told. "He says you'll win 10 games. How do you feel about the big league hitters?"

"They're no better than anybody else," the kid said impulsively. Then he checked himself. "That is, up here there'll be maybe four of five good hitters on a team. In the minors, they'll have two. The big jump is from high school to professional ball."

"How did you feel starting your first pro game last year?"

"I don't know. All right. I never thought I couldn't get 'em out. It was against Lancaster. I had 'em shut out until the ninth and then they got a couple bloopers and we finally won, 7 to 1."

"When did you first settle on baseball as a career?"

Mize Doesn't Scare Him

In his only big league game to date, Simmons struck out 10 or 11 Giants, gave them five hits and had a shut-out until the ninth inning. The Giants had Johnny Mize leading off in the game so he could get to bat five times, and, maybe, beat out Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner in the home run race.

Mize did nothing against the Nipper. When John came up in the ninth with the Giants making passes at Simmons' lead of 3 to 1, Benny Bengough, the Phillies coach called time and went out to the mound to make with the spiritual treatment.

"Don't get excited, now, Kid," Benny pleaded. "Take it easy. You've got your game won. Don't let this guy upset you."

"Cool out, Benny," the young man replied. "Everything is gonna be all right."

Dodson Blasts Spring Drills In Football

Norfolk, Va., March 15 (AP).—In a blistering attack on modern college football Frank Dobson, athletic director at the Newport News Apprentice School and a national figure in collegiate athletics for more than 40 years, today called spring grid drills "a stinking outrage."

Speaking before the Norfolk Sports Club, Dobson, who coached at the University of Georgia, Georgia Tech, Clemson, Richmond and Maryland before coming to the Apprentice School in 1941, vigorously attacked football's intrusion upon spring sports.

"Football is not so difficult," he said, "that it cannot be taught in four months. Football is no longer a sport. It's a huge pageant promoted by overzealous alumni who care nothing about the boys graduating, which they rarely do."

Dobson declared that the reason for spring football is that coaches are so scared of their jobs that they work in the spring on the football team they will have in September.

"Football has become a dictatorship," Dobson added. "Alumni don't care whether a boy knows science from algebra. There is no concern for studying college subjects useful in later life."

Family Sets Its Clock by Carrier Boy

"I think that boy is the best paper boy that ever came down the pike."

That's the way Mrs. Cloyd R. Graham, of 4801 Chevy Chase dr., last night described John H. Norton, 16, of 4702 Morgan dr., whom she had entered earlier in The Washington Post's carrier boy courtesy contest.

"He has politeness, punctuality, quietness and all the attributes of a fine boy," Mrs. Graham declared.

Lauds His Reliability

The youth is so reliable, Mrs. Graham said, "that we can set our clock by him in the morning." And if the papers are late being delivered to him, "he'll just sit down and wait until they get there."

One time, she said, he didn't show up and "he apologized because he was ill. I know he must have a wonderful upbringing."

Mrs. Graham said that all the neighbors "rave about him—we just don't have enough praises for the boy."

John, who is a junior at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, likes his job now that he's accustomed to getting up at 6 a. m. He has about 75 customers and has been a carrier for four years.

Just One of Dozens

The youngster is one of dozens of carriers for The Washington Post who have been nominated in the competition—which closes at midnight Thursday. The winner will receive a $50 Government bond.

Residents who wish to nominate their carriers can do so by filling in the coupon appearing below. Since the boy can be identified from your address, be sure to print it clearly. Then, after including several lines to describe the youngster's courtesy, mail or bring the filled-out coupon to The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington, D. C.

Bank Teller, 23, Indicted

A 23-year-old bank teller, who said he had trouble meeting living expenses, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury for embezzling $1872 from his bank.

Robert E. Rhodes, 79 Farragut st. nw., told police he had taken the money, all in silver, over a period of four months from the Union Trust Co., to "pay current living expenses." At the time, his salary was $2100 a year.

His mother, Mrs. Rose Marie Rhodes, has offered to mortgage her home at 318 Webster st. nw., to pay back the money, according to police.

The Union Trust Co. has also offered to employ Rhodes' wife, Mrs. Agnes Betty Rhodes, as a clerk. The young couple has an 8-month-old son.

Began Theft Last October

Rhodes embezzled the money in sums up to $120 between October 3, 1947 and January 26 of this year, police said.

The grand jury indicted James H. Shaw, 39, of 1239 4th st. nw., on a charge of second degree murder in the death of his wife, Mrs. Louise Shaw, 39, of 317 K st. nw.

Mrs. Shaw died February 13 at Emergency Hospital of burns received when an oil stove was overturned during an altercation at her home.

Pope Eberhardt, 26, of 2015 15th st. nw., was indicted on a manslaughter charge in the death of Walter C. Nelson, 31, of 1072 30th st. nw., fatally shot February 2 during an altercation in the 1400 block of North Capitol st.

AIR SUPREMACY

The Congressional Aviation Policy Board recommends air supremacy to:

"...discourage aggression...

"...preserve the national security...

"...promote the total social and economic welfare..."

AFTER many months of careful study, the Congressional Aviation Policy Board has now recommended a comprehensive National Aviation Policy.

The Board's recommendations include building up effective military and naval air forces, promoting air transport, maintaining a sound aircraft manufacturing industry, fostering research and development, and further coordinating the Government agencies dealing with aviation affairs.

Because of the long time required to build up these essential elements of air power, such a program is a matter to be decided on now if America is to rely on its strength in the air for security in the years to come.

The following are excerpts from the report of the Board:

"...Joint action for peace by all major nations alone can meet our modern dilemma. Determined and continuous effort in the United Nations must not be abandoned while the slightest ray of hope remains. In the meantime, an alternative plan to maintain a balance of peace must be contrived in the name of the free world."

"...Until there is a solid foundation upon which freemen can build for security and survival, these same freemen, who seek only self-preservation with justice and with freedom, are faced with the necessity of defending themselves."

"...To defend ourselves... we must have air power that is supreme. We cannot have less if we are to discourage attack or, if attacked, to defend ourselves..."

"Until men of all nations can meet in good will in the council chambers of the world, anything less than this complete supremacy in air power is self-deception..."

"Interested only in freedom and justice, the United States has no other course to follow but to maintain such a military air force and civil air effort that no sudden attack upon the American people can succeed—and that any such attack will prompt swift and awful retribution in overwhelming volume with effective and devastating weapons."

"Therefore, it is the judgment of the Congressional Aviation Policy Board that the capability of the United States most likely to discourage an aggressor against attack upon this Nation, most effective in thwarting such an attack if launched, and most able to deal out retaliation to paralyze further attack, is air power."

"... In view of the foregoing, the Congressional Board has sought to determine a broad national air policy which by coordination of all phases of air power will most discourage aggression, preserve the national security, and promote the total social and economic welfare of the United States."

THE Congressional Aviation Policy Board, consisting of five Senators and five Representatives, was created on July 30, 1947, pursuant to Public Law 287, after months of discussion of the necessity for a national air policy in both houses of Congress. The Board is the second distinguished body which has recently reported on the importance of air power in the national defense and the national economy.

The Board's complete report, entitled "National Aviation Policy," contains recommendations of vital interest to every American citizen. United Aircraft Corporation will gladly send you without charge a copy of the report, together with a summary of the earlier report by the President's Air Policy Commission.

House Passes Bill Giving Firing Powers To Federal Agencies

By Jerry Kluttz

The House yesterday unanimously passed a bill that would give the head of any Federal agency the power to fire or suspend without pay any employe "in the interest of national security."

Any employe fired under the proposed law would have only these rights: To appear before an agency official within 30 days and to be informed of the reason for his firing "to the extent the agency finds compatible with the public interest" to submit reasons in writing why he believed he should be restored to his job within another 30 days, and to receive an answer from his agency "at the earliest practicable date."

Federal workers who are either fired or suspended under the bill would have fewer rights and they would be given less protection than they are now given under the President's loyalty program and the special laws which give State, Army, Navy, and Atomic Energy summary firing powers.

The bill was originally written in the Senate. It was designed to pay employes who are illegally fired and later restored to duty for the time they lose. This provision is continued in the House bill. The broad summary firing provision did not appear in the bill as it passed the Senate. This means the bill now goes to a Senate-House conference with the strong possibility that the Senate conferees will oppose the firing amendment.

In reporting out the bill, Chairman Rees of the House committee, explains that the amendments were voted to meet the objections of Civil Service with the Senate bill. The commission urged seven changes in the bill. The committee adopted them all. However, the commission, it seems, had its wires crossed. It wrote a second letter last week disavowing the first letter. It's now officially opposed to the blanket summary firing provision.

DECISION: A veteran who is unjustly fired from his Federal job, wins an appeal and is restored to it, must be paid in full for the period between his dismissal and reinstatement.

This is the unanimous opinion of the five-judge United States Court of Claims. Chief Justice Marvin Jones wrote the opinion for the court in a case involving Loren H. Wittner, an Army employe. Wittner was restored to duty on November 15, 1946. He sued the Government for back pay and the Court of Claims has upheld his claim. He will collect $1050.25.

PAY STRATEGY: No one will publicly admit it, but an attempt is being made to make Federal pay raises a matter of highest GOP policy.

Top Republican leaders in both the House and Senate are being felt out on the maximum pay raise bill they would approve. It's a safe bet that no pay bill will be taken up in either the House or the Senate unless it has the advance approval of GOP policy-makers.

A subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee didn't make much real headway yesterday in writing a pay bill. Members are inclned to wait until they can get the reaction of Senate leaders on the pay problem. Much the same condition prevails in the House Civil Service Committee. GOP leaders on both sides of the Capitol, it's reported, ask these two questions: How much will an adequate pay raise bill cost and how much can it be cut?

The Senate subcommittee yesterday heard Civil Service and Budget Bureau officials testify in executive session on the need for overhauling the Classification Act. Officials of several agencies, it's reported, urged the committee to reject suggestions which would compel agencies to absorb the cost of any pay bill.

The House committee today will hear Arthur S. Flemming of the Civil Service Commission and Joseph Winslow of the Budget Bureau. Both officials will urge revision of the Classification Act, but both are likely to sidestep questions on how much of a pay raise should be given Federal people.

POLITICS: Roy E. James has resigned as chief of Interior's Pacific branch. He will return to his Pennsylvania home to run for Congress on the GOP ticket. The House seat he's after is now held by Representative Walter, a Democrat . . . Tom J. Davis has resigned from the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board. He will run for the Senate from Mantana on the GOP ticket. He's a Butte lawyer . . . Civil Service has dismissed the Hatch Act (antipolitics) charges against J. Bert Schroeder of the Huntington, W. Va. housing authority.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: An exam for physicists was announced yesterday. The jobs pay from $3397 to $5905 to start. Most of the openings are in the Bureau of Standards here . . . An exam is open to fill substitute garagemen-driver, substitute mail handler, and custom laborer jobs here. Get applications at Civil Service's fourth regional office . . . The Naval Gun Factory has openings for boilermaker, electroplater, brick mason, machinist, and sandblaster . . . The fourth regional office also is accepting applications for property control officers.

JUSTICE: Elliott H. Moyer has resigned as special assistant to the Attorney General to enter private law practice. An able lawyer, he has been assigned to the anti-trust division.

Man Leaps Seven Floors To His Death At YMCA

Victim About 35; Police Attempting To Identify Him By Fingerprints

An unidentified man, about 35, leaped to his death at 2:40 p. m. yesterday from the seventh floor of the YMCA at 18th and G sts. nw.

Police last night were checking fingerprints in an attempt to identify the victim, who was wearing gray trousers and a blue shirt open at the throat.

The man dived to his death after eluding Clyde M. Gibson, the building superintendent, in a chase which led from the sixth floor to the top floor, the eleventh, then back to the seventh.

Maid Reported Actions

Gibson, who lives at 906 N. Highland st., Arlington, Va., said a maid on the seventh floor informed him the man was leaning out of a hall window.

Gibson approached the man and inquired: "What are you doing?"

"I'm looking for something," was the reply.

When Gibson grabbed the man, he broke free, shouted, "I'll be back," and dashed up the steps. Gibson raced after him, running up to the eleventh floor.

Gibson lost sight of his quarry momentarily, then spotted him as he raced back down the steps. The building superintendent took the elevator down.

Plunges From Window

By the time Gibson had reached the seventh floor, the man had plunged from a window to the sidewalk below.

Leonard Smith, 30, a basketball coach at the YMCA, who lives at 2033 Park rd. nw., told police he was standing in the street not far from where the body landed. He said he heard a sickening "plump," then turned and saw the body crumpled on the sidewalk. The victim was pronounced dead at the scene.

Home-Rule Bill To Be Debated On WOL Tonight

Home rule and representation in Congress for the District of Columbia will be debated by two members of Congress and two members of the Board of Trade in the American Forum of the Air over Station WOL at 9:30 tonight.

Speaking for the Auchincloss home rule bill now being considered by Congress will be its author, Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.), members of the House and Senate District Committees, respectively.

Against passage of the bill will be F. G. Awalt, chairman of the Board of Trade's law and legislation committee, and Ralph Cusick, attorney.

The broadcast will originate from the radio studio at 1627 K st. nw. The public is invited and no tickets are required.

Mrs. Harriman To Be Red Cross Speaker Today

Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, volunteer services head for the New York City Red Cross, will speak at a luncheon today of the Washington Red Cross campaign's Residential Unit volunteers. The luncheon will be in the Hall of Flaggs of the United States Chamber of Commerce at 12:30 p. m.

As the campaign reached its midpoint yesterday, a total of $486,152, or 45 per cent of the $1,080,000 goal, had been raised, Campaign Manager Randolph G. Bishop said.

Other Red Cross speaking engagements scheduled include:

Department of Agriculture Unit luncheon meeting at noon; Mrs. Lawrence B. Slater, chairman of the Red Cross speakers bureau here.

A series of six meetings in the Quartermaster General's Office, 3d and T sts. nw., between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.; Wilburne Hendricks, administrative assistant on service to veterans of the Red Cross Eastern Area, speaker.

Board of Trade meeting, Statler Hotel, 8 p. m.; J. B. Morrison, vice president and general manager, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., speaker.

Commissioners Back 3-County Health Unit

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., March 15 (AP).—The Morgan County commissioners announced today they have given tentative approval to a plan to set up a three-county health unit in this eastern panhandle, including Morgan, Jefferson and Berkeley Counties.

Dr. Alexander Witkow, director of the State Health Department's bureau of county health work, said it would be more efficient to detach Morgan from its district association with Mineral, Grant, Hardy and Hampshire. Under the proposal a full-time staff for the three counties would be set up with headquarters in Martinsburg.

Resigns Trade Board Post

Winchester, Va., March 15 (Spl.).—Henry Hardenburg has resigned as executive secretary of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce to accept a position as manager of the S. & F. Distributing Co. here. Since taking over the post in 1946, the chamber membership has been more than doubled. President J. Curtis Fray said that he will appoint a special committee to consider applicants for the job.

Circle Traffic Shifts to Eighteenth Street

The Washington Post

RUSH HOUR—Traffic piled up on 18th st. from Massachusetts ave. to Dupont Circle at 5:30 yesterday, as the result of rerouting begun to build an underpass

Suspended Coach to Get Board Hearing

Frederick, Md., March 15 (AP).—An injunction to reinstate the Middletown High School athletic coach is based on a "technicality," Frederick County School Superintendent Eugene W. Pruiet said yesterday.

Pruiet suspended teacher-coach Joseph Hardy March 4, but on Saturday Circuit Court Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer issued an injunction to restrain the school board from taking such action.

Pruiet said the injunction was issued "because of my error in writing to Hardy that he had been suspended by the school board, when actually it was I who suspended him."

State law gives county superintendents authority, Pruiet added, to suspend teachers on a charge "with or without a hearing."

School board member Charles S. Lane 3d said, "This matter will be straightened out both with Hardy and the court." According to Lane, the board "has accepted" Pruiet's charges against Hardy and will hold a hearing.

Pruiet charged Hardy with incompetence, selling athletic equipment to students below the price of local merchants and helping to coach the Frederick High School football team when he had been ordered by Pruiet not to do so.

Hardy's brother Michael is football coach at the Frederick school. Hardy argued before the court that suspending him without a hearing violated State law and his teaching contract.

Kaywood Gardens Residents to Ask Accident Action

Residents of Kaywood Gardens, near Hyattsville, will ask the Mount Rainier town council at its meeting tonight to take measures against further accidents in the development.

Sidney Sherman, attorney and resident of the 1000-unit development, will act as spokesman. He explained yesterday that two children have been fatally injured on public property during the past year.

Joseph Brennan, 5, was scalded 10 days ago and died when he fell into a pit into which steam was escaping. Last July 11-year-old Richard A. Powell, jr. was drowned in a culvert which opened at the Kaywood shopping center.

Commodity Market Dro May Hit Md. Oysters

Annapolis, Md., March 15 (AP).—The Commodity market decline may be affecting the Maryland oyster market.

David H. Wallace, executive secretary of the Tidewater Fisheries Department, reported a lowering of oyster prices had cut down production in the State. "Warm weather, the drop in meat prices on the wholesale market, and a host of other economic factors may be involved in the oyster price decline," he said.

Teeth, Gears Gnashed at 'Square' Circle

Greater Washington motorists by the thousand gnashed teeth and gears last night as they snaked and sweated through "squared" Dupont Circle.

But the first test of the traffic rerouting, which will be in effect at least a year, turned out "only a little worse" than rush hours at Dupont Circle before the change, according to Traffic Director George E. Keneipp.

The "square" circle, instituted by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, is made up of R st., 20th st., N st. and 18th st. nw., all one way counterclockwise around the circle. The circle was closed to through traffic at 9:30 a. m. yesterday because of construction of the underpass.

"The traffic routing still has a few bugs in it," observed Keneipp, "but they'll be ironed out in a few days."

During the peak of the homeward rush—approximately 5:30 to 6 p. m.—the worst corner was Massachusetts ave. and 18th st. Despite special synchronization of traffic lights there and at 18th and P sts., vehicles piled up intermittently from 18th and Q sts. south to 18th and Massachusetts.

Unfamiliar With It

Keneipp, who personally toured and inspected the "premiere," said the major first-day problem appeared to be the motorists' lack of familiarity with the new setup.

On many of the streets—which hitherto had been two-way—automobiles and buses crowded the right side out of habit. This contributed to congestion, Keneipp said. To remedy it, Keneipp said he might have stripes painted to mark three lanes.

In some spots, he noted, some of the 16 policemen especially detailed for traffic duty could be removed. Additional traffic lights will be installed this week at 18th and Q, 20th and Q, and 20th and R sts.

Steer Clear of New Pattern

Keneipp and Police Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller observed also that circle-bound Massachusetts ave. traffic was unusually light throughout the rush, while policemen experienced above-average congestion a few blocks south and west of the circle. This appeared to bear out Keneipp's hunch that many drivers, reading of the traffic change in newspapers, steered clear of the new pattern.

Expressing general satisfaction with the way traffic moved last night, Keneipp said he was sure "it'll be at least as good as the old circle as soon as people get used to it."

Firemen Seek $10,000

Fredericksburg, Va., March 15 (Spl.).—The newly organized volunteer fire department of Westmoreland County will start a campaign Sunday to raise $10,000 to purchase equipment. J. Warren Hutt has been elected fire chief.

Louderback Not to Seek Reelection

Stanley, Va., March 15 (AP).—Charles C. Louderback, a member of the House of Delegates from Page and Warren Counties since 1930 and chairman of its appropriations committee for the past three sessions, announced today would not seek reelection to the General Assembly.

Louderback

Louderback, who was 70 January 3, succeeded Frank Moore of Rockbridge as appropriations committee head and has piloted through the House the largest appropriation bills on record.

A banker, farmer and insurance man, Louderback said he will devote his full attention to private affairs. He carried through his public life an interest in school legislation and devoted much time to establishing the teachers' retirement fund on a sound basis.

He served on the Denny School Commission which made a detailed survey of the State school system. He also served on the Governor's Advisory Committee on the Budget and Advisory Commission on Personnel. He is a past chairman of group III of the Virginia Bankers Association.

Although Page County has voted Republican frequently, Louderback, a Democrat, was never defeated in his campaigns for the House.

Snyder Heads House Unit in Prob Housing Project

Representative Melvin C. Snyder (R., W. Va.) yesterday was named chairman of the House Expenditures Subcommittee to investigate the Viers Mill housing project.

Representatives J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.) and Henderson Lanham (D., Ga.) are also on the subcommittee which expects to start hearings this week. First witness will be Representative J. Grant Bell (R., Md.), whose district includes the project near Wheaton, Md.

The committee is investigating whether Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration appraisers permitted the construction of overvalued substandard housing with the aid of Government financing.

Races Cost Him Doubly

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—Mrs. Harold H. Channell won a divorce today after she testified her husband would come home and upset the dinner table after a bad afternoon at the races. They were married in 1932 and separated in 1943.

Two Officials Cleared at Greenbelt

Manager, Police Chief Absolved Of All Charges In Probe Climax

A public investigation of the Greenbelt (Md.) town administration was climaxed last night when two key officials were cleared of charges filed at the start of the probe last September.

The two men, Town Manager James T. Gobbel and Police Chief George Panagoulis, were absolved in a majority report of the nine-man committee delegated by the town council to study the charges. The present five council members all served on the committee.

Plan Separate Reports

The report, made public at a meeting of the town council, was signed by six of the nine committee members. One town council member on the committee and two others did not concur with the findings and will submit separate dissenting reports.

Accused of Mismanagement

Gobbel had been accused of mismanaging the town's finances through alleged overpayment of salaries, including his own. The chief complainant against him was Mrs. Mabel Kandler, town treasurer.

The committee report cleared Gobbel on grounds the town council failed to adopt a proper ordinance last year and therefore there was no official guide to the salaries paid.

The committee said it found "nothing to substantiate" the total of 14 charges filed against Chief Panagoulis by two former policemen who had accused him of dereliction of duty and inefficiency.

Marked by Outbursts

The report was released during a heated session which was interrupted several times by angry outbursts from critics of the two officials. Among the critics of Gobbel and Panagoulis was former Mayor George F. Bauer who questioned the thoroughness of the committee's study.

On one occasion, Mayor Thomas J. Canning threatened to have a spectator thrown out of the meeting if the spectator spoke up out of order one more time.

Mayor Cnaning said the dissenting report of the three members who did not concur with the majority findings would be filed with the town's record and would be made available to the public.

To Ask Withdrawal

Immediately after making the report public, the council voted 4 to 1 to ask Gobbel to withdraw a resignation he submitted prior to the probe. Mrs. Elizabeth Harrington, one of the committee members who did not concur in the majority report, cast the lone dissenting vote.

Gobbel had been asked by the council to withhold his resignation until the investigation was completed.

Woman Victim Of PRR Train at Lanham Identified

The woman killed by a train Sunday at Lanham, Md., was Mrs. Jeanne Crow Hahan, 39, of West Lanham Hills, Md.

Mrs. Hahn, mother of four children, was identified by her husband, Vincent George Hahn, 4903 77th pl., West Lanham Hills, according to Prince Georges County Identification Officer Edward Cissel.

Funeral services and burial will be private. The body was removed to the Gasch funeral home in Hyattsville.

Mrs. Hahn was struck by a fast southbound Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train early Sunday at the Lanham crossing. The engineer, E. J. Lomax of Wilmington, Del., reported to county police at Hyattsville, he did not know he had struck anybody until the train arrived in the Washington terminal and bits of flesh and clothing were found on the front of the engine.

Slashes on Wrists And Elbow Prove More Than Dream

Everyone is dreaming these days. Now take the dream of Ariodante D. Badassari, 54, of 1626 19th st. nw.

His was the strangest dream—Badassari appeared at Emergency Hospital early yesterday and asked to be treated for lacerations of his wrists and one elbow. The wounds were more than 24 hours old.

Badassari told Dr. Clarence Taylor of the hospital staff that on Saturday night he dreamed he was slashing his wrists and elbow with a razor.

Sure enough, he said, he found the cuts when he awoke, exactly as he had dreamed.

Taylor Barr Elected

Winchester, Va., March 15 (Spl.).—Taylor Barr has been elected president of the Firemen's Executive Association, formed last week to succeed the old Winchester Volunteer Firemen's Association. Other officers are C. Douglas Brown, vice president; John J. Hawse, secretary, and J. Frank Loy, treasurer.

Group Indorses Sick Leave for D. C. Teachers

Board Committees To Hold Hearing Friday; Pay Hike Also to Be Aired

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Sick leave for teachers was indorsed yesterday by the Board of Education's committees on legislation and personnel.

The committees, which also considered a cost-of-living pay raise for teachers, set Friday at 3:30 p.m. for a hearing at which representatives of teachers organizations will express their views on both measures.

Members of the committees were in agreement over the sick leave proposal of Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning but took issue on the pay raise measure.

Legislation to Be Drafted

The committees instructed school officers to draw up legislation to be presented to the Commissioners and Congress calling for substitute teachers to be paid out of government funds. At present a teacher who is ill must pay the salary of the teacher who takes her place.

Details of the bill, including the rate to be paid substitutes and accumulative provisions were left to the officers to work out and present to the committees at a later date.

Committee members indicated they favored Dr. Corning's recommendation of 10 days a year cumulative to 60 days.

Dr. Corning said the estimated cost to the District would be $180,000 a year if the pay for substitutes is set at $12 and $135,000 if $9. Currently substitutes are paid from $7.50 to $9 a day. Dr. Corning said an increase is needed to get better teachers.

Pay Raise Opposed

Adelbert W. Lee, chairman of the legislation committee, led in opposing a recommendation by Dr. Corning that the joint committees indorse in principle a bill now before Congress that would grant teachers a blanket $800 increase.

Dr. Corning recommended that the raise be limited to the amount that may be granted Federal employes.

Lee said that while "sympathetic to the desire of teachers for more pay" he felt that an increase will "jeopardize the program of building new schools."

"It would be a sad mistake for us to blaze a trail in getting salary increases," Lee said. "Every one of the District's 13,880 employes would want the same treatment."

District budget estimates for 1949, he pointed out, are at present more than 14 million dollars above the estimated revenue including a proposed sales tax.

Downtown Robbery

Holdup Man Gets $122 At D. C. Store

MRS J. S. STONE
Victim of Store Robber

A "very nervous" youth who threatened to "blow out" the brains of a hosiery clerk robbed the Berger Emerald Toe Store, 1117 G. st. nw., of $122 at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

Mrs. J. S. Stone, 21, 1604 Abington dr., Alexandria, Va., assistant manager, said the robber entered the store alone, pretending to buy stockings.

As she reached for a box of hosiery, he whipped out a small, black automatic wrapped in a newspaper, according to Mrs. Stone, and said nervously: "Hand me all your money—and don't try to call, or I'll shoot." Then, as an afterthought: "The police are after me."

The $122 emptied the cash register, she said. In the store besides Mrs. Stone were three other clerks.

She told police the man was white, about 27 years of age, 150 pounds, slender build, with brown, "unruly hair," and wearing a camel's hair topcoat, brown trousers and brown shoes.

With the parting remark of "Don't stick your head out the door, or I'll blow out your brains," he darted out the front door, and was last seen walking north on 12th st. nw.

Police said the description "generally" answered that of a man thought to have committed four other afternoon, downtown holdups in the last three weeks. Yesterday's haul brings the total loss to almost $1500, police said.

50 Families In Trailer Park Told to Move

Some 50 families living in trailers at Washington Tourist Camp in East Potomac Park yesterday were told they must move to make way for the spring tourists.

An order approved by Undersecretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman was passed on to the trailer-dwellers verbally by employes of Government Services, Inc., which operates the camp. Formal 30-day eviction notices soon will be issued.

National Capital Parks expects a swelling influx by April, Edward J. Kelly, special assistant to NCP superintendent Irving C. Root explained yesterday.

The site is designed for such tourists many of whom have recently been turned away said Kelly.

Moreover, sanitary facilities at the camp are inadequate for a large number of permanent residents, according to the U. S. Public Health Service which fears a health hazard, Kelly said.

Last year about this time NCP clamped a two-week limit on stays at the camp and gave permanent or semipermanent residents similar 30-day eviction notices.

The order last year was softened by allowing a few hardship cases to stay on. A GSI official yesterday, however, said he doubted if there would be any exemptions this year.

Present capacity is 74 trailers, according to Louis F. Napoli, GSI camp manager, who said the rate is 65 cents a day. He said facilities provide sewerage, electricity and running water for 42 trailer locations. Occuponts of other trailers, he said, must carry water and use public toilets.

Mayor Declines to Run

Berryville, Va., March 15 (Spl.).—Leonard Bell, Mayor here since 1938, has announced that he will not be a candidate at the town election June 6. The community will also elect five councilmen. Three incumbents, Roy Potts, S. G. O'Bryan and D. Blanton Allen,

Baltimore Gets Fierst for Trial In Payroll Holdup

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells announced today that Mack Wilson Fierst would be brought to trial here on charges of taking part in a $3269 payroll robbery.

A warrant charging the 37-year-old former Danville, W. Va., man in the slaying of Hunter C. Lewis, former convict, is pending in Howard County. Wells said he had been advised the county is not ready to try Fierst on the slaying charge.

Lewis' body was found last week in a woods near Laurel by two news-papermen. Police said they believed he had been killed in an argument when plans for a holdup of a Washington-Baltimore blvd. night club went awry.

Fierst was arrested the night before the body was found.

Since then, authorities said, he has been identified as having taken part in several Washington area holdups. The FBI said it had been informed by its Richmond office he was wanted there for unlawful flight to escape prosecution for robbery.

He will be tried heer on charges of holding up the Mechanical Contractors, Inc., several months ago and escaping with the $3269 payroll.

2360 Latecomers Crowd Tax Bureau to File Income Returns Before Deadline Passes

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

A Bureau of Internal Revenue guard tapped a latecomer on the arm at 5 p. m. sharp yesterday, smiled cheerfully at the gentleman, and said:

"You're too late, brother."

And as the sad-faced man turned slowly away, the lucky ones moved ahead—the last of yesterday's 2360 Washingtonians to chat with BIR deputy collectors and auditors.

Yesterday was "peak day" at the bureau. Counting yesterday's record 2360 tax-paying citizens, a total of 54,208 District residents have paid their respects since the bureau began tallying them January 2.

Last man in line—he made it with 30 seconds to spare—was Samuel Groons, 27, of 512 E st. se. A Hot Shoppe kitchen helper, Grons lashed out at the downtown Washington parking situation.

"I had to drive around the block three or four times before I found a parking place," he stormed. "Why, I might not have made it at all."

He said he had filed earlier in the past, and had promised himself to file earlier in the future.

Less concerned was Mrs. Dorothy Scramlin, 24, a Postoffice employe who resides at 5419 19th ave., Hyattsville. She made it with time to spare.

Mrs. Scramlin, a war widow, said she arrived at the tag end of the line (a city block in length) about 3:30 p. m. An hour later she drew a chair up to the desk of Deputy Collector J. W. Stanley of Berwyn, Md., for the interview. And ten minutes after that she was on her way to the cashier's office, her problems solved.

DEADLINE—J. W. Stanley, a deputy collector, helps Mrs. Dorothy Scramlin, 5419 19th ave., Hyattsville, Md., fill out her 1947 income tax return just before 5 p. m. yesterday

"I just kept putting it off and putting it off," she smiled bravely. "I'm coming in much sooner next year. It's no fun standing in line."

If anyone at the Bureau had cause to be sympathetic to such late filers, it was George J. Schoeneman, U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

His work has been "so fascinating," he confided, he didn't find time to file his own income tax return until last Thursday.

Assistant to the Collector A. P. Rasin—he filed his return a month ago "so I wouldn't have to worry about it"—termed the last-minute rush "a natural thing."

According to Rasin, this year's total of information" seeking citizens fell a trifle behind that of 1947. His figures for last year show 57,725 Washingtonians came in for advice.

And this year, like last, the bureau "serviced" everyone who came in, he said. "We didn't turn anyone away," said the tax man.

Up to 5:30 p. m., however, when this reporter called it a day, 64 tardy visitors arriving after 5 p. m. had found the line closed. At 6 p. m., the last of the line had made his peace with Uncle Sam and a stream of slow-walking, head shaking BIR people began heading for home.

Area News in Brief

Bus Riders May Get Radio Broadcasts

Would you like to catch your 7 a. m. bus, grab a seat—if you can get one—and then settle back to hear a Strauss waltz or a hot-off-the-ticker newscast? Well, any day now it may happen to you.

The "new" bus riding was exhibited yesterday to a group of reporters—compliments of the Capital Transit Co. and radio station WWDC. At Pennsylvania ave. and 13th st. nw., they hopped into the usual type bus except that it had an FM receiver and six loudspeakers overhead.

As the vehicle started the strains of "When You're Away Dear" wafted through the bus. Later there was a newscast.

There were no commercials yesterday but if and when they come they won't be "the shouting at you" kind, according to E. Cleveland Giddings, vice president of Capital Transit. And there won't be more than one—in five minutes.

Whether all buses and streetcars will get the new equipment—at $175 per vehicle—will depend on public sentiment, as polled on a bus and streetcar equipped with the radio.

Pressler, Enesco Draw Applause

From Yesterday's Late Editions

By Donald Engle

Two guest artists, Georges Enesco and Menahem Pressler, combined their talents with those of the members of the National Symphony yesterday afternoon, bringing us a memorable two hours of fine music.

As guest conductor, Georges Enesco demonstrated again his peculiar ability to combine an uncanny depth of understanding and interpretative skill behind a cloak of self-effacement, so that the wishes of the composer are mirrored with crystal clarity in whatever he does. Yet behind this personal humility is a positive leadership and authority which brought forth some of the most inspired playing we have heard from the orchestra.

Much of the lucid quality of their ensemble can be credited to Mr. Enesco's sensible tempos. He made of Beethoven's Symphony No. 3 ("Eroica") a towering work of heroic proportions through breadth of concept, rather than an impact of sound and fury, and the scherzo particularly was in the spirit of a true scherzo, not the usual three-legged gallop. His own Romanian Rhapsody No. 1 was sheer beauty to the ear, controlled and carefully paced, rising to a stunning climax of wild abandon.

Pressler Shares Honors

Sharing honors with Mr. Enesco was the young Palestinian pianist, Menahem Pressler, making his first appearance in Washington. It was an auspicious debut for Mr. Pressler, for despite his youth, he is already an accomplished artist from whom we may expect much in the future. Especially noteworthy in his playing of the Chopin Concerto No. 2 in F Minor, was his beautifully singing tone in the lyric sections, the sparkling brilliance in runes and filagree passages, and his delicate nuance of expression in the more romantic moments. He was recalled for an encore by the unusually large and enthusiastic audience.

Mexican Pianist Heard

Earlier at the Pan American Union, Elie Alaluf, Mexican pianist, was heard in a recital, replacing Flora Guerra, who was unable to appear as scheduled. While allowances should be made for his playing on very short notice, and for the fact that we were able to hear only a transcription of the Bach Toccata and Fugue in D minor, and a Mozart Sonata, his playing was most unimpressive.

Although he has a considerable technical facility, his playing was marred by too many wrong notes, passages hurried and obscured, an over use of rubato, and little concept of either the style of Bach or Mozart. Actually, a second-year conservatory student would be expected to show more precision and understanding than Mr. Alaluf did in the first portion of his program.

Arrested Twice in 2 Hours

At 2:40 a. m. yesterday Police Scout Car 12 removed Douglas Hill, 36, from his home, at 603 New Jersey ave. nw., and took him to Casualty Hospital for treatment of lacerations to his forehead.

After treatment Hill was released and police charged his wife, Olivia, 31, with assault with a dangerous weapon, namely, an ice pick. She was freed in $300 bond.

At 4 a. m., Scout Car 12 was again directed to Hill's home to take him to Casualty Hospital, this time for lacerations of the right hand. For the second time in less than two hours the wife was arrested and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, this time a knife.

The case came up yesterday in Municipal Court and was dismissed when a forgiving husband declined to prosecute.

Williams Made Principal

Richard Pardee Williams yesterday was elected principal of Episcopal High School, Alexandria, at a meeting of the board of trustees.

Williams, 62, has been a member of the teaching staff since 1908, and acting principal since last July, when Dr. Archie Robinson Hoxton retired after 34 years of service. Williams, former head of the department of Latin and Greek at the school, expects to continue as head of the Greek department.

Parking Meters Ordered

The District will get 435 new parking meters within the next 30 days, Purchasing Officer Roland Brennan announced yesterday. About 385 will be installed around the Federal Triangle and near the White House, he said. The remainder will be used for replacement. The contract was awarded to the Dual Parking Meter Co., Canton, Ohio.

Playful Horses

It looked serious. The police radio at 11 a. m. yesterday tersely directed: "Scout Car 114 go to 41st st. and Benning rd. ne. and investigate runaway horses."

When Scout Car 114 arrived at 41st and Benning, there, sure enough, were two horses—pastured. They were kicking up their heels and frolicking a bit, 'tis true, but then it was that kind of a day.

Sunspots Snarl Radio

A "magnetic storm" in the upper atmosphere has caused a radio "blackout" all over the world, The National Bureau of Standards said yesterday.

The Bureau said the disruption of radio communications—"at least the worst in a year"—began about midnight Sunday, and would continue for three or four days.

The disturbances are caused by a heavy outburst of sunspots, eruptions on the surface of the sun, and are particularly severe across the North Atlantic.

More Poundmaster Pay

A Senate District subcommittee yesterday approved a bill to boost the annual salary of District Poundmaster Frank B. Marks from $4000 to $5000. Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) introduced a House bill to fix Marks' salary at $5000.

German Prisoner Pleads

Friedrich Flick yesterday petitioned District Court for a writ of habeas Corpus on the grounds he is being unlawfully held in Nuernberg, Germany, after being tried as a war criminal by a United States Military Tribunal last December.

The suit charges the tribunal was not legally appointed in accordance with the rules and customs of war. It also claims that a deputy United States prosecutor at his trial was a former Hitler police official.

District Court Justice Matthew F. McGuire set April 1 as the date for hearing.

Bill Introduced To Tax U. S. Land In Arlington

A bill to permit Virginia and Arlington County to tax Federal property in Arlington County was introduced in the House yesterday by Represetnative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

The legislation provides that the tax would apply to Federal land holdings in the county acquired after December 31, 1939. It would exempt the Arlington Postoffice, Fort Myer, Arlington National Cemetery and Washington National Airport.

The bill will be studied by the House Public Lands Committee. Smith said it is identical with one previously introduced by Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.).

Alexandria Jail Prisoner Tries To End His Life

Edward T. Monore, 38, tried to commit suicide yesterday in Alexandria city jail, where he is awaiting trial on 10 charges of safe-cracking and housebreaking.

He was treated at Alexandria Hospital for minor razor cuts on the throat, arm and leg and returned to jail. Police said he declared he had tried to take his life because of a fear that someone was trying to kill him.

Monroe's attorney, T. Brooke Howard, said he would ask that Monroe be examined for admission to a mental institution.

Jailer Christopher Gill said the State Board of Corrections allows prisoners to keep razors in their cells.

Firemen to Dance

The annual St. Patrick's Day dance of the Cabin John, Md., Volunteer Fire Department, will be held at the fire house on MacArthur blvd. at 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Show Deadline Set

Deadline for entering paintings and sculpture in the "open show" sponsored by the Artists' Cooperative, 1603 K st. nw., is 4 p. m. tomorrow. The exhibit will open with a reception from 4 to 6 p. m. Sunday.

Dutch Girl at White House

The Washington Post

REPAYMENT—Miss Annie Stoots (second from left) a 24-year-old Dutch girl, tended the graves of some of America's war dead in her home country. Yesterday, the mother of two of the dead, Mrs. Calvin Bladen (second from right), of 309 61st ave., Capitol Heights, Md., and Mrs. Eugene Bosnavits, of Cleveland, Ohio, took her to the White House. Policeman L. S. Talbott showed them around

Engineers, Architects, Talk on Bill

A House District subcommittee yesterday heard Washington engineers and architects appeal for stricter regulation of their professions here.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) heard nearly four hours of testimony on these bills:

1. To set up a board of registration for professional engineers to regulate their profession in Washington, sponsored by Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.).

2. A bill to tighten the present District law regulating architects, sponsored by Representative Frederick A. Muhlenberg (R., Pa.).

Hinshaw, an engineer, and Muhlendberg, an architect, each testified for his own bill, with strong support from local members of the two professions.

The Hinshaw bill, however, was questioned by Joseph C. McGarraghy, representing the Washington Hotel Association, who said it might force hotels to hire a professional engineer as boss of maintenance and operating crews.

Spokesmen for steam and operating engineers, who are licensed under a District law of 1887, expressed concern that the new bill might force them to give up calling themselves engineers. They urged the bill be restricted closely to "professional" engineers.

Brush Fires Ruin Acres of Timber In Virginia Area

A forest fire burned more than 30 acres of timber yesterday near Hunters Station, Fairfax County, as a total of 64 brush fires were reported in nearby counties.

The Fairfax fire broke out about 1:30 p. m. 5 miles south of Alexandria between Fort Hunt and Route No. 1. It was put out after a two-hour fight by volunteer firemen from Mount Vernon, Franconia, Penn Daw and Annandale. No one was injured.

Other minor brush fires reported yesterday totaled 23 in Prince Georges County, 25 in Montgomery County, 16 in Arlington County and 3 in Alexandria.

Vocational Talks Opening Today

The Washington Urban League will inaugurate a four-day Vocational Opportunity Campaign for Negro youths today.

The importance of "job-choosing, job-training, job-getting and job-keeping" will be emphasized, James A. Pawley, industrial secretary of the league, said yesterday.

Speakers at the opening meeting at 9 a. m. at the Armstrong Technical High School will be Dean Lewis K. Downing, School of Engineering, Howard University, Samuel B. Danley, U. S. Bureau of Labor Standards, and Lawrence Nathan, of Bruce Hunt, Inc., men's clothing store.

Dutch Visitor Cheers Mother Of Slain GI

"When I saw her," the little woman said, "I felt that a part of him had come home to me."

Mrs. Eugene Bosnavits' eyes became misty but she smiled and took the arm of the rosy-cheeked, clear-eyed girl at her side. "I am so happy," she said.

The joy, something new to her these days, was inspired by the presence of Miss Annie Stoots, 24-year-old Dutch girl, who for more than two years has placed tulips and roses on the grave of Mrs. Bosnavits' only child, Eugene, one of America's war dead.

First Day in District

The Dutch girl, gay and smiling despite her intimacy with death, was spending her first in Washington—on a trip sponsored by the families of five soldiers who lie in foreign graves. Three of the families live in the Washington area.

With Annie, as she gave her first United States interview at the White House during a pause in a round of sightseeing, was Mrs. Calvin Bladen of 309 61st ave., Capitol Heights, Md., at whose home Annie is staying. Mrs. Bladen's 26-year-old son, Calvin, jr., was shot down September 12, 1944, in Germany, with the same plane that took the life of 22-year-old Eugene Bosnovits of Cleveland.

They lie side by side in a cemetery at Margraten, Holland.

Cared for Graves

Annie has also cared for the graves where sons of Mrs. Helen Vajda of 6209 Shadyside ave., Capitol Heights, and Mrs. Thurman R. Stotler of 3438 Baker st. ne., are buried. All four of the women are helping to entertain their visitor. A fifth mother lives in New Jersey.

Said the girl, who has written dozens of letters here describing her periodic visits to the cemetery:

"I am so happy to be here."

Gazing fondly on the young girl, Mrs. Bosnavits, who came from Cleveland to welcome Annie, said:

"Nobody knows what satisfaction it is to have her here with us . . . nobody but a mother."

Girl Crushed to Death Under Junked Stove

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—A three-year-old girl was crushed to death today by an old gas stove which toppled over and crushed her while she was playing in her back yard.

The girl, Mary Elizabeth Coker, was the second youngest of eight children. The body was discovered by Mary's mother, Mrs. Amelia Coker.

Women Called As Jurors Get Court Lecture

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

On opening day in Rockville, Md. of the March term of Montgomery County Circuit Court, 48 new jurors, 21 of them women, were subjected to a lecture by Chief Judge Charles W. Woodward about being frank with the court, especially as to age.

The presence of women in a Maryland jury box still is a novelty, this being only the second term in Montgomery County when they have been eligible to serve as a result of a law passed last year.

Women Don't Answer

Judge Woodward explained the court considered it necessary to mail questionnaires to prospective women jurors to learn if they would be eligible for duty.

The women in "great numbers," he said, have declined to answer 16 questions "which the law requires we know the answers to before assigning you to jury duty."

While some of the women snickered, and the men looked superior, Judge Woodward pointed out that the question "How old are you?" is not answerable simply by noting "over 21." "The law requires," he said, "that jurors be between the ages of 25 and 70."

"We are not attempting to pry into the private lives of you ladies," Judge Woodward continued. "There are some things which we simply must know to determine your eligibility."

The court is required to know if the prospective juor believes in the existence of God, Judge Woodward publicly rebuked a woman who replied that such a question was "an invasion of my personal rights."

Explanation By Court

Other questions on occuption, physical handicaps, and marital status are equally important, the jurist said. It is conceivable, he stated that a mother with young children could not attend court; a person might have insufficient education; physical handicaps such as deafness would be prohibitive; or if the prospective juror had been convicted of a serious crime, he might not prove suitable for duty.

Judge Woodward told the women present "If we've offended you, we're sorry."

Nine of the women were chosen to serve on the 23 person grand jury and 12 on the petit jury of 25. Thomas M. Garrett, Rockville dairy farmer, was named grand jury forman. The grand jurors are:

Thomas M. Garrett, Holtsman D. Dodson, Francis L. Thompson, Howard W. Quaintance, Bates G. Watkins, Marian A. Lee, Lena D. Walker, R. Shirley Hays, Mary E. Emmert, Florence O. Fries, Jenny Linnitt, Julia Fries Kirkman, Charles H. Crum, John T. Bancroft, Barry R. Beall, Herman L. Lewis, Nellie C. Miles, Dorothy S. Arnold, Marian S. Hemingway, Culver S. Ladd, Jesse Meads, Guy V. Lewis, Eleanor L. Heneger.

Petit jurors—John F. Ligon, Hazel M. Allnutt, Bernard L. Loris, James R. Wilson, Hazel G. Edgar, Howard W. Spurrier, May V. Kefover, Pearl Edwards, Paul H. Moore, Katherine M. Ferguson, Ruth N. Bliss, Charles H. Carrico, Lula B. C. Hopkins, Robert W. Miller, jr., Robert V. Miles, Elizabeth F. Johnson, Elizabeth C. Kile, Estelle R. Hartley, Henry T. Clark, Robert W. Hempstone, Florence F. Saunders, Marion E. Beall, Henry L. Conner, Washington W. White, Grover D. Armstrong.

John W. Peak Dies After Va. Auto Accident

Charlottesville, Va., March 15.—John Wesley Peak, jr., 29, of 1516 17th st. N., Arlington, Va., Navy Department chauffeur, died today at the University Hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Saturday afternoon.

The car ran off the road on the highway between Cross Roads and Batesville, near here, and turned over three times. Peak, who suffered a fractured skull, never recovered consciousness.

He was a native of Indian Head, Md., and son of the late John Wesley and Emma Heise Peak. He had been a chauffeur for the Navy Department for the past four years.

The body will be taken to Washington where funeral services will be held Wednesday from the Chambers funeral home. Burial will be in National Memorial Park Cemetery in Arlington.

John R. Henderson

Fredericksburg, Va., March 15 (AP).—A former delegate of the General Assembly, John R. Henderson died Saturday in Stafford County. He was 63.

A native of New Jersey, Henderson had lived in this section for the past 30 years. He was a businessman who served two terms in the House of Delegates.

He is survived by three children, John R. Henderson 3d; Mrs. A. C. Anderson of Denver, Colo.; Col. and Mrs. Henry Reemscara of Buffalo, N. Y.; two sisters, Miss Rose Neel Henderson of Stafford, with whom he lived, and Miss Caroline L. Henderson of Georgetown, Del.

Henderson's son, Lieut. R. M. Henderson, was lost on a submarine in the Pacific in 1943.

Arlington School Board Weighing Religious Ruling

Possible local effects of the Supreme Court ruling outlawing religious education in public schools will be discussed by the Arlington School Board tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the James Monroe School.

For nearly 20 years county elementary schools have offered religious instruction in classes taught by instructors whose salaries are paid by the Arlington County County Council of Religious Education. Attendence at the weekly classes is not compulsory.

Pending clarification of the court's ruling, Arlington school officials said yesterday they have not determined whether the religious program would be affected, since it is not part of the formal curriculum.

Tracy V. Buckwalter

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 16 (AP).—Tracy V. Buckwalter, Massillon, Ohio, retired vice president of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., died today of bronchial pneumonia. He was 67.

Death Attributed To Probable Blow

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—The death of Franklin D. Hill, 44, Salisbury undertaker, was "probably" caused by a blow on the head, Dr. Earl L. Royer, assistant medical examiner, has reported.

He said the immediate cause of death was an intracranial hemorrhage, which could also have resulted from the excitement and exertion of an argument.

Richard P. Horan, a 23-year-old corporal stationed at Camp Holabird, is being held without bail here for a hearing on a charge of assaulting Hill in a hotel washroom argument.

Road Tax Hike Planned

Charlottesville, Va., March 15 (AP).—The Albemarle County board of supervisors will hold a public meeting on April 14 at 10 a. m. on a proposal to raise the county road bond levy. The proposal is to increase the tax from 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to 30 cents—making a general county-wide levy of $2.65 effective July 1.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Couple Adopted Baby Girl Four Years Ago And Mother Is Already Teaching Child the Truth About Her Status; Is This Helpful?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About four years ago my husband and I adopted a little girl. No one could be any happier than we have been these last few years. She is a darling and we love her very much.

We live in a large apartment house; therefore some of our acquaintances have known from the first that we adopted her, and as you can understand, rumors like that are sure to spread.

Much as we dislike the idea of telling Ann Marie that she is an adopted child, we nevertheless feel it would be best to do so before someone else points it out to her.

Couches Facts In Story Form

I HAVE told her little stories about our not having any babies and that we selected her from a group of little boys and girls to be our very own. I have repeated that story to her a few times.

On hearing that I had done this, a friend of mine greatly disapproved. Both she and my husband approve of Ann Marie's knowing the truth, but they think she is much too young to be told anything yet. They think I should wait a few more years. But she will be going to school next year and this thing is always on my mind, a constant worry.

Please advise me what you think I ought to do; also just what is the proper time and proper explanation. My husband and I want to spare our child as much as we can; and we shall appreciate an early reply. F. T.

Anxious Haste Merits Inquiry

DEAR F. T.: Here I am reminded of a comment made by the famous Catholic teacher, Father Daniel Lord, concerning the proper timing of sex education of children. Aware of the concern many parents feel, lest they mismanage the child's development by premature instruction on this score, Father Lord offers as a general rule, "Better years too soon than an hour too late."

I think the same good sense applies to educating an adopted child to comfortable acceptance of his special status in relation to parents; and thus I feel that your friend is wrong in strongly censuring your early start in this respect.

However, though it was wise to be forehanded, it seems to me you have erred in other ways: Firstly, in laboring the subject with Ann Marie under stress of anxiety, instead of getting your feelings cleared up before tackling it. Secondly, in taxing her with little stories about your not having any babies, wherefore you chose her, etc., which tends to label her as second-best, even though such is not your intent.

As you know, small children get the "feel" of maternal anxiety often without being able to read its significance, and are silently and sorely troubled in consequence; and thus your combined errors might invest Ann Marie with a complex of self-deprecating anxiety about her adopted status that would last through life, even if her adoption were never mentioned outside the family and apparently not known to others.

Don't Emphasize Adpoted Status

FOR ADVICE: Stop spinning yarns about how she entered your life. The adoption triangle is already well introduced, so forget it for the most part, that she may, too,—since after all she is your child now, and should be allowed to develop a whole-feeling as such, not jarred by insistent reminders of bewildering past history.

The next time to speak is when she questions; and then make it plain, in warm, simple words, that the adoption story was a sort of miracle from your viewpoint: that you wanted a baby, didn't "grow" one (as some mothers do) and therefore looked until you found her, the perfect answer. Enough said, until she is older, say 8, 10 or 12, when, if she asks again, she might draw reassurance from a brief factual discourse on adoption routine,—that takes such care to find the right parents for children.

Why are you so defensive about Ann Marie's adopted status? In all probability because you feel inferior to natural producers, hence unconsciously include the adopted child in your sense of stigma,—and you may need a bit of psychiatric help to outgrow that attitude.

Don't Hurry With Your Face

Women, in Haste, Look Harried

Women usually look their worst when they hurry.

With their faces fixed in a grim, fighting look, they tighten up, hunch their shoulders, strain their heads forward, pound their heels into the pavement, stop or turn abruptly, bump into people, stumble, lose their bundles—as well as their charm.

"You can get there just as fast and look pretty doing it, according to an article in the March issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. So—don't hurry with your face.

"Wipe off that tortured frown. Deliberately assume a calm, self-possessed expression; it will help you relax the muscles you aren't going to use. Take a solid comfortable hold on purse and bundles. Then walk upright, head up, eyes looking ahead, so you can plan turns and avoid obstacles.

"Keep head, shoulders and arms easy, and concentrate on walking. At each step, give a real push with the back foot, and swing along in balanced, rapid stride. You'll cover territory and look handsome too."

'It's Dynamite' Says Hull After Hospital Preview of 'The Roosevelt Story'

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

FOR the first time in a year former Secretary of State Cordell Hull left his room in the Bethesda Naval Hospital yesterday. Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Hull went downstairs to the hospital auditorium where a preview premiere run-off of "The Roosevelt Story" was shown for his special benefit. Mr. Hull was wheeled to the auditorium door, but walked the few yards to an armchair placed back of the regular seats.

And though Mrs. Hull repeatedly cautioned him not to tire himself talking, he seemed cheerful and greeted the reporters present with real cordiality.

Mrs. Hull, who wore a black tailored suit and mustard-colored silk blouse, said that he husband was almost recovered from the effects of an allergy induced by a sulpha-drug administered to counteract a minor infection. He still becomes dizzy at times, and during the filming complained once or twice about his eyes. While his memoirs were being written. Mr. Hull was kept on a strict schedule, allowed to see his two research workers and his literary collaborator only for extremely brief daily periods.

Got Mrs. Roosevelt's O. K.

OLIVER A. UNGER, producer of "The Roosevelt Story" sat beside Mr. Hull while the film was shown. This department, elbow to elbow with Mr. Unger, found him surprisingly young, very pleasant. The idea for filming "The Roosevelt Story" came to him on an Army transport returning from the European battlefront. It's compiled from newsreel shots of President Roosevelt, cleverly threaded together by several narrators, a skillful musical score, plus contemporary film shots to round out the picture.

Once Mrs. Roosevelt's permission had been obtained, it took Mr. Unger two years to satisfy her completely on every detail of the picture. During this spon, 13 scripts were written, enough film to make 250 full-length pictures were run off and meticulously assembled into a film which is 8000 feet long and takes 70 odd minutes to show. It's been translated into 14 languages, and in addition the Russians are anxious to have it. So far no decision has been made. Changes cannot be made in the completed film and there's always a chance the Soviets might angle it for Communist propaganda.

Anyway, Mr. Hull's verdict was "It's dynamite!" . . . The premiere is to take place this Thursday as gala curtain raiser for the new Dupont Circle Theater. Topflight diplomats, governamental big-wigs have been invited, and "The Roosevelt Story" is sure to cause tremendous comment.

Senator's Wife a Poetess

THIS DEPARTMENT is rapidly turning into a poetry corner! Latest rhymed opus to attract our attention is authored by Mrs. Joseph O'Mahoney, wife of Wyoming's Democratic Senator. Mrs. O'Mahoney wrote it as what she calls an "emotional reaction" after listening to Henry Wallace's running mate, Senator Glen Taylor, sound off against the Marshall Plan. Senator O'Mahoney was once city editor of the Cheyenne Leader, and his wife is a journalist in her own right. She pens a weekly Washington letter for the Wyoming Eagle, which is syndicated in almost a dozen Wyoming papers.

Mrs. O'Mahoney is a Yankee from Winchester, Mass., met her husband when he was recuperating from an illness and visiting relatives in nearby Salem. Her maiden name was Agnes O'Leary, and humorous Mrs. Carl Spaatz once wisecracked, "Agnes, you should really get a divorce! It would be marvelous to be called 'Mrs. O'Leary O'Mahoney'!"

Here's the poem!

THE SONG OF THE GIDEONS

We stand at Armageddon,
And we battle for the Reds,
While carefully adjusting
Our halos to our heads.

We're good and holy Gideons,
We're joyous and we're blithe,
Come join our happy army
And send us one small tithe.

We stand for peace and plenty,
A full and happy life,
For all you want, plus twenty,
A future free of strife.

In this land of boasted freedom,
We find much imperfection,
Injustice and misfortune
In nearly every section.

In Social Soviet Russia,
That land so great and bold,
All races, creeds and colors
Do precisely what they're told.

We think our foreign policy
A vicious thing and vague,
We point with scorn at Athens,
But feel all's well in Prague.

In Marshall's Plan for Europe
We find no sign of purity,
But we have strong conviction
That Russia needs security.

Oh, foolish men, who battle
Invaders with fierce vows,
Embrace those marching armies
And we will send you plows.

We stand at Armageddon,
And we battle for the Reds,
While carefully adjusting

Hungarian Envoy, Wife Give Reception

In celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Hungarian Ides of March, the Hungarian Minister and Mme. Vambery gave a reception last evening in the Burgundy Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. Top members of diplomatic and official society were received by the Minister and his wife between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock.

It was the first official party given by the Vamberys since their arrival here last December. Mrs. Vambery wore a blue gown shot with silver and a cluster of orchilds pinned at her waist. Masses of spring flowers were placed around the room, and from a buffet were served Hungaian delicacies flown here especially for the occasion.

The Minister spoke briefly on the Hungarian struggle for freedom, which the evening commemorated, and then introduced the guest artists for the evening. Michaly Fvekely, Metropolitan Opera singer, sang selections from an Hungarian opera, and Miklos Schwalb, Hungarian pianist, played a program of folk music.

'Share Shawl' Workers Meet At Mrs. Macy's

To stimulate interest in "Share the Shawl" project, Mrs. Noel Macy entertained yesterday afternoon at her home in Georgetown. Guests brought guests, and all were urged to pass "Share the Shawl" ideas on to others.

The project, which is new in Washington, was started in other cities some time ago. The AWVS organization here supplies wool at greatly reduced prices to be knit into shawls for England. Anyone who wishes may buy the wool at AWVS headquarters at Florida and Connecticut aves. or gather together old wool around the house and knit a shawl 1 yard by 2 yards, and sent it to the AWVS.

"Share the Shawl" was started at the suggestion of Lady Reading, because shawls are easy to ship and because they fit the need for warmth for every member of the family. Miss Anita Phipps is president of AWVS in Washington and Mrs. Alvin Roseman is chairman of the "Share the Shawl" committee.

Guests at Mrs. Macy's tea yesterday included Mrs. James Wadsworth, Mrs. Preston Delano, Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. Philip Shepley, Mrs. Emory Land, Mrs. Angus Dun, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, who introduced the idea to Washington, Mrs. Edward Fihkenstaedt, Mrs. Percy Black, Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Omar Bradley, and Mrs. John Sternhagen.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jenkins Macy of New York City, who are spending several months in Falls Church, celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary yesterday with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus S. Kauffman of Silver Spring, and grandson and granddaughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arthur Macy of Fairlington.

Democratic Club Hears Berding Talk On Cordell Hull

Members of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday heard Andrew Berding, author of a forthcoming book, "Life and Times of Cordell Hull," give an account of the former Secretary of State's creation of the Good Neighbor Policy.

Speaking at the club's weekly luncheon, he told how Hull had risen from a poor farm boy to high positions without losing his sense of balance. "He never became conscious of the trappings of his office," said Berding. "Once when en route to a South American conference a ship issued salvos. 'How many does the Secretary of State get,' I asked Hull.

"Hull replied: 'I don't know. Let's 'count them,'" recalled the speaker.

Trick Diets Whet Appetite for Square Fare

EVEN though reducing has gone scientific, there are perennial crops of Nine-Day Wonder, Ten-Day Miracle, and Daffy Diets galore—all promising to whisk off 10 pounds in 10 days . . . abbracadabra! Such diets sound fascinating—so fascinating they cast a spell and you lend an avid ear to the sweet music of promise. Ten pounds off . . . mmm-m, just musing about it makes you feel almost slim. And so, with sylph-determination, a-dieting you go.

The question is, will such diets help to normalize your weight? To be honest, any slimming program that is restricted to a set number of days—be the diet good or bad—is too temporary to make much of a dent in excess pounds. And reducing fare that is too far from normal cannot be followed in most cases until normal weight is reached. A very good thing for your health it is, too, for trick diets usually fail to meet the dietary needs of the body. And since there is nothing like flimsy fare to whet your appetite for good food, at the end of the time you enthusiastically return to overeating!

Faddy diets do nothing to strengthen your will power. The will is merely a set of habits. Lack of will with respect to fattening foods means wrong food habits. The only plan that helps to change your ways of eating from fattening to slimming to normal is to establish good habits of eating. There is only one diet that will do this, and that is the scientific formula which provides all nutrition essentials in protective amounts, with the calories cut in nonessentials to one third under your energy requirements. It is not really a diet; it is merely eating to get slim. And it's so nearly your regular ways of eating, you think it won't reduce your weight. It will. Furthermore, it is the only really safe diet to follow.

There is magic in it, too. On the protective slimming pattern, you can eat three meals a day, lose up to 2 pounds a week, get rid of the bulges, get back your bounce, stay younger yourself, and keep your weight at normal.

Plan the family meal around the essentials and restrict your fats and starches to keep within 1000 to 1100 calories a day. That number is for women. Men require 1400 to 1600 a day, depending, of course, on normal weight and activity.

Here is the list of essentials for a basic reducing diet:

	Calories
FRUITS: 1 whole orange or ½ grapefruit, or two thirds glass juice, plus two other fresh or canned fruits	250
EGGS AND CHEESE: 1 egg and 1 serving of cheese, or 2 eggs	150
MILK: 2 glasses of skim milk or buttermilk, or 1 glass plus cheese	180
VEGETABLES: 2 cooked, a green leafy or yellow, plus second cooked vegetable	100
RAW VEGETABLES: A green salad, celery, carrot slivers, tomatoes or slaw, any raw greens	25
BREAD—100 per cent whole grain, 2 thin slices	100
BUTTER: 1 pat, ¼-inch thick	50
MEAT: Lean meat, fish or fowl or meat organs, ¼ pound (liver once a week)	200

Women of Orient Have Equal Rights

Modern women of the Orient share equal rights with men. They attend co-educational schools, hold political offices, work in most of the professions and are keenly alert to national and international affairs. These are the conclusions reached in a panel discussion of "Women of the Orient" held last night under the auspices of the International Relations Committee of the D. C. Business and Professional Women's Club at the International Student House.

Participating in the forum discussion were Mme. H. S. Tan, wife of the Chinese Minister and former faculty member of the University of Nanking; Mrs. Ratan K. Nehru, wife of the Minister of India and an active worker in the All-India Women's Conference plus the Delhi Women's League; Senorita Trophy Ocampo, assistant press attache of the Philippine Embassy who was formerly with UNRRA in Manila.

Mme. Tan said that coeducation for Chinese men and women started around 1919 and has continued at a rapid rate. "Of course, there are a few girls' schools exclusively for the 'gentler sex'" she said, "but the majority are coeducational."

She went on to point out that the majority of the Chinese women in and around large cities are educated, and a minority in the rural areas. "Education needs to be extended further in remote areas," she explained.

Since China switched from monarchy to republic following the revolution, more and more women have jobs outside the homes. Now you'll find them serving as doctors, nurses, teachers, newspaper women, clerks and stenographers. Also, you'll find them serving in provincial and national legislatures, according to Mme. Tan.

Mrs. Nehru explained that Indian men had never fought full equal rights for women . . . that both sexes had worked together to obtain independence for the country. She pointed out that the women of her country serve in the highest diplomatic posts as well as in provincial and national legislatures.

Senorita Ocampo declared that America's best gift to the Filipino women was "education." "All professions are open to women in my country," she explained. "Moreover, we now have one woman in the Senate, one in the House of Representatives and five or six mayors."

Due to the war and increasing costs of living, more and more married women have taken jobs to assist their husbands as bread winners, according to the senorita.

Following the program, the BPW committee presented a check to Miss Martha Hoagland, assistant director of the International Student House, to further its works. Miss Thelma C. Heinrich arranged the program.

Models Give Benefit International Flavor

By Peggy Preston

ALL FOUR corners of the world will figure in the fashion show which is being planned March 31 for the benefit of the Institute of Chinese Culture.

Representing the Far East will be the clothes made of exquisite Chinese brocades and tissue silks. Their creator is Irene de Sancy, an attractive, talented Russian-born woman whose family migrated to China during the revolution of 1918.

But lending a truly international flavor to the show will be the models, chosen from diplomatic and official cirlces. Yesterday, at the Shoreham Hotel, where the show will take place, they were assembled for luncheon and dress rehearsals, under the direction of Mme. de Sancy.

Peggy Preston

There was lovely, dark-haired Nora Martins, daughter of the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, representing the Republics of South America. She fingered a luscious evening gown of pale green and gold brocade, decided it was the dress for her. Iceland and the countries to the far north were present in the person of gay, amusing Margaret Thors, daughter of the Icelandic Minister and Mme. Thors. France had an emissary in Mme. Jean-Pierre Gabriel, the former Nancy King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Paul King.

Washington girls who will play at being mannequins for the affair are Mrs. Nathaniel Luttrell, Miss Betty Jeanne Harrell, Miss Romona North and Mrs. Paul V. Myron. Modeling women's clothes will be Mrs. Robert E. Freer. Trim and chic yesterday in a gray tailored suit and flowered Dache hat, she selected the dress she will wear in the show. It is of a smoky gray brocade with overtones of blue that match her eyes, and is cut on long, slender lines. "This is going to be fun," said this handsome mother of four. "It's been 20 years since I modeled."

Also on the model list is raven-haired Maime Li of China, who will wear some of the typically Chinese frocks which Mme. de Sancy designs for Western women. They fall slim and straight from the shoulder, with tiny slits at the hemline. Treatment at the neckline and shoulders give them a modernizd air, but fabrics used are entirely Chinese in origin.

Miss Drucie Snyder, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder, who will be commentator at the show, was among guests at the luncheon. She arrived from her job as a broadcaster at a suburban radio station, attired in an all-brown ensemble, including wool dress and large beret of matching fabric and short fur jacket.

On the Date-Book!

ONE IN A series of fashion shows at Congressional Country Club takes place during the luncheon hour today when Erlbacher's will present a showing of spring clothes . . . Members of St. James Mothers' Club of Falls Church, Va., are sponsoring a fashion show Friday at 1 p. m. in Odd Fellow's Hall. Proceeds will be for the benefit of St. James Parochial School now being built at Falls Church.

Dawn Bentata, New Zealand dress designer, is staging her first fashion show in this country on Saturday at 1:30 p. m., in the Pall Mall Room at the Raleigh Hotel.

Miss Bentate who arrived in the United States about a year ago will show a collection of silk prints designed for late spring and early summer.

Art Students Awarded Prizes

At an exhibit and tea at her home Sunday, Mrs. Theodore Kane awarded prizes to other art students for paintings completed during the year.

Mrs. Letitia Galloway won first prize for a small oil called "Peasant," and Samuel Hassman won second prize for a composition with two figures in oils. For third prize Miss Ann Dunn of Alexandria and Miss Clarissa Minano tied. Honorable mention was made of work by Mrs. Mary Greene and Mrs. Pearl Martufi.

For a Glamorous Coiffure

DAME FASHION can be a contrary lass. First she has decreed that the short bob is a "must." Then she comes up with some elaborate ideas for making your hair appear longer—all in the same season. It's done with pin-on hairpieces. Grandma called them "switches." Today's pin-on hairpieces are being use t docreate complete new hairstyles. By day you can enjoy your own close cropped locks. For evening formals, when you feel the need of a more glamorous, sophicated coiffure, you simply use a "pin-on." The model at the right changes from the demure to the exotic with the help of a pin-on piece made by Joseph Fleischer. Her short hair is swept away from her face, a gleaming coronet of braids added, then topped by a softly-swirled coil

Night Terrors May Be Caused by Allergies

By Myrle Meyer Eldred

Any parent is entitled to be perturbed when her child has the habit of waking at night and screaming. This is the more upsetting when the cause of this behavior cannot be discovered. Perhaps this letter will interest mothers whose children have had this habit and they have found no remedy for it.

Mrs. D. P. writes, "You published a letter a month or so ago in which Mrs. N. J. M. complains of the night-time behavior of her 7-month-old baby who wakens at night and screams. She said she was a good child in the daytime, but a 'terror at night.'

"My son, now 11 months old, has done this same thing since he was 5 months old. He will go days without waking, and then suddenly he is at it again. Usually this happens two hours after he goes to bed.

"He is extremely healthy and a contented child. He has a monthly checkup by his doctor and is in A-1 condition.

"I found that if I went in to see what was wrong I made him worse. So I never go near him.

"If this mother is sure her child's diet is sufficient, it might be worth while for her to allow the child to go undisturbed for a couple of nights. She could see if this helps. By feeding the child when it wakes she might form another habit which would be difficult to break."

There is a belief, expressed recently in medical journals, that behavior may be related to a child's personal allergies. One mother discovered this night screaming was caused by the child's allergy toward fish products, oats, corn, raisins, sweets.

It is wise to keep a chart of the child's food and see if there can be any relation to his daytime diet and his night screaming. Consult a physician to help check on this.

BEWARE OF PIN-WORMS

Watch for the warning signs, such as the anal itching of Pin-Worms. After centuries of Pin-Worm misery, really effective way to deal with them has been established through JAYNE [illegible] the new Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne [illegible]. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets give satisfaction or your money back. Ask for the famous old Pin-Worm! If you suspect this ugly infection, ask your druggist for P-W and follow the directions. It's easy to remember: P-W for Pin-Worms!

Democratic Women To Hear Mrs. Douglas

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas will be guest speaker at the dinner meeting of the Woman's National Democratic Club scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Thursday, March 18. She will discuss latest developments of the European Recovery Program.

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

Judging from the gay, friendly, laughing expression of Dr. Alberto Lleras, Director of the Pan American Union (left) and Mrs. G. R. Occasion of the get-together was the AAUW's tea yesterday afternoon when the handsome Director General appeared as guest of honor and speaker

'Rule of Three' Given for Home Colors

In working out color schemes for home decoration, never match the large areas of a room in color, according to Margaret Riley, stylist and author of "Color Tricks Galore with Fabrics." Blend and contrast colors, she says. Once the key color is decided, choose the darkest value for the rug; a lighter tone for the walls; and a medium value for the fabrics.

A "simple rule of three" has been introduced as the "open sesame" to decorating a colorful home by Miss Riley. She explains: "The magical formula means that there are three large areas in a room—walls, floor and draperies. By using two of these areas in values of one color, and repeating the color on a large piece of furniture in a different value, the color shell of the room is established."

Soda Helps to Shine Blackened Pots

After the maid has left and you go into the kitchen to find all your aluminum pans with black bottoms, don't be discouraged, but set them in a shallow pan in which a teaspoon of soda has been dissolved in a little water. Then heat the pan to the boiling point and let simmer for a few minutes. The pans will then clean up very readily.

Dr. Lleras Says U. N. Can Learn From Inter-American System

By Genevieve Reynolds

Dr. Alberto Lleras, Director General of the Pan American Union, declared yesterday that the United Nations Organizations would have to be "radically changed and reconstructed in order to pursue its program of pacification."

Guest of honor and speaker at a tea given by the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women, he said, "The United Nations was born on the assumption that none of the great powers wanted anything but peace, and as long as this remains true there will be no war. But on the very day that it ceases to be true, the organization will be unable to survive in its present form. In order to pursue its program of pacification it will have to be radically changed and reconstructed along other lines.

Dr. Lleras pointed out that United States imperialism no longer exists in this hemisphere. "The States that might have been a target for imperialism appealed to the jurdicial conscience of the North Americans, to those same principles that these people had been accustomed to respecting within their own territory," he explained. "Thus the Good Neighbor Policy was evolved with a subtle viriation of the old commandant—let us treat our neighbors as we treat ourselves."

Living Together

The speaker emphasized that in a law-abiding association, large and small, rich and poor, weak and strong powers can live together provided the juridicial equality of all is duly recognized. He said that other nations have pondered the mysteries of this Inter-American System of ours. "In terms of law, it makes excellent sense," he added. "In terms of force, it is naturally incomprehensible."

Non-intervention, majority rule and the condemnation of the use of force are three of the main factors that have contributed to the success of the Western Hemisphere peace organization, according to Dr. Lleras. "The people of the Americas have lived in the shelter of intrinsic juridicial principles that make them accept the same basic rules for both individual and collective actions," he stated. They have not felt th need for a fixed voting procedure for the conferences held by the 21 American Republics since dissenting states always have been willing to abide by the decisions of the majority.

"On the other hand, in the United Nations," he continued, "problem arising out of the veto controversies focussed attention on the fact that to some powers it is unthinkable to take a vote at an international assembly without giving due weight to the military strength of each participant.

Opposed to Force

Dr. Lleras contended that international political organizations must be based on the condemnation of the use of force as a matter of course. Then he declared, "The American Nations are determined to stamp out the use of force in human relations. We are convinced that every conflict is possible of solution without resort to force."

Warning that the international organization does not exist that can in itself serve as an instrument for the preservation of world peace, the Director General concluded that "ability to keep peace depends on a state of mind and hinges on a willingness to submit voluntarily to certain principles of law as occur in the case of the American states."

Turning to the economic field, he stressed that much remains to be done in the Inter-American System. "The system runs the risk of getting out of balance if political cooperation out-progress a corresponding development in economic and cultural cooperation."

Your Questions On Homemaking

Do you know of anyone who might be able to use old neckties—probably some one or group who makes silk patch quilts or the like? J. S. W.

I do not happen to know of a local group needing such neckties. However, a recent national publication mentioned a gentleman, Harvey W. Morley, publisher of the Angola, Indiana, Herald who sends them to Europeans who have suggested they could use them.

I am wondering if you could tell me where I can send for patterns for men's summer shorts, as I have been unable to find any myself in the town where I live. H. E.

Write to one of the Washington department stores, addressing your letter to the "Shopper's Service" and they will send you C.O.D a pattern for men's shorts. Be sure to specify the size of pattern you wish when you write.

I would like to know how to treat a chicken fryer so things do not stick in it. I think it is cast iron, but am not sure. It is very heavy, so don't believe it is aluminum. H. J. J.

Wash the chicken fryer, rinse and dry. With a pastry brush, spread melted vegetable shortening or vegetable oil on the inside of the utensil and inside of the cover. Do not use a fat containing salt. Place in a warm oven 250 degrees F. to 300 degrees or on top of the stove over low heat for several hours. Occasionally add more fat as it is heated. Wipe off excess fat when seasoning period is over.

How can I clean and glaze fur? G. C. K.

Fur can be cleaned by dampening corn meal or sawdust with a dry-cleaning solvent such as carbon tetrachloride and rubbing this well into the fur with your hands. Then shake, brush, and air the fur.

If badly soiled, small pieces of good-quality fur can be washed in warm suds. Use a mild cake soap with an oil base or a jellylike oil soap. Rinse. Squeeze out as much water as possible, for an excess of water in the pelt hardens it. Hang the fur up by the edge so air can circulate on both sides as it dries. If the skin hardens, work between the hands before it is dry. When thoroughly dry, shake and brush until fur is fluffy.

To glaze fur, first brush and comb it well. Lay it out flat, and with a damp sponge stroke the fur lightly in the direction that the hair grows, that is, with the flow of the fur. Be careful that no water penetrates to the skin. Cover fur with tissue paper to absorb and keep moisture from the skin. Run a hot iron very quickly over the paper. Lift paper and run iron quickly over the fur—again with the flow of fur. This is a job that must be very swiftly done to avoid scorching.

Where can I obtain tarnish-proof bags for my sterling silver holloware pieces and candelabra? A. B.

Such bags are quite hard to locate these days, it seems. Although many jewelers suply them along with silver when it is purchased, they are seldom sold separately. However, a large local department store carries tarnish proof cloth in its housewares section. You could buy this and make the bags yourself. In the stationary section of the same store, I find, tarnish-proof paper is sold. This is a white paper that comes with 24 sheets of varying sizes packed in one box.

I would like to know if there is any sort of greeting card club here that sends out cards for any occasion one specifies, such as birthdays and anniversaries. In the home town that I come from, there was a club that worked this way. I would make out a list of all the people that I wanted to remember, give them the date, and occasion, and they would take care of the rest. L. L.

I do not know of such a club here. Perhaps some other reader can enlighten us.

How would you suggest cleaning a white hand-made French dress that has not been used but has become dusty from laying around. It is a very fine cotton material. S. W.

It seems to me washing in mild soapsuds and lukewarm water would be the best way to clean this fine white cotton dress, unless there is embroidery that will fade. You could test the embroidery by sponging a small inconspicuous portion of it over an absorbent pad. Of course, the dress could also be dry cleaned or you could try to remove dirty streaks with some dry cleaning powder such as Fuller's Earth or French chalk. However, there's nothing that makes white cottons as snowy white and attractive as proper laundering.

Avoid the Straight Line

Hollywood Shares Secrets Of Making Up to Look Young

By Ida Jean Kain

In the movies, makeup magicians can make the star appear any age—young, middle-aged, or old. Naturally we're only interested in the art of looking young!

Here are the tricks of the trade in movie makeup. The gist of it is that straight lines and angles are aging. Curves are youthful. A straight mouth with no curve can make a woman look 10 years older. It's grimness that pulls a mouth down into a straight line. So straight lines, sharp angles and a grim outlook should be avoided. And so should blue and purple tints in rouge and lipstick. They are aging, too.

The eyebrows should follow their natural arch and never be plucked to a thin line. Thank goodness, today's glamour girls are going in quite heavily for eyebrows. These give a face more expression. In using a brow pencil, make soft, short strokes along the top line of the brow. Hard, straight lines are aging.

Does touching up the hair help a woman look younger, or sharpen her features? A touch-up is fine, or even a dye, according to Hollywood. Out there some of the queens have forgotten what color their hair really is! But never make the hair darker than nature's original plan, for darkening brings out all the lines in the face. Horrors!

Where do the movie stars show age first? The same place other women do—at the jowls and the chin line. And how can a double chin be camouflaged? It can't. There is only one remedy for double-chin troubles, and that's exercise. Plus, of course, beautiful head carriage.

The film stars have pretty fair faces to start with, but they are not perfect . . . and that's where the tricks are used. To make a long face appear a perfect oval, the makeup maestros start with the hair, using fluffy bangs, or having the hair smooth on top and full at the temples or sides. Curls high on top would add length to the face. The eyebrows should be extended slightly, but the penciling starts a fourth of the way back, not at the front edge, which would draw them together.

Now, what to do about a big nose? The idea is to put it in the shade by using a slightly darker powder base on it, one shade darker. To banish those deep parenthesis nose-to-mouth lines, use a lighter shade.

The makeup rules for round faces—avoid circles, no rosebud mouth, no round spot for rouge. Rouge shuld be applied in a triangle, but never higher than the top of the cheek bone, regardless of the shape of the face. Naturalness is the thing, girls.

Sausage Upside Down Pie Is Dinner Hit

1 pound bulk pork sausage	4 teaspoons baking powder
2 medium-sized onions	½ teaspoon salt
1 can condensed tomato soup	1/3 cup lard
2 cups all-purpose flour	2/3 to ¾ cup milk

Shape sausage into patties. Place in cold skillet. Cook over low heat until patties are well-browned and thoroughly cooked. Pour off excess fat as it accumulates. Remove patties to casserole. Slice onions into rings and brown slowly in small amount of sausage drippings. Place onions in casserole and pour 1 can condensed tomato soup over meat and onions. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in lard with pastry blender. Stir in enough milk to make a dough that can be handled. Turn out and lightly knead about ½ minute. Pat out dough to size that will fit casserole. Place on top of meat mixture. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 15 to 20 minutes or until biscuit dough is well-browned and done throughout. Turn out on platter so meat and onions are on top. Cut into wedges to serve.

So dramatically new it might have just left Paris . . . with its flattering, longer length, its elated swirl-skirt. The dress is the superbly designed basic you love for its simplicity, its cinched-in waistline is glamourized with a pink leather belt . . . and above it all is the swinging, fluttering allure of the debonair cape. Navy sheer wool in sizes 10 to 16 . . . . . 69.95

2 Contempt Of Congress Trials Start

For one, Joseph P. Kamp, 46, acting chairman of the Constitutional Educational League, it marked retrial of contempt charges after a jury failed to agree in his case in December, 1946. Second defendant was Richard Morford, 45, executive director of the National Council American-Soviet Friendship.

Kamp was cited for refusal to produce records showing the contributors to his organization when called to testify before a House expenditures committee investigating political campaign expenses of 1944 elections. A jury of three women and nine men was selected yesterday but excused pending argumnts over legal points.

Morford was indicted last March 31 after the House Un-American Activities Committee cited him for refusal to turn over the council's financial records and correspondence, including names of contributors. Jury was selected after defense failed to delay the trial pending subjena of Congressmen witnesses.

Both trials were scheduled to resume today.

7 Private Banks Join Government In Belgian Loan

Seven private banks yesterday joined the Government in extending an economic recovery loan to Belgium.

The Federal Export-Import Bank put up 32 million dollars and the commercial banks 18 million dollars of a 50-million-dollar credit repayable with 3½ per cent interest over the next five years.

The money will help Belgium pay for goods purchased from the United States.

William McC. Martin, jr., chairman of the board of the Export-Import Bank, said the loan demonstrated that private banking establishments can team up successfully with the Government in helping to finance European loans.

The European Recovery Program is based on the expectation that private investors will put up several billion dollars over the next few years to complement the funds appropriated by Congress.

Parking Ticket 'Bargain Days' End in Maryland

Salisbury, Md., March 15 (AP).—City Treasurer Wade H. Insley, jr., has decreed there will be no more "bargain days" on parking tickets.

C. Douglas Sergeant came to Insley's office and shelled out the usual $1 fine on a ticket.

"Got a wholesale rate on these?" he asked.

"Sure," said Insley. "Ten dollars a dozen."

Parcel Takes Greetings From Baltimore Airport

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro's greetings to the people of the Netherlands went along today with the first overseas air mail parcel post package dispatched from Baltimore Municipal Airport.

The package left here at 2:15 p. m. for New York and should reach Mayor T. J. Oud of Rotterdam-Amsterdam Thursday. It contains bread, preserves and canned stew. The ceremonies here marked beginning of the service to 21 foreign countries.

Wife Recovering After Shooting by Husband in Home

Mrs. Clara Boyer, 60, was recovering from head injuries and a bullet wound in the cheek in Garfield Hospital yesterday as plans were completed for the funeral of her husband, Harold Stuart Boyer, 58.

Police said Boyer shot his wife early Sunday in a bedroom of their home, 1429 Varnum st. nw., then went to the basement where he fired a .22-caliber rifle bullet into his brain.

Boyer was chief estimater for Barber & Ross, a building supply firm. A certificate of suicide in his death was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

It was announced that private graveside services for Boyer will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at Loudoun Park Cemetery, Baltimore.

Child Labor Laws In Maryland Held Due for Revision

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—State Labor Commissioner Joseph J. DiDomenico said last night that Maryland's child labor laws are unfair and antiquated. He predicted they will be revised drastically by the General Assembly next session.

DiDomenico heads a State commission appointed by Governor Lane last week to study possible revision of child labor statutes. The commission is scheduled to report its recommendations to the Governor and to the legisative council by next September.

He cited as an example of what he called the "antiquated" child labor laws, the one which kept a 10-year-old Baltimore girl from appearing with the La Scala Opera Co. here recently.

Boy, 2, Killed While Playing on Railroad Track

Hagerstown, Md., March 15 (Spl.)—Two-year-old James Roger Mills, jr., was killed instantly today when he wandered on to the Western Maryland Railroad tracks and was struck by a passenger train.

The child was the son of James Roger Mills, sr., used car salesman, who lives near the railroad right of way near Hancock. He had walked on the tracks while playing near his home.

The train engineer said he blew the whistle and applied the emergency brakes as soon as he saw the child playing in the middle of the track. The accident occurred about noon when the train was on a run from Hagerstown to Cumberland.

Truck Driver Gets 5-Year Sentence In Assault Case

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—A sentence of five years in the Maryland House of Correction was imposed today on a white truck driver convicted of assault on a young Negro girl.

Joseph W. Dober, 30, and married, originally was convicted of assault with intent to rape as well as simple assault but the Supreme Bench of Baltimore reversed its Criminal Court and found there was insufficient evidence to support the former charge.

Dober was a driver for a fuel oil company. Testimony showed he seized a 17-year-old Negro maid at an apartment house where he was making a delivery November 17.

Dunn Is Reelected

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 15 (AP).—Garland L. Dunn has been re-elected president of the Berkeley County War Memorial Association, organized to build a city and county park. He said contributions to date total $50,000.

One on the Aisle—

Maestro Jones Offers Concert

By Richard L. Coe

From Yesterday's Late Editions
(With Apologies to Music Critic Paul Hume)

MAESTRO LINDLEY ARMSTRONG JONES (known to the cognoscenti as Spike) conducted his celebrated orchestra last evening in the National Theater.

The program was drawn and quartered. The Capital's experts turned out en masse and heard the worst music and oldest jokes this side of the next atom bomb and loved every minute of it. The great maestro disappointed no one.

One whose ears are ringing yet has difficulty in picking out the most charming tintinabulation of the evening. There is, for instance, a particularly appealing taxi horn that has a truly marvellous insousance and an effective fire alarm that is sheer murder on the inner ear.

But it is the combinations of sounds wherein this master of din especially shines. He has fused the hair-raising vocal power of Operatic Soprano Ina Souez with a fog horn which must once have served the mighty Queen Elizabeth. Nor has the master arranger of our day forgotten visual appeal; to accompany Miss Souez and the Elizabeth's fog horn he has devised a beautiful electric sign that spells out "T-I-L-T" at the exact moment their chords are blending. The "Glow Worm" which they serve couldn't be luuuvlier.

After this aural and visual high-point of his concert, the skilled maestro unerringly decides that to cap this effort would require more than earthly powers and he swings into the symphonic arrangement that is so much his own—the subtle "Cocktails for Two."

Fascinating Tonal Blends

The ingenuity with which these tones are blended will capture the hearts of all who have studied symphonic composition. The ability with which the sounds of billiard balls, fire alarms, bricks, pails, jack pots, sleigh bells, trays, hotwater bottles, plungers, mops, brooms and billiard counters are merged with the more familiar strings, brasses and tympani just prove what Californians can do if let loose.

Along with his City Slickers (Sleekairs de la Ville), Maestro Jones has brought his radio and disc favorities, who achieve solid degrees of success with such unlikely material as "We wrote Mother Machree, but she didn't answer." Among his company you'll find Doodles Weaver, Helen Grayco, Bettyjo Huston, Earle Bennett, Purv Pullen, Roger Donley, J. L. Martin, Dick Morgan, Jeff Griffith, the Gardner Twins, Paul Judson and Merle Howard, all of whom make their homes in California, make of which what you will.

Non-Californians Allowed

Others in the group include Dick Gardner, Joe Siracusa, George Rock, Bill King, Franki Little, Paul Leu, Freddy Morgan, Robert Perry and Renee Paul, who are not from California.

Nor should any report of this concert (which will be repeated for the next two weeks, Fridays excepted) fail to include mention of the sartorial splendor of the artists. The fashion editors of Esquire and Pic should hang their heads in shame for the outrageous conservatism with which their pages are riddled.

The chivalry of the conductor permitted the ladies of his company to be dressed in conservative strapless, form-fitting evening gowns and the live pigeon bonnet with which he has provided Mme. Souez may yet find a home on someone's supper table.

All in all, Maestro Jones' "Musical Depreciation Revue" is a truly harrowing evening of fearful noises and corny jokes and everyone seemed to have a delicious time.

THIS IS A BANDLEADERS' week. With Spike at the National, Horace Heidt at the Capitol and Stan Kenton up at the Howard, the music lovers are having themselves a fiesta . . . Kenton's thumping rhythms prompt the musicologists in the art department to drop this department a note . . . Stan's doing five shows a day up at the Howard through Thursday and, say Freddie Powell and John Burwell, "it's terrific." . . . June Christy's along, getting her usual ovation and the boys add, there also are a comedy team and four wild jitterbug dancers to add to the holiday air of the screaming trumpets and roaring trombones of the Kenton band.

SPRING always means a Gilbert and Sullivan exercise and this year the Sidwell-Friends School comes up with a production of "The Pirates of Penzance" to be staged in the American University Auditorium Friday afternoon at 3, that night at 8:30 and Saturday evening . . . In Director Frederic E. Delzell's company are Morton Miller, Konrad Kaplowitz, Wolfgang Somary, Patrick Maloney, John Burland, Mary Ellen Harton, Sara Starr, Catherine Winslow, Charlotte Emerson and Sally Rosenthal.

THE GREET Dramatic Academy, now in its 16th year, is reviving its scholarships, awarded by Director Maurice Greet in memory of his father, Sir Philip Ben Greet, the indefatigable British actor whose tours were annual events . . . Applicants must be over 17 and should write the school of their education and experience, including local telephone number . . . Tryouts are set for next week at the school's headquarters, 3225 N st. nw.

DON BASILO: Italo Tajo, the Italian basso, who sings one of Rossini's comic figures in the Little's screen version of "The Barber of Seville." Ferruccio Tagliavini, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, and Tito Gobbi are others in the cast of this Italian film version of the operatic favorite

Hedda Hopper's Hollywood

Hollywood — Paulette Goddard, back in Hollywood, is sitting for portraits at Paramount, and trying to collect back salary from Ben Bogeaus. Evidently she didn't know that before Sarah Bernhardt gave a performanse she demanded her salary in gold . . . Paulette has taken over a larger furnished apartment from Mitch Leisen. She didn't have enough room to hang her paintings in the smaller one. While waiting for the start of "Lucretia Borgia," she will go to Mexico for an Easter vacation. Regarding the story that she is adopting an orphan, Paulette says, "I have no intention of adopting anybody unless it's A. C. Blumenthal." . . . while in Europe she saw the winter Olympic games at St. Moritz, and tells me that Norma Shearer is a whizbang on skis. Paulette bought no clothes abroad—not even a tiara. Her audience with the Pope was newsreeled by the Italians.

Paulette delivered CARE packages, paid for by American school children, to kids in four countries. A mother superior in Italy asked whether she could have 160 packages instead of 100, as some of her children were living on 10 cents a day, and many were sleeping in their clothes. But they all go down to the American cemetery three times a week to pray for our dead. "People are so hungry," says Paulette, "that they don't care whether food comes from Russia or America, just so long as they're fed."

Work and Play

Clark Gable expects to start "Command Decision" in a month. Before beginning the picture, he may go to New York to see it on the stage. He was wanted for the play, but refused it, saying he would like to do it on the screen. There isn't a woman in the cast. . . . "If you ever want a real vacation," says Clark, "go to Tucson. I was there 4½ weeks, and haven't been so quiet in 20 years. It drove me crazy. A pal came down to keep me company, but got a case of sunburn and had to high-tail it back to Hollywood." When I asked Clark why he didn't marry Dolly O'Brien, he said, "She runs so fast I can't catch her."

Years ago Katherine Hepburn tried to get Metro to buy "Mourning Becomes Electra," so she and Greta Garbo could star in it . . . John Wayne, who will do three pictures this year, is already scheduled for a fourth. Titled "The Alamo." It is being written by Pat Ford. Sure, it's about the historic Texas fort, and most likely will be shot in San Antonio.

Stockholders Of Pepco Now Near 50,000

By S. Oliver Goodman

Control of Potomac Electric Power Co. now is in the hands of nearly 50,000 stockholders instead of a single corporate holder, President Alfred G. Neal reported yesterday.

Neal

Pepco's parent firm, the Washington Railway & Electric Co., was dissolved during the year. Neal traced the corporate changes which followed and the new distribution of Pepco's preferred and common stocks.

Sweeping as the changes were, Neal in the pamphlet report emphasized that Pepco's activities were not affected. Sales of electricity reached an all-time high of 1,831,798,879 kilowatt hours during the year and net property additions of $11,389,000 were more than double those of 1946.

Current construction program of Pepco is 19 million dollars and that of its wholly owned subsidiary is 23 million dollars.

As reported previously, net income of $3,277,629 for 1947 was equal to 98.6 cents a share on the 2,961,250 shares outstanding at the end of the year. This compared with $3,289,633 in the previous year.

Operating revenue of $26,890,000 increased about 10 per cent. Operating costs of $23,613,000 were up by about 12 per cent, influenced chiefly by higher fuel and labor costs.

HILTON HOTELS: Business volume and earnings of Hilton Hotels Corp., which operates the Mayflower in Washington, reached a new high in 1947, President C. N. Hilton reported yesterday. Gross revenue last year was $42,534,238, against $39,483,266 in 1946. Net earnings of $5,509,040 were equal to $3.13 a common share, against $3,550,547 or $1.90 a share in 1946. The 1947 net included a nonrecurring net profit of $949,508 from sale of certain properties.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Richard H. Clare, Washington general passenger agent of Pennsylvania Railroad, today will take the same title in Philadelphia and J. B. Dorrance, jr., succeeds Clare in the Washington job. . . . James Rotto, Hecht Co. sales and publicity director, will speak March 30 at the second annual Brand Names program in New York City. . . . Alfred G. Neal, president of Potomac Electric Power Co., will address the Washingtos Chapter of National Association of Cost Accountants, at a meeting tomorrow in Lafayette Hotel.

CRITICISM: The American male isn't as well-dressed as the shirt makers would like. Last year he bought only three shirts and one sport shirt, says the National Association of Shirt and Pajama Makers. The total is 16 million dozen shirts. But that "is an inadequate consumer consumption by any standard," says the group severely.

ODD LOTS: Steel output rate this week was scheduled at 97.5 per cent of capacity, a new post-war record. . . . Firms affiliated with Radio Manufacturers Association produced 35,889 television sets in February, a new record for one month's output. . . . Consolidated Gas Electric Light & Power Co. of Baltimore has sold 15 million dollars in bonds to help finance its 1948-49 construction program. . . . Pennsylvania Railroad invited bids on $10,995,000 of equipment trust certificates. . . . For the first time in history of port, Norfolk next month will be on the receiving end of imports of iron ore from Brazil.

VEPCO BONDS: White, Weld & Co., were high bidder for 10 million dollars of Virginia Electric & Power Co., first refunding mortgage bonds, series F, due 1978 and bearing a 3 per cent coupon, on a bid of 100.682. The company plans to reoffer the bonds at 100.99 to yield approximately 2.95 per cent, subject to award and SEC clearance.

EARNINGS: Texas Co. and subsidiaries reported net income of $106,312,617 for 1947, equal to with $71,089,267 or $6.32 a share in 1946. Other major income reports included:

Sales of GMC Set New Peak Of 3.8 Billion

General Motors Corp. reported for 1947 record peacetime net sales of $3,815,159,163 and net income of $287,991,373.

The income was equivalent to $6.24 a share and compared with $87,526,311 or $1.76 a share, which included a tax credit adjustment in 1946 when strikes and material shortages interefed with operations.

Uneven supply of materials created serious operating problems again last year, C. E. Wilson, president, and Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the board, said in the report to more than 436,000 stockholders.

Sheet steel was described as "the principal limiting factor in automobile production."

Reporting the corporation's 600-million-dollar program for improved and expanded facilities, started after the war, was virtually completed in 1947, the officers said:

"It has not been possible, however, to produce and deliver to dealers enough cars to meet the needs of their customers. Many inconveniences have resulted. The solution is more materials to build more cars. Plants and machinery needed for greater production have been ready. The only limitation has been the shortage of raw materials."

The record net sales in 1947 were nearly double the $1,962,502,289 reported in the preceding year.

Unit sales of GM passenger cars totaled 1,503,046 compared with 848,690 in 1946 and a 1937-41 average of 1,494,957.

Sales of Chevrolet and GMC trucks totaled 427,872 against 326,758 in 1946 and an average of 337,509 in the last five prewar years.

GM passenger car sales in 1947 were 40 per cent of the industry's output compared with 38 per cent in 1946 and 44 per cent in 1937-41.

General Foods Net Drops

General Foods Corp. reported for 1947 the highest volume of dollar sales in its history, but earnings less than in 1946. Net earnings were $12 303,594, or $3.19 a share. In 1946 they were $21,147,515, or $3.79 a. common share. Sales were $407,266,000 against $317,790,000 in 1946.

PRR Names Public Relations Head

Philadelphia, March 15 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad today announced the appointment of a director of public relations. President Martin W. Clement named E. A. Kaier, general attorney of the PRR, to the post.

The railroad offered no explanation of its change in policy, but a spokesman pointed out no immediate changes were made in the organization's subsidiary publicity and advertising setup.

Kaier's offices will be established in the 30th street station here. A graduate of Penn State and the Pennsylvania Law School, Kaier has been in PRR's legal department since 1933.

Private Wire Network Links Banks in 16 Cities

A private wire network which links 19 banks in 16 cities was inaugurated yesterday. Washington member is the American Security & Trust Co., which now can communicate with other terminal points in a matter of minutes. Average elapsed time for coast-to-coast transmission will be about four minutes, said Daniel W. Bell, president of A. S. & T. The network was established by Bankers Trust Co. of New York.

House Blunts Useful Tools By Slashing BLS Budget

By J. A. Livingston

REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE B. SCHWABE (R., Okla.) has a way about him—even when he disagrees with you. He's homespun, 61, looks a bit like Will Rogers, and a picture of Rogers hangs on his office wall in the old House Office Building.

Schwabe doesn't go in for statistics and he'll tell you so without any prodding. He's a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Livingston

Last year, after the House subcommittee on Department of Labor appropriations cut the Bureau of Labor Statistics from $6,381,000 to four million dollars, Schwabe got another million knocked off on the House floor. But the Senate restored it.

NOW Schwabe's at the BLS again. The BLS sought an increase, hoping to restore some of the activities that had to be curtailed by last year's 36 per cent reduction. Instead, cut again: This time by 39 per cent—to $2,500,000. It was the largest cut of any bureau or division in the Department of Labor.

Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.) is chairman of the House subcommittee which reported the cut. Apparently, he didn't have his heart in it. His report gave only 15 lines to the BLS, as against 41 lines to the Women's Bureau, whose budget is only a tenth as large as the BLS. Keefe didn't offer any detailed justification, merely saying:

"The committee held extensive hearings on the whole assortment of statistical activities engaged in by this bureau and is far from convinced that many of them are absolutely essential." Keefe said to me: "I think the funds of the BLS have been cut too much."

Schwabe has no such misgivings. I said to him: "Congressman, you'd be annoyed, would you not, if the BLS cut out the cost-of-living index for lack of funds?"

He replied: "Not a bit. They don't get the true cost of living. They just make a spot check. The figures are out of date when we get the reports. I don't think it would make a difference to anybody in the world if we didn't have those figures."

No professional economists or statisticians were called by the subcommittee to testify whether the statistics were accurate, used, useful, or duplicated by other Government agencies. I mentioned this to Keefe, who said: "Yes, that's right. You should have appeared. We need a man like you on this committee."

Schwabe's reaction was entirely different. He said: "Experts! Why you know what an expert is. Back home in Oklahoma he's any son of a gun who's a thousand miles from home and takes the witness stand."

THE BUREAU of Labor Statistics provides a service. It's not tangible like a Marine Band or a Boulder Dam. But it can be judged. The cost of living index was the basis of the famous "little steel" formula during the war. Thus it was an influential factor in curbing wages, prices and inflation. Right now, the BLS is working on productivity data—to enable economists and statisticians to determine whether management and workers are becoming more efficient. That's bound to be of increasing significance in the months ahead—to indicate whether businessmen can increase wages without increasing prices.

BLS data not only provide a broad, theoretical understanding of what makes the economy tick, but they answer practical questions. For instance: Have John L. Lewis' miners caught up with the wage parade? Answer: Yes, they're now leading it. Question: Are steel prices high or low? Answer: Relative to the rise in most commodity prices, steel quotations are low. Question: Has the Taft-Hartley Act increased strikes? Answer: Not statistically; man-days lost due to strikes in January were only 1,000,000 as against 1,400,000 in January, 1947, and 20,000,000 in January, 1946.

When Representative Schwabe complains that we have been getting the cost of living many weeks after the event, he's right. He can claim an assist. He cut the budget so that the bureau had to cut personnel. Pennies were saved, promptness was lost.

OUR SOCIETY is complex. Neither the President nor Congress can function intelligently unless they have basic information about wages, hours worked, employment, prices, home building, productivity, etc. In passing the Employment Act of 1946, Congress formally accepted the responsibility for watching over the economic ups and downs of the Nation. This doesn't mean that the BLS is sacrosanct budgetwise. But it does mean that Congressmen, in self-interest, ought to investigate before they curtail research and statistics. They may discover too late that they have thrown away tools they'll later need. Statistics—like saws and chisels—must be kept up so that they'll be sharp and handy when you want them.

Doig to Address Area Credit Union At Session Here

Credit unions of the Washington metropolitan area will meet Saturday at the Hotel Hamilton, beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Thomas W. Doig, managing director of the Credit Union National Association, will be the main speaker at the evening banquet. Members of Credit Union leagues of adjoining States and of Federal agencies connected with these institutions will be guests.

Chairman of the committee in charge is Arthur A. Gladstone, president of the Federal Communications Commission credit union.

The formation of seven new credit unions in the area last year has raised the number of credit unions here to 113, with about 70,000 members, according to Elbert Y. Olney, director of the D. C. Credit Union League.

Overproduction In Frozen Food Declared Ended

Chicago, March 15 (AP).—Frozen foods were the first segment of the food industry to complete the changeover from wartime to peacetime production and distribution, an official of the industry said today.

C. Courntey Seabrook of Bridgeton, N. J., president of the National Association of Frozen Food Packers, addressed the opening session of the national frozen food industry convention. Some 7500 packers, wholesalers, brokers, and store executives attended.

Seabrook said frozen food inventories now are balanced after overproduction which resulted when the Government halted its wartime purchasing which had amounted to one-half the total output.

"No longer is there all-out production on the part of the packer without regard to annual consumption," Seabrook said. He said 1948 production may surpass the record pack of 900 million pounds of fruits and vegetables of 1946.

He said quality had declined during war years when military needs required emphasis on quantity, but that increased quality controls is now the major endeavor of every food packer.

K. of C. Asked to Fight 'Hammer and Sickle'

Cumberland, Md., March 15 (AP). The Rev. Boniface Weckman of Charleston, W. Va., charged members of the Knights of Columbus here last night to form a "crusade against the hammer and sickle."

A former pastor of the Church of Ss. Peter and Paul here, Father Weckman recently returned from a tour of France, Switzerland, Sweden and Germany. His audience included K. of C. members from Cumberland, Mount Savage, Frostburg, Clarksburg and Piedmont, W. Va.

2000 Attend D. C. Dental Group Clinics

If you want little Johnny to have good teeth, wean him early from thumb sucking, breathing through his mouth, biting his fingernails and such bad posture habits as leaning his jaw on his hand.

And if you want to reduce his potential cavities, have his enamel treated with sodium flouride at about 3, 7, 10 and 13 year of age.

That was the advice you would have received yesterday at two of the 57 clinics set up in the Shoreham Hotel by the District of Columbia Dental Society. The sessions, held annually, were attended by more than 2000 dentists of the Eastern States. They will continue through Thursday.

Main theme of the meeting is the dental care of children.

Decay Prevented

Dr. John W. Knutson, chief of the Dental Public Health section, United Stated Public Health Service, told the dentists that cavities were reduced 40 to 50 per cent in teeth treated with sodium fluoride in some 5500 children.

He said the treatment was the most significant dental development in recent years. Cost is negligible, he said, and treatment should be given as each set of teeth develops.

Scientists don't know how the fluoride acts on teeth, he admitted, but said it is believed to make teeth more resistant to acids, which cause decay by dissolving the enamel.

Dr. Paul Bauman, Washington dentist, exhibited the bad effects of poor habits on the development of children's teeth with photographs, drawings and plastic models.

Bad Habits Cited

"If you can break a child of these habits, through understanding care at home, by the age of five, nature will take care of the rest of it," said Dr. Bauman.

Don't try to stop thumb sucking before the age of two, he said, as that would interfere with the child's normal sucking instincts. After that, though, sucking will begin to distort the palate bone and thrust the front teeth out. Mouth breathing will do the same thing, because it causes the child to push outward with his tongue, while fingernail biting spreads the teeth and twists them as they grow, according to Dr. Bauman.

The dentists were greeted by District Commissioner Guy Mason at yesterday's open luncheon, with Dr. M. M. Alexander, president of the D. C. society, and H. B. Washburn, president of ADA, as speakers.

Registration is expected to reach 3000 today as the meeting continues.

A well-known book with the "NEW LOOK" is coming to Washington

The new, separate Yellow Pages—Your up-to-date Classified Telephone Directory—will be delivered soon

THE separate Classified Directory is the latest in a long parade of improvements in your telephone directory service. With the change, the nation's capital will join the ranks of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and other large cities which have already taken this step.

As an individual book, this familiar buyers' guide will be lighter, more convenient, easier to handle. Its distinctive yellow cover will make it easy to identify, quick to refer to when you're shopping by telephone.

As always, you'll find the YELLOW PAGES chock-full of helpful where-to-buy-it information. Products, dealers and services will be listed there in easy-to-find classified form.

THE YELLOW PAGES TELL YOU WHERE TO BUY IT

Enlistments Up In Baltimore

Baltimore, March 15 (AP).—Increases since March 1 in Baltimore military enlistments were reported today by recruiting offices.

In the first 10 days of March, the Navy has recruited 132 per cent of its quota. Only 90 per cent of the quota was reached last month.

The Army and Air Forces recruiting office reported enlistments totaling 53.5 per cent of their quota so far this month, as compared to 47 per cent for February. The Coast Guard also reported increases.

Prince Georges Council Of Homemakers Meets

Members of the Prince Georges County Council of Homemaker Clubs met yesterday at the YWCA building, 614 E st. nw. to discuss State extension service programs and the Prince Georges mental health clinic.

Committee chairmen are Mrs. Pauline Blandford, Mrs. Margaret Butler, Mrs. Beatrice Colombe, Mrs. Magdalene Griga, Mrs. Alma Kelbaugh, Mrs. Dorothy Oursler, Mrs. Carolyn Newton and Mrs. Louise Smith. Miss Ethel Regan is the county demonstration agent advising the group, which includes representatives of the 19 county clubs.

Brooklyn Has Heart For Holland Town

New York (U.P.).—The first post-war shipment of gifts has been delivered to Breukelen, Holland, from Brooklyn, N. Y., which was named for the tiny Dutch community.

Miss Marquerite A. Salomon founded the Brooklyn Adopts Breukelen Project, which was taken up officially by the Brooklyn Heights Garden Club.

At the suggestion of the Breukelen burgomeister, Dr. M. L. Holthe tot Echten, the Brooklynites sent only necessities, with the exception of some candy for children and tobacco for men.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., March 15, 1948.
Sealed proposals (in triplicate) will be received at this office until 10 a. m., Friday, March 26, 1948, and will be opened immediately thereafter, in the presence of such bidders as attend, for producing during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, copies of drawings of patents; and for the weekly issues of exhausted copies of drawings and specifications, by planographing. The prices named will be considered in connection with the ability of the bidder and his plant to do and deliver within a specified time, first-class work, under the conditions above, except that no specific number of pages can be estimated for reproducing by the color process of photoengraving. Copies of drawings of patents on plants, under these same conditions, copies of drawings by halftone process, copies of drawings of patents on plants. Prior to the determination of an award, such preliminary investigation as to the qualification of bidders and efficiency of plant will be made as the Department shall deem necessary. A low bid, however, will not be accepted unless and until the bidder is found to be responsible and to possess the necessary facilities or plant with which to perform the work specified and sufficient financial ability to perform the work in accordance with the terms of the proposals and contracts to be awarded will be rejected. All bids accepted and contracts awarded subject to an appropriation by Congress to meet the expense. Lack of commercial standing on the part of the bidder or inadequate facilities or plant with which to perform the work specified will constitute a sufficient ground for the rejection of such a bid. BIDDERS WHOSE WORK HAS BEEN UNSATISFACTORY IN THE PAST OR BIDDERS WHO ARE NOT COMPLYING WITH THE PROVISIONS OF THE WALSH-HEALEY ACT, PUBLIC LAW 846, OF THE 74TH CONGRESS, OR WHO ARE NOT COMPLYING WITH THE MINIMUM WORK WEEK PRESCRIBED BY EXECUTIVE ORDER No. 9301, DATED FEBRUARY 9, 1943, MAY BE ELIMINATED FROM CONSIDERATION ON THAT GROUND. Specifications with forms of proposal will be furnished on application to the Executive Officer of the Patent Office. All bidders are invited to be present at the opening. The right to reject any and all bids, in whole or in part, is hereby reserved. All plates used in color work to be the property of the Patent Office. The number of colors used in the color work to be as furnished. All work of current issue (Class A) to be done in the District of Columbia.
LAWRENCE C. KINGSLAND, Commissioner.

IF THE YANKEE WOMAN DOCTOR KILLED CHIEF IZM, WHERE IS HIS BODY?
THE SPECTACLED ONE DOES NOT ANSWER, BECAUSE HERE STANDS CHIEF IZM TO REFUTE ANY SUCH MAD TALE
THAT ONE! DOST THOU NOT RECALL HIM, MY FRIEND? WE SAW HIM DRIVEN FROM DASSA AS AN 'EVIL EYE'!
INDEED! THAT IS WHY HE WEARS THE THICK SPECTACLES!
AN 'EVIL EYE'! A WALKING DEVIL! DRIVE HIM FROM OUR VILLAGE!
THEY'RE TURNING ON US!
SURROUND OUR LEADER--WE'LL RUSH HIM TO THE YANKEE AIRPLANE!
HE BROUGHT THE SICKNESS! STONE HIM!

JOE PALOOKA

DOCTOR, THERE'S A BADLY WOUNDED MAN IN THE CAR...
I'LL COME RIGHT OUT
BEFORE WE MOVE HIM....I WANT TO EXAMINE HIM.
GET ME T'MADISON SQUARE GARDEN... I GOTTA SEE JOE BEFORE I KICK OFF.
EASY, KNOBS...
I CAN'T FIND ANYTHING... THIS BLOOD SEEMS TO BE ON THE OUTSIDE...WE'LL HAVE TO BRING HIM INSIDE THE HOUSE.
I GOTTA GIT TO TH' GARDEN.
I'LL HAVE TO STAY WITH THESE OTHER TWO!

BARNABY

Hey, look, Barnaby! There's your Fairy Godfather and another dopey little man—
Oh, that's Pete. He's the Sandman, Jane.
Ah, good morning, Barnaby.
Yes.
The Sandman is going to throw sand in people's eyes so they'll need Mr. O'Malley's eyewash—
Huh?
Hush, m'boy!
Jack Morley C.J.
I don't want the Better Business Bureau to hear it put just that way . . . Pete is my Vice President in Charge of Market Expansion.
Yes.

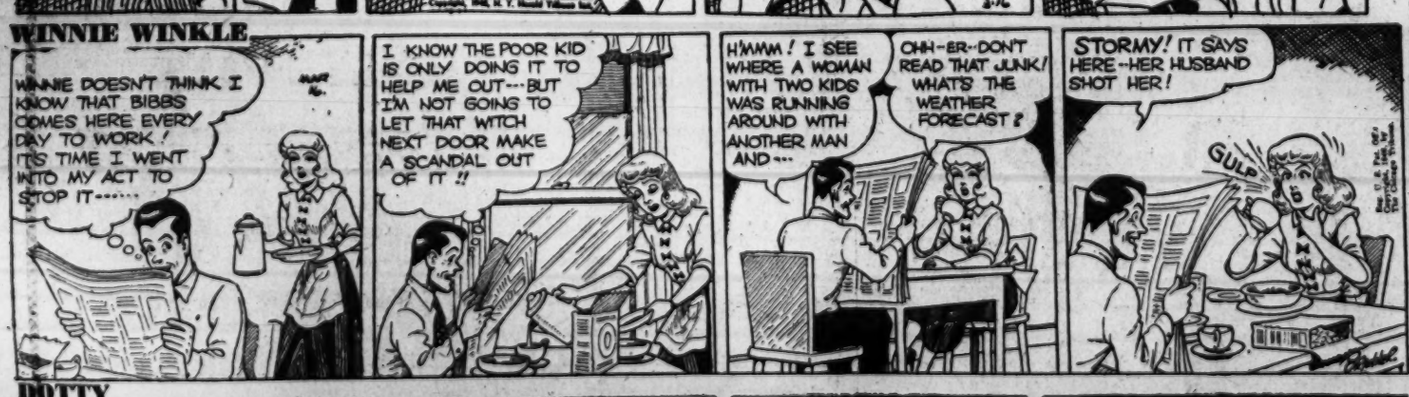
MICKEY FINN

YOU HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO ROUSE HIM?
NO! AND I'VE SHAKEN HIM HARD TOO! THE DOCTOR IS EXAMINING HIM NOW!
EVERYTHING SEEMS TO BE NORMAL--HOW DID HE FEEL WHEN HE RETIRED LAST NIGHT?
I-I DON'T KNOW, SIR! I WAS ASLEEP WHEN HE CAME IN!
WHAT DO YOU THINK IT IS, DOCTOR?
FRANKLY, I DON'T KNOW! I THINK I'LL HAVE HIM REMOVED TO A HOSPITAL AT ONCE!
YOU WILL IN A PIG'S EYE!

PENNY

THANK YOU FOR TAKING SUCH GOOD CARE OF LITTLE BETTY, PENNY.
YOU'RE VERY WELCOME, MRS. BROWN.
IT'S SUCH A JOY TO KNOW THAT YOUR CHILD IS SAFE WITH AN EFFICIENT SITTER.
ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?
THAT'S WHY OUR SOCIETY OF SATISPYING SITTERS INSISTS THAT WE ALWAYS DO OUR VERY BEST...
SO THE LITTLE DEARS WILL KNOW WHAT GOOD SITTING IS WHEN WE'RE HIRING THEM FOR SITTERS IN A FEW YEARS.

WINNIE WINKLE



WINNIE DOESN'T THINK I KNOW THAT BIBBS COMES HERE EVERY DAY TO WORK! IT'S TIME I WENT INTO MY ACT TO STOP IT------
I KNOW THE POOR KID IS ONLY DOING IT TO HELP ME OUT---BUT I'M NOT GOING TO LET THAT WITCH NEXT DOOR MAKE A SCANDAL OUT OF IT!!
H'MMM! I SEE WHERE A WOMAN WITH TWO KIDS WAS RUNNING AROUND WITH ANOTHER MAN AND--- OHH-ER--DON'T READ THAT JUNK! WHAT'S THE WEATHER FORECAST?
STORMY! IT SAYS HERE--HER HUSBAND SHOT HER!
GULP

TAKING SOME WORK HOME TONIGHT, MR. DRIPPLE?
JUST THESE INVOICES, MISS KLINK--
BUT THEY DON'T HAVE TO BE DONE TILL NEXT WEEK!
OH, I WON'T WORK ON THEM--I'M JUST GOING TO READ THEM IN BED TONIGHT----
I'VE BEEN HAVING TROUBLE GETTING TO SLEEP LATELY!!

Nocturnal Chords Cease as New Cords Replace Old

The new streamlined buses are equipped with chimes instead of buzzers—and with cotton pull-cords which absorb moisture during rainy days and then shrink when left in heated garages overnight.

As the cords would shrink, they'd get tight enough to set off the chimes. So the company is now changing over to plastic pull-cords, and silence once more descends over Capital Transit's garages.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Mrs. Thomas S. Lawson of 2845 Brentwood rd. ne. forwards this week's most confusing classified ad:

ARMY OFFICER — Ordered overseas, exceptionally well-built, semidetached, 2-bedroom brick, all gas equipment. Substantial down payment required.

Naturally. Well-built Army officers come high these days.

GOIN' HOME

The hills of West Virginia
That's where I long to be.
The reason ain't nostalgia—
These shoes are killin' me.

PERSONAL NOTES

Florence Moser, Waynesboro, Va., and Mrs. Irene M. Longley, 902 Flower ave., Takoma Park, Md.: Requests for free maps of Washington should be sent to the Capital Transit Co., 36th and M sts., Washington, D. C. I have forwarded your postcards to the compan.

Mrs. Catherine T. Barila, 4234 Lily Ponds dr. ne.: Thanks for thinking about Children's Hospital, but we can't auction off pups for that purpose or for any other; otherwise the "Give-Aways" wouldn't be Give-Aways any longer and I'd get into all kinds of complications.

Charles Harris, 3509 Longfellow st., Hyattsville, Md.: This time we're right. "Seven foot policemen" means seven policemen who patrol on foot. But "seven-foot policemen" would be tall cops.

Millard F. Seay, 4614 15th st. nw.: Thanks for the kind words about the program, but you should see the postcard I got from the lady who thinks I should be locked into a hermetically sealed studio which contains a dead microphone.

TWIN BILLS

I think theater managers are booking these odd double features on purpose.

D. B. Harrison of 900 19th st. nw., says that the Central recently offered:

"Cheyenne Takes Over," "Way Out West."

The Cameo, he says, countered with: "The White Gorilla." "The Beast With Five Fingers."

And A. C. Long of Greenbelt, Md., gets into the spirit of the thing by advising that the Greenbelt theater recently booked:

"Bringing Up Father," "The Law of the Lash."

GOLD MINE

You can have the inside tips on the grain market. All I want is the bubble gum and blank-cartridge concession for the Spike Jones troupe.

MORNING RUSH

I'm running late;
There's barely time
For coffee, toast,
And the District Line.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Please pin an orchid on E. V. Farmer, Arlington-Fairfax driver of Bus 44, which carries Fairlington and Parkfairfax children to St. Agnes School in Cherrydale.

He is so pleasant and kind to the children that the mothers all feel confident he will take good care of the kids. And the youngsters are all disappointed when his day off falls on a school day.

Florence Nikkel,
3230 S. Stafford st.,
Arlington, Va.

Dear Florence:

It's a pleasure to hand out orchids. Most recent letters have suggested that I wrap a length of lead pipe around somebody's cranium—and the distribution of orchids is much more pleasant. Bill.

THIS IS JUST SEW-SEW

Our recent brush with sewers that sew and sewers that drain waste water leads WTOP's Cody Pfanstiehl to tell us the story of the Lady Known as Sue:

A very rich lawyer loved Sue,
But Sue to a tailor was true.
So Susie said new!
She'd not marry for dew.
And the lawyer? He threatened to sew.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three new blue kittens and mother cat." (Overlook 4354 and ask for Gus.)

ADD SIGNS

The University Club's Cecil J. Wilkinson of 2524 44th st. nw. is currently motoring through Florida, and sends back a report of the legend he encountered on a roadside sign:

Live Alligators
Beer and Sodas.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Zadel Skolovsky, the concert pianist, played Prokofieff's Second Piano Concerto with the New York Philharmonic last month. The piece was played in America only once before—by Prokofieff himself, 18 years ago. The composer had the only copy of the music, and took it with him when he left . . . Skolovsky decided to do this Second Concerto when he heard Koussevitzky mention it. He searched for a copy all over America, and at last found one, brought here during the war, in the 58th St. Public Library. He borrowed it for his New York Philharmonic recital, and then decided to keep it so that he could perform it again. He notified the public library that it had been "lost" and was willing to pay the fine. The library officials punished him by assessing the full fine—$2.50.

ARRIVALS: Hesther Hensel, executive secretary of the Overseas Press Club, was sent to meet King Michael and invite him to the Overseas Press Club dinner. She boarded the ship with 70 newspapermen . . . During the mass interview in the ship's lounge, Miss Hensel went to Michael's cabin, to wait for him. The interview was a long, harrowing one, and Michael returned to his cabin with collar wilted and hair disheveled. "I've come to invite you to the dinner of the Overseas Press Club," Miss Hensel told him . . . "I've just had a very good introduction to the working press," sighed the weary King Michael. "Yes. I'll attend."

DRAMA NOTE: Margaret Webster was planning to direct a play in which her mother, Dame May Whitty, was to star. Miss Webster wrote to her, describing the attempt to get suitable hotel accommodations for her in New York . . . "Don't worry about the hotel space," replied the 83-year-old lady. "What about the Gin?"

PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT: Abe Burrows, the radio comic, was introduced at a Hollywood dinner as "the noted satirist, comedian and philosopher" . . . "How did you get a reputation as a philosopher?" Burrows was asked . . . "In Hollywood it's easy," he explained. "Whenever people tell you stories and your only comment is 'Well, that life,' that makes you a philosopher."

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments
Help You To GROW THICKER HAIR
Hopeless Cases Not Accepted

... A. FARRELL, Trichologist
Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!
Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.
Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.
Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!
After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimuate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.
Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!
Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!
Once it has set in your chance for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Democrats Gain In 'Rights' Split

By Drew Pearson

Democratic chieftains made some progress in healing "civil rights" bitterness during their closed-door sessions last week—but not too much.

Pearson

This time some of the rebellion came not, merely from the South, but from the North. Ed Flynn, boss of the Bronx and the man who had much to do with nominating Truman in 1944, declined to attend. After Truman, without consulting Democratic leaders, announced that he was a candidate, Flynn sent word that he was not coming to Washington "to play ring-around-a-rosie."

Ed Kelly, former Mayor of Chicago and another stalwart who helped put Truman in office, also failed to show up.

On the other hand, homespun former Gov. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, keynoter of the last Democratic convention in 1944, this time keynoted the drive to restore harmony.

"If we want to win the election this year," reminded Kerr, "and I know that's uppermost in the minds of all Democrats, we've got to work together as a united party. The Democratic party is big enough to have disagreements—even big disagreements like this one—and still present a united front."

Kerr spoke after chairman Howard McGrath had argued, implored and coaxed that Democratic factions patch up their split over Truman's civil-rights program.

"I'll admit that the President's message may not have been timed well and some may object to the manner in which it was presented to Congress," said McGath, "but after all it is the mandate of the party. Civil rights was part of the 1944 party platform. All President Truman did was ask Congress to put into law something to which the Democratic Party already is committed."

McGrath went on to point out that Truman's message was misunderstood by many people, especially that part relating to "segregation" of races in public carriers. All the President did, in effect, was to call attention to a Supreme Court ruling that Jim Crow laws were illegal on buses and other carriers in interstate transportation, the Democratic chairman emphasized.

Republicans Have Troubles, Too

McGrath got strong support from his fellow Rhode Island Senator, Theodore Green, and from Indiana's bulky Frank McHale.

"This trouble in the party has been greatly exaggerated," declared the alert 81-year old Senator from Rhode Island. "The Republicans have their difficulties too—over the question of choosing a nominee. I think that the strife within Republican ranks will become more and more bitter as the campaign wears on.

"All this talk about Truman not being a strong candidate doesn't make sense," continued Green. "We can win with him if Democrats give him their united support. There was a feeling that Roosevelt would be defeated when he ran for a third term in 1940 and a fourth term in 1944.

"Now, as then, we put too much stock in what the newspapers are saying. All the big papers in Rhode Island opposed Roosevelt, while 80 per cent of the Republican-controlled press in the rest of the Nation was against him. He won overwhelmingly despite this editorial opposition. Harry Truman will do the same."

McHale belittled the "Wallace threat" to Democrat election chances.

"The people of Indiana are traditionally against third parties," said the committeeman from Indiana. "Teddy Roosevelt received only slightly more than 40,000 votes in Indiana when he ran as a Bull Mooser, and Father Coughlin's third party in 1936 was laughed at in my part of the country. That's why we're not worrying about Wallace and his commie supporters."

Southern Ire Continues

However, Southern spokesmen asserted they were all the more incensed by the civil-rights message because Southern States were well on the way to eliminating the discriminations Truman singled out. Lynching is now practically nonexistent in the South. Some Southern States already had repealed the poll tax. Others, including Virginia, were preparing to do so.

In Alabama, Southern spokesmen said, colored workers were paid the same wage scale as whites in many industries. In North Carolina, white and colored teachers get the same salaries.

McGrath said he was well aware of these strides, therefore understood the criticism leveled at the Administration's program. That criticism, however, he contended, should not be directed personally at the President, who was only carrying out party policy, laid down by Franklin Roosevelt.
